PUBLISHERS' NOTE

THIS volume follows a similar arrangement to that of Volume 25, in that it covers the period of twelve months ending on September 30, 1948. In fact, however, only one Act within the scope of this work, namely, the Civil Defence Act, 1948, received the Royal Assent between that date and the end of the calendar year, and it is an enabling Act which at the time of going to press, awaits full implementation by regulations. Furthermore, it has been possible during the course of printing either to incorporate or to make reference to numerous statutory instruments of later date than September 30, 1948, and in the few cases where statutory instruments have been revoked during the printing stage, to draw attention to these revocations and to the replacing provisions, if any.

The legislation of the period covered by this volume has been exceptionally heavy, both in Statutes and in Statutory Instruments. Possibly the most important of the Statutes in the volume is the Local Government Act, 1948, which makes radical changes in the financial structure of local government and alters the existing systems of rating and valuation. The Representation of the People Act, 1948, though marking a step forward in post-war election law, is somewhat overshadowed by the coming consolidation of existing election law. The National Assistance Act, 1948, is another comprehensive measure of reform, whose salient feature is the abolition of poor law, while the Gas Act, 1948, providing for public ownership of the gas industry, follows closely the model of the Electricity Act, 1947. Substantial changes are made in the law relating to children by three Acts, the Children Act, 1948, the Criminal Justice Act, 1948, and the Nurseries and Child Minders Regulation Act, 1948.

Statutory Instruments occupy a prominent part of this volume, and the most important groups of such instruments are those connected with the National Health Service, Town and Country Planning, the Fire Services, the Police and Superannuation.

In annotating the Local Government Act, 1948, the editors have to some extent drawn upon the book of Mr. F. A. Amies, B.A., F.C.I.S., F.R.V.A., on that Act, in the case of the Children Act, 1948, and the Nurseries and Child-Minders Regulation Act, 1948, they have had at their disposal the annotations of Mr. A. C. L. Morrison, C.B.E., Miss M. M. Wells, M.A., Col. E. Eton, D.S.O., T.D., and Mr. L. G. Banwell, while the annotations to certain sections of the Criminal Justice Act, 1948, owe something to the work of Mr. A. C. L. Morrison and Mr. Edward Hughes on that Act. The editors gratefully acknowledge their indebtedness to these learned writers and to Mr. A. Norman Schofield, LL.M., Town Clerk of Watford, for his assistance in connection with the annotation of the Representation of the People Act, 1948.

CASES

Public health—Statutory nuisance—Proceedings against local authority—Competence—Public Health Act, 1936 (c. 49), ss. 92 (1) (c), 99.

A local authority can be made a defendant before justices under s. 99 of the Public Health Act, 1936, on a complaint that it has caused a statutory nuisance within the terms of s. 92 (1) of the Act, nor is it any objection to the jurisdiction of the justices that the nuisance arose from some operation in the course of the carrying out by the local authority of some public duty.—R. v. EPPING (WALTHAM ABBEY) JJ., Ex parte BURLINSON, [1948] 1 K. B. 79; [1947] 2 All E. R. 537; [1948] L. J. R. 298; 112 J. P. 3; 63 T. L. R. 628; 92 Sol. Jo. 27; 46 L. G. R. 6, D. C. [1]

Public health—Metropolis—Nuisance—Summons—Service—Summons on complaint of local authority—Public Health (London) Act, 1936 (c. 50), s. 301 (1) (a) (i)—London Government Act, 1939 (c. 40), s. 183 (1).

A summons issued by a court of summary jurisdiction on a complaint by a local authority is a document issued on behalf, not of the local authority, but of the Crown, notwithstanding the fact that the penalty which may be inflicted on an offender on the hearing of the summons may be payable to the local authority. Where, therefore, a summons has been issued in the metropolis on the complaint of a local authority in respect of a nuisance, the Public Health (London) Act, 1936, s. 301—and not the London Government Act, 1939, s. 183—applies in regard to the service of the summons, since the Act of 1939 (by s. 207 and Sched. VIII) repeals s. 301 of the Act of 1936 only " so far as it relates to a local authority."

Per HUMPHREYS, J.: S. 183 (1) of the London Government Act, 1939, which provides for the service by a local authority of " any notice, order or other document required or authorised by this Act, or by any other enactment or statutory order," applies only to notices required or authorised to be served on behalf of a local authority and not to summonses (e.g. a summons served on a person under the Public Health (London) Act, 1936, Sched. V, para. 7, for failure to comply with a nuisance notice). When s. 301 (1) of the Act of 1936 provides that a summons " may be served . . . where the person [to be served] is the owner or occupier of any premises, [by] delivering it to some person on the premises . . . " the premises referred to are those in respect of which proceedings are proposed to be taken, and not different premises of which the person to be served is the owner or occupier.—R. v. WILSON, Ex parte BATTERSEA BOROUGH COUNCIL, [1948] 1 K. Execution of regulations

5.—(1) Save as otherwise provided hereunder, it shall be the duty of the following authorities to enforce and execute these regulations :—

(a) at a national aerodrome, the Minister or, if a local authority has undertaken duties at that aerodrome under subsection (2) of section 39 of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946, that local authority ;

PART II.—AIRCRAFT ARRIVING

Duties of commander

7.—(1) The commander of an arriving aircraft which alights at a clearance aerodrome shall—

(a) deliver to the medical officer a duly completed aircraft declaration of health and record the delivery thereof in the journey log-book of the aircraft;

(b) if required by the medical officer, produce certificates concerning any sanitary measures mentioned in the declaration;

(c) answer all questions as to the health conditions on board which may be put to him by the medical officer, customs officer, or the person in charge of the aerodrome; produce to any of those officers on request the journey log-book of the aircraft, and furnish any such officer with all such information and assistance as he may reasonably require for the purposes of these regulations;

(d) forthwith notify the medical officer or customs officer, whichever shall first visit the aircraft after its arrival, of any death on the aircraft during the voyage caused otherwise than by accident, of any case or suspected case of infectious disease on the aircraft, of any person on the aircraft who is known to him to be liable to surveillance, and of any other circumstances which are likely to lead to infection or the spread of infectious disease; and

(e) comply with any requirements or directions made of or given to him by or in pursuance of these regulations:

Provided that this regulation shall not apply in a case where no person disembarks and no cargo is discharged.

(2) Subject to the provisions of regulation 8, the commander of an arriving aircraft which alights at a customs aerodrome not being a clearance aerodrome shall enter in the journey log-book of the aircraft the name of any passenger who disembarks, and shall be subject at that aerodrome to such of the requirements mentioned in paragraph (1) of this regulation as in the opinion of the medical officer are reasonably necessary for the purposes of these regulations. [9]

8.—(1) Where the commander of an arriving aircraft which alights otherwise than at the termination of its voyage satisfies the medical officer that it is not intended that the aircraft shall alight elsewhere in the excepted area except for the purpose of taking in supplies, and informs him that he does not desire to submit to any of the requirements of these regulations, he shall be at liberty to continue the voyage without such submission:

Provided that, if the aircraft has on board a case of yellow fever, or comes from a locality included by reason of yellow fever in the list kept at that aerodrome in pursuance of regulation 6, the medical officer may require that it shall be subjected to the prescribed measures.

(2) Where the commander informs the medical officer as aforesaid, he shall not disembark passengers or discharge cargo except subject to such conditions as the medical officer may impose in conformity with the provisions of article 57 of the Convention. [10]

Duties and powers of customs officers

9.—(1) Where on the arrival of an aircraft it appears to a customs officer from information given to him by the commander or from answers to inquiries made by him or otherwise—

(a) that during the voyage there has been on the aircraft a death otherwise than as a result of an accident, or a case of illness which is or is suspected to be of an infectious nature; or

(b) that the aircraft is an aircraft coming from an infected locality ; or (c) that during the voyage death not attributable to poison or other measures for destruction has occurred amongst rats or mice on the aircraft ;

he shall give such directions as to him seem necessary to secure the detention of the aircraft, including its stores, equipment and cargo, commander, passengers and crew, and any person to whom any such directions are given shall comply therewith.

(2) If a customs officer receives in respect of an aircraft a notice in writing from the medical officer under regulation 12 he shall, if he visits the aircraft before the medical officer, deliver the notice to the commander and take all reasonable steps to secure compliance therewith. [11]

10. The detention of an aircraft by a customs officer under these regulations shall cease as soon as the medical officer has duly inspected the aircraft or caused it to be inspected, or has given notice to the customs officer that he does not propose to do so, or, if the inspection has not begun within three hours after the customs officer gave the direction for its detention, on the expiration of that period :

Provided that nothing in this regulation shall affect the exercise of any powers of the medical officer in regard to the detention of aircraft or authorise an infected aircraft or an aircraft coming from an infected locality to depart before the prescribed measures are completed. [12]

Duty of person in charge of an aerodrome

11. Where the person in charge of an aerodrome receives information before the arrival of an aircraft thereat that a person on the aircraft has symptoms which may indicate infectious disease, or that there are circumstances in relation to the aircraft requiring the attention of the medical officer, he shall forthwith notify the medical officer and a customs officer to that effect. [13]

Duties and powers of medical officer

12.—(1) The medical officer may direct that an arriving aircraft shall be detained for medical inspection and may deliver a notice in writing to that effect to a customs officer.

(2) The medical officer shall inform the person in charge of the aerodrome of any directions given by him under this regulation. [14]

13. The medical officer—

(a) may, and if so required by the Minister shall, inspect or cause to be inspected, as soon as practicable after its arrival, any infected aircraft, any aircraft on which rodent plague has occurred or been suspected during the voyage, or any aircraft coming from an infected locality ;
(b) shall as soon as possible, and in any case within three hours, after a customs officer has directed the detention of an aircraft under regulation 9, inspect the aircraft, or cause it to be inspected, or give notice to the customs officer that he does not propose to do so, and, if the aircraft is liable to be subjected to further measures under these regulations, give notice in writing to the commander directing that the aircraft shall be detained for a further period. [15]

14.—(1) The medical officer may, and if so required by the Minister shall—

(a) examine any person on an arriving aircraft, where there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that infectious disease is present on the aircraft or that any person on board the aircraft has been exposed to infection from infectious disease during the voyage of the aircraft or during a period of three weeks immediately preceding the arrival of the aircraft ;

(b) detain for the purpose of examination any person whom he is empowered or required under this regulation to examine ;

(c) take steps with a view to the isolation of any such person, or prohibit him from leaving the aerodrome save upon such conditions (being, in the case of a person who is suffering from, or who has been exposed to infection from, a disease to which any Part of the first schedule to these regulations relates, conditions which do not require anything which could not be required under that Part) as appear to the medical officer to be reasonably necessary to prevent the spread of infection ;

(d) require the commander to take or assist in taking such steps as, in the opinion of the medical officer, are reasonably necessary for preventing the spread of infection by any such person, for the destruction of insects or vermin, and for the removal of conditions on the aircraft likely to convey infection, including conditions the existence of which might facilitate the harbouring of vermin :

Provided that sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph shall not apply to a person by reason only that he has been exposed to infection from yellow fever, or has come from a locality included by reason of yellow fever in the list kept at that aerodrome in pursuance of regulation 6, if—

(i) he produces a certificate in conformity with the Convention that he has been inoculated against yellow fever ; and

(ii) not more than four years and (except in the case of a reinoculation performed within four years from the date of a previous inoculation against yellow fever) not less than ten days have elapsed since the inoculation.

(2) At a sanitary aerodrome the medical officer may examine any person on an arriving aircraft who is reasonably believed to be verminous and may cause any such person and his clothing and any other articles in his possession to be cleansed and disinsected. [16]

15. Where a medical officer suspects that a person on an arriving aircraft is suffering from an infectious disease, he may—

(a) cause such person to be removed to a hospital, or to some other suitable place approved for that purpose by the responsible authority ;

(b) require the commander to take or assist in taking such steps as, in the opinion of the medical officer, are reasonably necessary to rid the aircraft of infection. [17]

16. Where a medical officer suspects that a person on an arriving aircraft is suffering from tuberculosis, he may—

(a) send information to that effect to the medical officer of health of the district to which the person is immediately proceeding ;

(b) require the commander to take or assist in taking such steps as, in the opinion of the medical officer, are reasonably necessary to rid the aircraft of infection. [18]

17. If the medical officer considers that there should be applied to an arriving aircraft which alights elsewhere than at a sanitary aerodrome, or to its commander, passengers or crew, sanitary measures which can be applied only at a sanitary aerodrome, he may direct that they or any of them shall proceed to a sanitary aerodrome, and he shall give the commander notice in writing of the direction and of the reasons for the direction. [19]

18.—(1) In deciding what sanitary measures, if any, should be applied to an arriving aircraft or to its commander, passengers or crew, the medical officer shall take into account any sanitary measures which have been applied at any other aerodrome, whether in England and Wales or elsewhere, and are noted in the declaration delivered in pursuance of sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of regulation 7, and he shall not require the application of any sanitary measures if since their previous application no incident has occurred calling for their renewed application and the aircraft has not visited, except for the purpose of refuelling, a locality included in the list kept in pursuance of regulation 6 at the aerodrome at which the aircraft alighted.

(2) In applying sanitary measures to an aircraft or to its commander, passengers or crew, the medical officer shall have regard to the need for detaining the aircraft for as short a time as possible. [20]

19.—(1) The medical officer shall forthwith inform the customs officer of any measures taken by him or at his direction with reference to an arriving aircraft, its stores, equipment or cargo, commander, passengers or crew, in pursuance of these regulations.

(2) The medical officer when he releases an aircraft from detention shall give notice in writing to the customs officer, to the commander of the aircraft, and to the person in charge of the aerodrome that, so far as control under these regulations is concerned, the aircraft is free to proceed at or after a date and time stated in the notice. [21]

Requirements concerning persons on aircraft

20. Every passenger on an arriving aircraft who intends to disembark or break his journey at an aerodrome in England and Wales shall complete a declaration in the form set forth in the third schedule to these regulations or in a form substantially to the like effect and deliver it to the medical officer at the aerodrome at which he disembarks or breaks his journey or, if an aircraft declaration of health is delivered in respect of the aircraft at an aerodrome before it reaches the point at which he intends to disembark or break his journey, at that aerodrome. [22]

21.—(1) Every person on an arriving aircraft shall comply with all directions, requirements or conditions given, made or imposed by the medical officer or other authorised officer of the responsible authority in pursuance of these regulations, and shall furnish all such information as any such officer or a customs officer may reasonably require (including information as to his name, destination and address) and every person who has for the time being the custody or charge of a child or other person who is under disability shall comply with any directions, requirements or conditions so given, made or imposed, and shall furnish all such information as aforesaid, in respect of such child or other person.

(2) Every person who is placed under surveillance in pursuance of these regulations shall—

(a) give facilities for any medical examination required by the medical officer or by the medical officer of health of any district in which he is located during the period of surveillance;

(b) furnish all such information as any such medical officer of health as aforesaid may reasonably require with a view to ascertaining the person's state of health;

(c) forthwith upon arrival during the period of surveillance at any address other than the one stated as his intended destination in the declaration delivered in pursuance of regulation 20, send particulars of that address to the medical officer of the aerodrome at which he disembarked;

(d) if so instructed by the medical officer, report to the medical officer of health of any district in which he is for the time being during the period of surveillance, and thereafter during that period report to that officer at such intervals as he may require :

Provided that an instruction shall not be given by a medical officer under sub-paragraph (d) of this paragraph unless the Minister has by direction (whether general or special) authorised the giving of instructions thereunder. [23]

Infected aircraft or aircraft coming from an infected locality

22. The medical officer, as soon as practicable after the arrival of an infected aircraft or an aircraft coming from an infected locality, shall, if any person disembarks or any cargo is discharged therefrom, carry out or cause to be carried out the prescribed measures in relation thereto, and the aircraft shall remain subject to control under these regulations until it has been examined by the medical officer and those measures (other than measures in relation to any person who has disembarked from the aircraft) have been completed. [24]

Aircraft alighting elsewhere than at a customs aerodrome

23.—(1) Where an aircraft which has come from a place outside the excepted area alights elsewhere than at a customs aerodrome—

(a) the commander shall forthwith give notice to that effect to the responsible authority or a customs officer or an immigration officer or a police officer and, if the aircraft has alighted at an aerodrome, to the person in charge thereof ;

(b) save for the purpose of the preceding sub-paragraph, no person carried by the aircraft shall leave its vicinity unless authorised so to do by the medical officer, and any person so authorised shall inform such officer of his name and the address of his intended destination, but this sub-paragraph shall not be construed as dispensing with the necessity to secure any consent arising under any other enactment, including any instrument having statutory effect ;

(c) subject as aforesaid, these regulations shall apply, with any necessary modifications, in relation to the aircraft, its stores, equipment and cargo, commander, passengers and crew, to the extent to which they are not required by a police officer or customs officer to proceed or, as the case may be, to be taken to a customs aerodrome, as if the aircraft had alighted at a customs aerodrome, and for the purposes of such application the list of infected localities kept in pursuance of regulation 6 shall be any list so kept by the medical officer of health of the responsible authority or, if there is no such list, any list so kept by any other medical officer.

(2) If any person who has informed an officer in pursuance of this regulation of the address of his intended destination arrives within fourteen days thereafter at some other address, he shall forthwith send particulars of that address to the medical officer of health of the responsible authority for the place at which he disembarked from the aircraft. [25]

PART III.—AIRCRAFT DEPARTING

Examination, etc., of persons proposing to embark

24. Where an aircraft is due or about to depart for a place outside the excepted area, the medical officer—

(a) may examine any person who proposes to embark thereon if he suspects him to be suffering from plague, cholera, typhus fever, smallpox or yellow fever, and, if after examination the medical officer is of opinion that he shows symptoms of any such disease, shall in the case of symptoms of yellow fever, and may in any other case, prohibit his embarkation ;

(b) may prohibit the embarkation thereon of any person who is known to have been in such close contact with any person suffering or suspected to be suffering from plague, cholera, typhus fever or smallpox as to render him liable to transmit infection :

Provided that, in the case of smallpox, no person shall be prohibited from embarkation if he satisfies the medical officer that he is sufficiently protected by recent vaccination or by a previous attack of smallpox ;

(c) shall notify the commander of any person who embarks or proposes to continue his voyage thereon and who, in the opinion of the medical officer, should be placed under surveillance, and shall certify an entry to that effect to be made by the commander in the journey log-book. [26]

Infected localities in England and Wales

25. Where an aerodrome is situate in a locality in England or Wales which the Minister has, by notice published in the London Gazette, declared to be a locality infected with plague, cholera or yellow fever, or with any other disease which in his opinion constitutes a menace to other countries by reason of its spread or potential spread, or a locality in which typhus fever or smallpox exists in an epidemic form, then, until the notice is revoked by a subsequent notice published in the London Gazette, the medical officer shall comply with any requirement which may be made by the Minister in relation to that aerodrome for preventing the spread of the disease, and in particular (but without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing) the following provisions of this regulation shall operate in relation to any aircraft departing from that aerodrome for a place outside the excepted area :—

(a) the medical officer may, and within three hours after receiving a request from the commander so to do shall, medically examine any person who proposes to embark on or is on board the aircraft ;

(b) the medical officer or other authorised officer of the responsible authority shall inspect any clothing, bedding or other article which is on, or is intended to be taken by any person on, the aircraft and which, in the opinion of the officer, may have been exposed to infection, and may require the disinfection or destruction of any such clothing, bedding or article, and the commander shall disclose to the medical officer any relevant circumstances ;

(c) any such officer as aforesaid may require any parts of the aircraft which in his opinion may be infected to be cleansed and disinfected to his satisfaction ;

(d) no person shall take or cause to be taken on board the aircraft any article which, in the opinion of any such officer as aforesaid, is capable of carrying infection, unless that officer is satisfied that it has been efficiently disinfected ;

(e) if the locality is declared to be infected with plague and there is reason to believe that there are rats on the aircraft, the medical officer may, and if so required by the Minister shall, take steps to secure the deratting of the aircraft ;

(f) if the locality is declared to be one in which typhus fever exists in an epidemic form, the medical officer may require any person who proposes to embark on or is on board the aircraft and who in his opinion is likely to convey infection, and any article on or proposed to be carried on the aircraft likely to harbour lice, to be deloused. [27]

PART IV.—GENERAL

Appointment and duties of officers and provision of services by responsible authorities

26. For the purposes of these regulations, a responsible authority other than the Minister may, and if so required by the Minister shall—

(a) appoint such number of duly qualified medical practitioners as may be necessary for the proper execution of these regulations, and give directions from time to time as to the duties which are to be or may be performed by any such medical practitioner;

(b) appoint for a sanitary aerodrome one or more persons to act under the direction of the medical officer in the execution of these regulations;

(c) at or in connection with a customs aerodrome arrange for the provision of—

(i) premises and waiting rooms for medical inspections and examinations;

(ii) premises for the temporary isolation of persons in accordance with these regulations;

(iii) hospital accommodation required for the purposes of these regulations;

(iv) means of transport to any such premises or accommodation as are referred to in sub-paragraphs (ii) and (iii) of this paragraph;

(d) at or in connection with a sanitary aerodrome provide or arrange for the provision of—

(i) apparatus or means for the cleansing, disinfection and disinsecting of aircraft, persons and clothing and other articles, and the deratting of aircraft;

(ii) a laboratory for the examination of suspected material or equipment for taking and despatching such material for examination in a laboratory;

(e) do all such other things as in the opinion of the responsible authority or of the Minister, as the case may be, are necessary to enable the provisions of these regulations to be complied with. [28]

Charges for services

27.—(1) Where a commander is required by or in pursuance of these regulations to carry out any measures with a view to reducing the danger or preventing the spread of infection, the responsible authority may themselves at the request of the commander, and, if they think fit, at his cost, cause any such requirement to be complied with instead of enforcing the requirement against the commander.

(2) The amount of the charge for any work so to be undertaken by the responsible authority shall be such reasonable sum as represents the actual or estimated cost to be incurred in undertaking the work excluding any charge or claim in respect of profit, so, however, that it shall not exceed the sum of twenty pounds unless notice of the proposed charge has been given to the commander before the work is undertaken.

(3) Where under this regulation the responsible authority cause any requirement to be complied with at the cost of the commander they may, if they think fit, require the amount of the charge for the work or a part thereof to be paid to or deposited with them before the work is undertaken.

(4) Where, in pursuance of these regulations, any sanitary measures have been taken with regard to an aircraft, the responsible authority or the medical officer shall, on request by the commander, furnish him free of charge with particulars in writing of those measures and the reasons why they were taken.

(5) Where, in pursuance of these regulations, any sanitary measures have been taken with regard to any person or to any articles in his possession, the medical officer shall, on request by such person, furnish him free of charge with particulars in writing of those measures, including the date on which they were taken. [29]

Recovery of charges

28. Every charge authorised by regulation 27 shall, where the responsible authority is a local authority or a port health authority, be recoverable either summarily as a civil debt, or as a simple contract debt in any court of competent jurisdiction. [30]

Expenses of local and port health authorities

29. Subject to the provisions of regulation 27 any expenses incurred by a local authority or a port health authority in the execution of these regulations shall be defrayed in the same manner as the expenses incurred by them in the execution and discharge of their existing powers and duties. [31]

Saving for mails

30. Except to the extent of enabling measures to be taken under regulation 22 with respect to the following fresh foods, namely, fish, shellfish, fruit and vegetables, nothing in these regulations shall render liable to detention, disinfection or destruction any article forming part of any mail conveyed under the authority of the Postmaster-General, or of the postal administration of any other Government, or shall prejudicially affect the receipt on board and delivery in due course at the place of destination of any such mail in accordance with the provisions of the Post Office Acts, 1908 to 1940, or any amendment thereof. [32]

Saving for existing orders

31. Nothing in these regulations shall affect the Air Navigation (Consolidation) Order, 1923, or the Aliens Order, 1920, or any amendment thereof for the time being in force. [33]

(2) Under section 143 (5) of the Public Health Act, 1936, any person who wilfully neglects or refuses to obey or carry out or obstructs the execution of any regulation made under the section is liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and in the case of a continuing offence to a further fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the offence continues after conviction therefor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The Regulations provide, in conformity with the International Sanitary Convention for Aerial Navigation, 1933 (Cmd. 4938), as modified by the International Sanitary Convention for Aerial Navigation, 1944 (Cmd. 6638), for sanitary control of airborne traffic between England and Wales and any place outside the "excepted area" as defined in Regulation 3. They supersede the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations, 1938 (S. R. & O., 1938, No. 299), which were made in conformity with the 1933 Convention and, in pursuance of powers conferred by the Civil Aviation Act, 1946, they extend the control to aerodromes vested in or under the control of the Minister of Civil Aviation.

Circular 28/48

County Councils
Local Authorities
Port Health Authorities.
(England and Wales)

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
5th March, 1948.

SIR,

PUBLIC HEALTH (AIRCRAFT) REGULATIONS, 1948

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose for the information of the Authority a copy of the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations, 1948, which will come into force on the 1st April, 1948.

2. The Regulations have been made by the Minister under section 143 of the Public Health Act, 1936, and section 39 of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946, and they supersede the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations, 1938 (a copy of which was enclosed with Circular 1677 of the 22nd April, 1938).

3. The new Regulations are designed to give effect to the additional obligations incurred by the Government under the International Sanitary Convention for Aerial Navigation, 1944, and to authorise the operation of sanitary control services under section 39 of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946, at aerodromes vested in or under the control of the Minister of Civil Aviation (referred to in the Regulations as "national aerodromes") to which the Regulations of 1938 did not apply. At the same time the opportunity has been taken to incorporate amendments and improvements shown by experience to be necessary or desirable.

4. The Authority's attention is drawn to subsection (2) of section 39 of the Act of 1946 which provides that a local authority may, and shall if the Minister of Health so requires, undertake duties in connection with the execution of the sanitary control services at national aerodromes, and for the reimbursement of the reasonable expenditure incurred by the local authority in doing so. In section 51 of the Act " local authority " is defined to mean the council of a county, county borough, metropolitan borough or county district, or the Common Council of the City of London.

5. In the absence from this country of plague, cholera, and yellow fever, and epidemics of typhus fever and of smallpox—the five diseases specifically mentioned in the International Sanitary Conventions—persons going abroad are not subjected to a sanitary control service. Any such service, therefore, will normally be confined to arriving aircraft, and most of the duties of the commander of an aircraft and its passengers and of the various officers at an aerodrome have been collated in Part II (Arriving Aircraft) of the Regulations and, for convenience, grouped in relation to each person on whom the duties are imposed.

6. As the Authority are no doubt aware, the Air Navigation Consolidation Order, 1923, requires that every aircraft arriving in this country shall (except in emergency) first alight at a " customs aerodrome." The new Regulations therefore, like the Regulations of 1938, prescribe principally the sanitary control measures (usually referred to as the " Health Control ") to be taken at " customs aerodromes " (the term is defined in the Regulations) at which passenger-carrying aircraft arrive from abroad.

7. Provision, however, is also made in the Regulations (Regulation 23) for applying them as may be appropriate to aircraft which alight elsewhere than at a customs aerodrome (either in an emergency or otherwise). The Regulations are therefore of interest, not only to the local authorities of districts in which there are aerodromes, but to other local authorities also, as they may at any time find it necessary to be familiar with and to apply their provisions.

8. A memorandum summarising the experience so far gained in the operation of the Health Control at customs aerodromes is also enclosed for the information of the Authority. In view of the comparatively recent development of air traffic on a large scale, this experience obviously has not yet been very wide and the suggestions and advice given in the memorandum must therefore be regarded as provisional.

9. The general purpose of the new Regulations is explained above. The more important of the specific differences between them and the Regulations of 1938 are given below, with some other comments on individual regulations

Regulation 3 (2)

Aircraft belonging to a foreign State and their crews are not now exempt from the Regulations.

Regulation 3 (3)—definitions

" arriving aircraft " is a new definition designed primarily to simplify the application of Regulations 7 to 22 inclusive to an aircraft coming from abroad and alighting at a customs aerodrome ;

" clearance aerodrome " has been defined for the purposes of Regulation 7 ;

" excepted area " has been substituted for " foreign " and enables the Minister, by notice published in the London Gazette, to extend the exemption given to areas already named in the definition to additional areas adjacent to this country in which he is satisfied that adequate health control arrangements are in operation ;

" infected aircraft " has been extended to include a suspected case of infection ;

" infectious disease " does not now include tuberculosis, but Regulation 16 has been added to enable the medical officer to deal with a tuberculous person ;

" recent vaccination." This definition has been taken, with minor alterations, from that in the International Sanitary Convention of 1944. It should, however, be noted that, since the date of the Convention, medical opinion with regard to the value of the " immune reaction " has changed, and the subject has been considered by the Expert Committee on Quarantine of the Interim Commission of the World Health Organisation, who have recommended to the Commission that the expression " immune reaction " should be abandoned and that consequential amendments should be made in the Convention. But until the Convention is amended, it is considered best to follow the definition of 1944, with a slight amendment to make it clearer ;

" responsible authority " is now defined in detail in Regulation 5.

Regulation 5

It will be noted that, as regards any aerodrome other than a national aerodrome or an aerodrome maintained by the council of a county or district, the Minister may direct that the county council shall be the responsible authority.

Regulation 6

The medical officer need now include only places abroad in the list of infected localities.

Regulations 7 and 20

The Aircraft Declaration of Health and the Personal Declaration of Origin and Health required by these Regulations, and the forms shown in the Second and Third Schedules to the Regulations, are prescribed by the International Sanitary Convention for Aerial Navigation of 1944. It will be seen from Regulation 7 that the Aircraft Declaration of Health is not required to be delivered at the first customs aerodrome at which the aircraft alights unless that aerodrome is its " clearance aerodrome " as defined.

Regulation 7 (1) (a)

This requires that the Aircraft Declaration of Health shall be delivered to the medical officer. In practice, the customs officer is the first official to board an aircraft alighting at a customs aerodrome and the declaration is usually handed to him by the Commander and then conveyed by the customs officer to the medical officer. Although it does not seem necessary to disturb this procedure, which has worked satisfactorily, it is considered advisable that the Regulation should require the delivery of the declaration to one particular officer—i.e., the medical officer.

Regulation 7 (1) (b)

When sanitary measures have been taken in respect of an aircraft, the medical officer carrying them out sometimes makes a certified entry to that effect in the journey log-book of the aircraft, instead of issuing a separate certificate. Such a certified entry may be regarded as a certificate for the purpose of this Regulation.

Regulation 15

As this Regulation applies to any infectious disease, and not merely to the five diseases mentioned in the International Sanitary Conventions, it permits the Medical Officer to send the infected person to an approved place (other than a hospital)—e.g., in the case of a minor infectious disease such as mumps, measles, influenza, etc., he could send the person home. There is an additional power to enable the medical officer, if he thinks it necessary, to require the disinfection of the aircraft.

Regulation 16

This is a new provision dealing specifically with tuberculous persons—see note above on the definition of " infectious disease."

Regulation 20

The Personal Declaration of Origin and Health required by this Regulation has to be completed by every passenger who intends to disembark or break his journey in England and Wales, and it must be delivered at the aerodrome at which he does so or at the aerodrome at which the Aircraft Declaration of Health is delivered if that is earlier. The intention is that, as far as possible, the Aircraft Declaration and the Personal Declarations shall be delivered at the same aerodrome so that they may be kept together : if a Personal Declaration has to be delivered before the Aircraft Declaration, it should be forwarded to the Medical Officer receiving the latter. This will enable every passenger on an aircraft to be traced if one of them is later found to be suffering from an infectious disease.

Regulation 21 (2)

The nature of surveillance has been made clearer, and the Minister's direction is required before the medical officer at an aerodrome can order a person to report to a local Medical Officer of Health. It will be noted that such a direction may be either " general or special " ; for example, it might be necessary to apply such a direction to all persons arriving from a particular area instead of to an individual passenger.

Regulation 22

The medical officer is specifically given the responsibility for carrying out the prescribed measures against an infected aircraft or an aircraft coming from an infected locality.

Regulation 23

Paragraph 6 of this Circular refers to the requirement in the Air Navigation (Consolidation) Order that an aircraft coming from abroad must first alight in this country at a customs aerodrome unless it is forced to alight elsewhere, and the provisions in these Regulations dealing with arriving aircraft accordingly apply to aircraft alighting at such aerodromes. Nevertheless, it has been considered advisable to make some provision in the Regulations for the application of Health Control to aircraft which do in fact alight elsewhere than at a customs aerodrome, and this is done in Regulation 23.

Regulation 24

The International Sanitary Conventions for Aerial Navigation do not require that persons who have been in contact with yellow fever cases shall be prohibited from embarking on aircraft : consequently, paragraph (b) of this Regulation does not refer to yellow fever.

SIR,

PUBLIC HEALTH (AIRCRAFT) REGULATIONS, 1948

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the definition of "excepted area" in Regulation 3 (3) of the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations, 1948, enclosed with Circular 28/48 of the 5th March, 1948, and to say that he has had under consideration an application by the Government of Eire for the inclusion of that country in the "excepted area" in accordance with the terms of the definition.

2. The Government of Eire have made regulations, entitled "Infectious Diseases (Aircraft) Regulations, 1948," which came into force on the 1st May, 1948, and are very similar to the regulations now in force in this country, and the Minister has decided to accede to their request.

3. The following notice was accordingly published in the "London Gazette" on the 30th April, 1948 :—

PUBLIC HEALTH (AIRCRAFT) REGULATIONS, 1948

The Minister of Health hereby gives notice under Regulation 3 (3) of the above regulations that on and after the first day of May, 1948, Eire will be included within the "excepted area" as defined for the purposes of those regulations.

Dated this 30th day of April, 1948.

4. The effect of extending the definition in this manner is that action under Part II of the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations, 1948, need not be taken as regards aircraft arriving in this country from Eire.

5. A copy of this circular is being sent to the Medical Officer of Health. [41]

STATUTES

AGRICULTURAL WAGES ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 47)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which came into force when it received the Royal Assent on July 13, 1948, consolidates the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Acts, 1924 and 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 638, 648), as modified by the Holidays with Pay (Agricultural Workers—England and Wales) (Application of Enactments) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2025), and, so far as it relates to agricultural workers in England and Wales the Holidays with Pay Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 817).

The Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Act, 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 638) provided for the fixing of minimum rates of wages for agricultural workers in England and Wales by county wages committees. The decisions of the committee were required to be registered by a central Agricultural Wages Board, who might also act on behalf of a committee which was in default or which requested the Board to act.

The Holidays with Pay Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 817) (which applies to wage-regulating authorities generally) enlarged the powers of agricultural wages committees by enabling them to make directions entitling any workers for whom they had fixed a minimum wage to holidays with pay.

By the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Act, 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 648) the wage-fixing and holiday-directing functions of the wages committees, which had been temporarily transferred under Defence Regulations (see reg. 23 of the Defence (Agriculture and Fisheries) Regulations, 1939; S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1303, as amended), were permanently transferred to the Agricultural Wages Board, and the committees were required in exercising their remaining functions to comply with any directions given by the Board. The Act of 1947 also amended the Act of 1924 in a number of other respects.

The present Act reproduces the law contained in the above-mentioned Acts to the extent already noted without amendment, but in a re-arranged form and with certain adjustments of phraseology.

The Act provides for the establishment, first, of an Agricultural Wages Board for England and Wales (s. 1), and, secondly, for an agricultural wages committee for each county or combination of counties (s. 2). The provisions of the First and Third Schedules, respectively, govern the constitution and proceedings of the Board and the committees. The Board are required to have regard to representations made by committees and the committees to comply with directions from the Board (ss. 1 (2), 2 (4)).

The principal function of the Board is to make orders fixing minimum rates of wages for agricultural workers and directing that such workers shall be entitled to holidays with pay. They have, in addition, power to make orders applying a system of certification for workers undergoing instruction in agriculture.

The functions of the wages committees, which are all of secondary importance, include (i) granting permits to incapacitated persons, (ii) granting certificates as to workers undergoing instruction in agriculture and approving premiums paid by such persons, and (iii) awarding additional wages to piece workers in certain cases.

The Board are empowered to make orders in accordance with the provisions of Sched. IV for each county or combination of counties (a) fixing minimum rates of wages for agricultural workers, and (b) directing that any worker for whom a minimum rate of wages is fixed shall be entitled to be allowed holidays with pay (s. 3 (1), (3), (6)). The fixing of a minimum rate for time work is obligatory, and the Board may, in addition, fix a minimum rate for piece work and a minimum rate for time work to apply in the case of piece workers to secure them a minimum rate of remuneration on a time work basis (s. 3 (2)).

Considerable flexibility is allowed in the contents of minimum wage orders. An order may provide for a rate varying according to different terms and conditions of employment and for a differential rate for "overtime" (s. 3 (4)), and may cover all agricultural workers in the county or be limited to a special class of such workers or to a special area of the county (Sched. IV, para. 5). An order may include a "guaranteed-week" clause (s. 3 (7)), and the Act contains a special provision, introduced by the Act of 1947, whereby an order may provide for a reduction in the minimum rate where a non-casual worker is absent from work as a result of illness or other unavoidable cause (Sched. IV, para. 5).

The Board are empowered to define and evaluate the benefits and advantages which for the purpose of a minimum rate of wages may be reckoned as payment of wages (s. 7).

Where a holiday order is made a separate minimum rate of wages by way of pay in respect thereof must be fixed. The duration of the holidays is to be specified in the order and must be related to the duration of the worker's employment or engagement by the employer who is to allow the holiday (s. 3 (3)).

The Act lays down penalties for failure to comply with a minimum wage or holiday order. In any proceedings for failure to pay the minimum wage the court must, whether there is a conviction or not, order the employer to repay any shortfall of wages during the preceding six months and may, following a conviction, order him to repay any shortfall during the preceding two years (s. 4).

Where a reduced minimum rate of wages is fixed for workers undergoing instruction in agriculture, the Board may require employers wishing to avail themselves of such reduced rate in respect of any such worker to obtain a certificate from the local wages committee approving the terms of employment. An employer will be unable to circumvent this provision by taking a premium since the Act prohibits the taking of a premium, whether directly or indirectly, from a worker except in pursuance of an agreement approved by the local wages committee (s. 6).

A wages committee is empowered to grant to a worker who is so incapacitated as to be incapable of earning the minimum rate a permit exempting his employment from the minimum rate order. Such a permit may itself lay down conditions as to the wages to be paid to the worker (s. 5).

A wages committee is empowered to require an employer to pay an additional sum by way of wages to a piece-worker who is unprotected by a minimum wage rate order where he is underpaid by comparison with an ordinary worker employed on time-work (s. 8).

The Act contains a number of supplementary provisions. The Minister is empowered to appoint officers with powers of entry and inspection to investigate complaints and secure the proper observance of the Act. An officer, where duly authorised, may institute both criminal proceedings and also civil proceedings on behalf of a worker for the recovery of money due from his employer (s. 12). Provision is made with regard to annual reports (s. 13) and expenses (s. 14) and the receiving in evidence of documents (s. 15), and enabling regulations to be made for giving effect to and modifying the Act as respects holidays and holiday remuneration (s. 16). Order, regulations, permits, etc., made or granted under the consolidated Acts and in force on the passing of the present Act, are continued in force and have effect as if made under the present Act (s. 20 (2)). [44]

(2) In the exercise, in relation to a county or combination of counties, of their functions under this Act with respect to fixing, cancelling and varying rates of wages, reckoning benefits and advantages as payment of wages and the payment of premiums in respect of apprentices or learners the Board shall, without prejudice to any other provision of this Act, have regard to representations made to them by the agricultural wages committee established under the next following section for the county or combination of counties. [45]

2. Agricultural wages committees for counties and combinations of counties.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, there shall be established, by order of the Minister made by statutory instrument, an agricultural wages committee for each county in England and Wales:

Provided that—

(a) as respects each combination of counties specified in the Second Schedule to this Act, there shall, in the first instance, be established as aforesaid a committee for the combination instead of a committee for each county; and

(b) if, in the case of each of the respective committees for two or more counties, there is passed by the members of the committee representing employers and the members thereof representing workers in agriculture a resolution in favour of combining the counties for the purposes of this Act, there may, if the Minister thinks it expedient, be established as aforesaid a committee for the combination of counties instead of separate committees for the several counties. [47]

(2) Where an agricultural wages committee has been established for a combination of counties, the Minister at any time thereafter may, and on the representation of the committee by resolution of the members thereof representing employers and the members thereof representing workers in agriculture shall, by statutory instrument dissolve the committee. [48]

(6) The provisions of the Third Schedule to this Act shall have effect with respect to the constitution and proceedings of agricultural wages committees. [52]

Effect of section.—This section, together with Sched. III, post, provides for the establishment of an agricultural wages committee for each county in England and Wales or for a combination of counties. There are, in the first instance, to be established single committees for each combination of counties specified in Sched. II, post, and subsequently for such further combinations as, following the required resolution of the committees for the counties concerned, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries considers expedient. Provision is made for the dissolution of any committee established for a combination of counties.

Wages committees are, subject to the provisions of the Act and orders made thereunder, to exercise their functions in accordance with any directions of the Agricultural Wages Board established under s. 1, ante.

Wages and Holidays

3. Power of Agricultural Wages Board to fix rates of wages, and holidays.—(1) Subject to and in accordance with the provisions of this section, the Board shall have power, for each county for which an agricultural wages committee is established under this Act,—

(a) to fix minimum rates of wages for workers employed in agriculture; and

(b) to direct that any such workers shall be entitled to be allowed by their employers holidays of such duration as may be specified in the direction. [53]

(2) The powers of the Board with respect to the fixing of minimum rates of wages as aforesaid shall be powers—

(a) to fix minimum rates for time work;

(b) to fix minimum rates for piece work;

(c) to fix minimum rates for time work, to apply in the case of workers employed on piece work, for the purpose of securing to such workers a minimum rate of remuneration on a time work basis;

(d) to fix separate minimum rates by way of pay in respect of holidays; and the exercise by the Board of their powers under paragraph (a) of this subsection shall be obligatory:

Provided that the minimum time rate for piece work shall not in any case be higher than the minimum rate which, if the work were time work, would be applicable thereto by virtue of paragraph (a) of this subsection. [54]

(3) A direction under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section that a worker shall be entitled to be allowed a holiday shall not be given unless both minimum rates of wages in respect of the period of the holiday and minimum rates of wages otherwise than in respect of the holiday have been or are being fixed under this section for that worker, shall provide for the duration of the holiday's being related to the duration of the period for which the worker has been employed or engaged to be employed by the employer who is to allow the holiday and, subject as aforesaid, may make provision as to the times at which or the periods within which, and the circumstances in which, the holiday shall be allowed; and the power to fix separate minimum rates of wages by way of pay in respect of holidays shall include power to make provision with respect to the times at which, and the conditions subject to which, those wages shall accrue and shall become payable, and for securing that any such wages which have accrued to a worker during his employment by any employer shall, in the event of his ceasing to be employed by that employer before he becomes entitled to be allowed a holiday by him, nevertheless become payable by the employer to the worker. [55]

(4) Any such minimum rates of wages as are mentioned in subsection (2) of this section may be fixed so as to vary according as the employment is for a day, week, month or other period, or according to the number of working hours, or the conditions of the employment, or so as to provide for a differential rate in the case of employment defined by the Board as being overtime employment, and, without prejudice to the generality of the preceding words, a minimum time rate for piece work may be fixed so as to provide for a differential rate for work done in such circumstances that, if it were time work, it would be treated as overtime for the purposes of the minimum rate applicable thereto by virtue of paragraph (a) of that subsection.

In the exercise of their powers under this subsection, the Board shall, so far as is reasonably practicable, secure a weekly half-holiday for workers. [56]

(5) The Board may, if they think it expedient, cancel or vary a minimum rate fixed or a direction as to holidays given under this section. [57]

(6) The powers conferred on the Board by this section shall be exercised by order made in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act. [58]

(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing the Board fixing or varying a minimum rate of wages so as to secure that workers employed in agriculture receive remuneration calculated by reference to periods during the currency of their employment. [59]

General note.—Sub-s. (1), supra, reproduces s. 2 (1) (in part) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 639), as amended by s. 1 (1), (5) of the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 648, 649); also s. 1 (1) (in part) of the Act of 1938.

Sub-s. (2), supra, reproduces s. 2 (1) (in part) of the Act of 1924, as amended by s. 2 (1) of the Act of 1938 and by ss. 1 (1), (5) and 4 (1) of the Act of 1947.

Sub-s. (3), supra, reproduces ss. 1 (1) (in part), (2) (as amended by s. 7 of the Act of 1947), 2 (1) (in part) and 2 (2) of the Act of 1938.

Sub-s. (4), supra, reproduces s. 2 (2) of the Act of 1924 (as amended by ss. 1 (1), (5), 12 (5) of, and Sched. III to, the Act of 1947) and ss. 2 (1) (in part) and 4 (2) of the Act of 1947.

Sub-s. (5), supra, reproduces s. 2 (5) of the Act of 1924, and s. 3 (1) (in part) of the Act of 1938, as amended by s. 1 (1), (5) of the Act of 1947.

Sub-s. (6), supra, reproduces ss. 1 (4) and 2 (1) (in part) of the Act of 1947; also s. 3 (1) (in part) of the Act of 1938, as amended by s. 1 (5) of the Act of 1947.

Sub-s. (7), supra, reproduces s. 1 (3) of the Act of 1947.

Effect.—Sub-ss. (1), (6), empower the Board by orders in accordance with Sched. IV, post: (a) to fix, for each county, minimum rates of wages for agricultural workers, and (b) to direct that any such workers shall be entitled to specified holidays. Sub-s. (2) defines the powers conferred by (a), and in one case makes it obligatory for the Board to exercise its powers, namely to fix minimum rates for time work. Sub-s. (3), which relates to holidays, forbids the making of a holiday order except where minimum rates of wages in respect of the holiday and otherwise than in respect of the holiday, are fixed for the worker, and also deals with the contents of holiday orders. Sub-s. (4) provides for flexibility in rate-fixing orders by enabling minimum rates to be fixed so as to vary according to the period or conditions of the employment or so as to provide for a differential rate for "overtime"; and sub-s. (7) is designed to enable orders to incorporate a guaranteed-week clause.

County.—This includes a combination of counties for which a single agricultural wages committee is established (s. 2 (3), ante). For definition, see s. 17 (1), post; and see also ss. 17 (2), (3), 18 and 19, post.

Orders.—Orders of the Board, which are not statutory instruments, are published in the London Gazette; copies may be obtained, free of charge, from the Secretary to the Agricultural Wages Board, Birkenhall Mansions, London, W.1.

Sub-s. (7).—The principal purpose of this subsection is to enable the Board to incorporate in any order made by them for fixing or varying minimum wage rates a guaranteed-week clause. The origin of the subsection is to be found in the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Amendment Act, 1940, s. 1 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 27), which provided that the minimum rate of wages fixed by the wages committees or, as a result of the temporary provisions of reg. 23 of the Defence (Agriculture and Fisheries) Regulations, 1939, by the Agricultural Wages Board, should be such as to secure that no man of full age employed whole time by the week or any longer period in agriculture should receive, in respect of any week, less than the national minimum wage fixed under that Act. That Act was repealed by the Act of 1947, s. 12 and Sched. III (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 655, 658), but power to make an order having a similar effect was contained in s. 1 (3) of that Act, which is re-enacted by sub-s. (7), supra. A secondary purpose of the subsection, together with para. 5 of Sched. IV, post, is to enable the Board to make provision for special circumstances, such as absence from work due to sickness, or other unavoidable cause, as to which see notes to that Schedule, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "agriculture", "employment", "employer", "employed" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), post.

4. Enforcement of wages and holidays orders.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, if an employer fails—

(a) to pay to a worker to whom an order under the last preceding section applies wages at a rate not less than the minimum rate fixed by the order; or

(b) to pay to any such worker, in respect of a holiday, wages at the times and subject to the conditions specified in the order; or

(c) to allow to any such worker the holidays fixed by the order;

he shall be liable on summary conviction in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds and, in the case of an offence consisting of a failure to pay wages in accordance with the order, to a fine not exceeding one pound for each day on which the offence is continued after conviction; and in any proceedings against an employer under this subsection in respect of a failure to pay wages at a rate not less than the minimum rate, the court shall, whether there is a conviction or not, order the employer to pay in addition to the fine, if any, such sum as may be found by the court to represent the difference between the amount which ought, at the minimum rate applicable, to have been paid to the worker by way of wages during the period of six months immediately preceding the date on which the information was laid or the complaint was served, and the amount actually so paid to him. [60]

(2) Where proceedings are brought under the preceding subsection in respect of an offence consisting of a failure to pay wages to a worker at a rate not less than the minimum rate applicable, then, if notice of intention so to do has been served with the summons, warrant or complaint—

(a) evidence may, on the employer's having been convicted of the offence, be given of any failure on the part of the employer to pay wages to that worker at not less than the minimum rate applicable to him at any time during the eighteen months immediately preceding the period of six months mentioned in the preceding subsection; and

(b) on proof of the failure, the court may order the employer to pay such sum as is found by the court to represent the difference between the amount which ought, at the minimum rate applicable, to have been paid to the worker by way of wages during the said eighteen months and the amount actually so paid to him. [61]

(3) In any proceedings against a person under this section it shall lie with him to prove that he has paid wages at not less than the minimum rate or has allowed the holidays fixed by the order, as the case may be. [62]

(4) The powers given by this section for the recovery of sums due from an employer to a worker shall not be in derogation of any right of the worker to recover such sums by civil proceedings. [63]

General note.—This section reproduces: (i) s. 7 (1)–(4), (9) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 640), as extended by s. 2 (1) of the Act of 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 818) and applied by regs. 3 and 4 of S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2025, made under s. 3 (2) of the 1938 Act; and (ii) s. 1 (5) of the Act of 1938.

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

As to the institution of proceedings by an officer appointed by the Minister, see s. 12 (4), post.

Not less than the minimum rate.—Agreements for the payment of wages at less than the minimum or for abstaining from exercising the right of enforcement provided by this section are void (s. 11 (1) (a), post). Authorised benefits and advantages may be reckoned as payment of wages (see s. 7, post).

In Seabrook & Sons, Ltd. v. Jones, [1929] 1 K. B. 335; Digest Supp., an agricultural worker employed for a fifty-hour week at a weekly wage of thirty shillings was not required, in accordance with custom, to work on Good Friday, and deductions in respect of that day were made from his weekly pay. The minimum rate of wages applicable to the worker was thirty shillings in respect of a fifty-hour week. It was held that he was entitled to receive the full thirty shillings in respect of the week which included Good Friday, although he had worked only forty-one hours that week. Wages at the minimum rate must be paid in full and in cash without deduction—other than a deduction in respect of a benefit or advantage authorised by the wages order (see s. 7 (1), post)—notwithstanding any agreement by the worker to forego such deduction or any debt owed by him to his employer (Jones v. Harris, [1927] 1 K. B. 425; 44 Digest 1301, 67). See also Williams v. Smith, [1934] 2 K. B. 158; Digest Supp. (charge for board and lodging in excess of authorised deduction made under separate contract); and Hayes v. Curtis (1928), 139 L. T. 312; 44 Digest 1302, 68 (deduction for unauthorised benefit). As to deductions from wages during sickness, see Smart v. Spencer, [1948] 2 K. B. 105 ; [1948] 1 All E. R. 749 (at page 59, post), and notes to Sched. IV, post. An agreement for a lump sum payment at the end of a fixed term equivalent to the prescribed rate is valid, and where such an agreement is made a worker who quits his employment in breach of contract is not entitled to wages at the prescribed rate in respect of the period prior to the breach (Pockney v. Atkinson, [1930] 1 K. B. 197 ; Digest Supp.).

In the case of a worker holding an incapacity permit under s. 5 (1), post, authorising the payment of wages to him at a specified rate less than the minimum rate, the amount that may be recovered from an employer in respect of the period covered by the permit is to be calculated on the basis of the rate so specified instead of on the basis of the minimum rate ; see s. 5 (6), post.

Proceedings.—As to the period within which proceedings in respect of a failure to pay wages at the full rate must be brought, see Gutsell v. Reeve, [1936] 1 K. B. 272 ; Digest Supp.

Whether there is a conviction or not.—These words will cover the dismissal of a charge under the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907, s. 1 (1) (11 Halsbury's Statutes 365). That section enables a court of summary jurisdiction when they consider a charge to be proved but that in given circumstances it is inexpedient to punish the offender or expedient to release him on probation, without proceeding to a conviction to dismiss the charge or to discharge him conditionally on his entering into recognizances. The Probation of Offenders Act, 1907, is repealed, as from a day to be appointed by Order in Council, by the Criminal Justice Act, 1948, s. 83 (3) and Sched. X, Part I (11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 58), which however, by ss. 3 and 7 substitutes a somewhat similar procedure, under which conviction precedes absolute or conditional discharge.

Burden of proof.—Sub-s. (3), supra, does not relieve the prosecution from the duty of establishing a prima facie case. In a case for failing to pay wages at a rate not less than the minimum rate, it was held that the prosecution must prove what is the minimum rate applicable and, where that rate depends on the age of the worker, must also prove his age. Not until the prosecution has made it appear that less has been paid than ought to have been paid can the onus shift to the defendant of proving that he has paid wages at not less than the minimum rate (see Jones v. Harris, [1927] 1 K. B. 425 ; 44 Digest 1301, 67).

Civil proceedings.—An authorised officer of the Minister may institute civil proceedings on behalf of the worker (s. 12 (5), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of " employer " and " worker ", see s. 17 (1), post.

5. Permits to incapacitated persons.—(1) If, on an application in that behalf, an agricultural wages committee are satisfied that a worker employed or desiring to be employed in their county on time work to which a minimum rate fixed under this Act is applicable, or on piece work to which a minimum time rate so fixed is applicable, is so affected by any physical injury or mental deficiency, or any infirmity due to age or to any other cause, that he is incapable of earning that minimum rate, the committee shall grant to him a permit exempting, as from the date of the application or from a later date specified in the permit, his employment from the provisions of the last preceding section relating to payment of wages at not less than the minimum rate, subject to such conditions as may be specified in the permit, including, if the committee think fit, a condition as to the wages to be paid to the worker, and, while the permit has effect, an employer shall not be liable to any legal proceedings under the last preceding section for failing to pay to the worker wages at a rate not less than the minimum rate if those conditions are complied with. [64]

(2) If an application for a permit under the preceding subsection is not disposed of within twenty-one days after the day on which it is received, then the employer of the worker to whom the application relates shall not be liable to any legal proceedings under the last preceding section for failing to pay to the worker wages at a rate not less than the minimum rate during the interval between the expiration of the said period and the date on which the application is ultimately disposed of. [65]

(3) Where an agricultural wages committee have granted a permit under subsection (1) of this section and at any time thereafter it appears to the committee, whether on an application under this subsection or otherwise, that the worker to whom the permit relates is no longer so affected by any such incapacity as is mentioned in the said subsection (1) as to be incapable of earning the minimum rate in question, the committee shall revoke the permit. [66]

(4) Where an agricultural wages committee have granted such a permit as aforesaid and it appears to the committee, whether on an application

under this subsection or otherwise, that, by reason of any change in minimum rates of wages or in the circumstances of the worker to whom the permit relates, it is expedient to vary any condition specified in the permit, the committee may direct that the condition shall be varied in such manner as may be specified in the direction. [67]

(5) Before revoking any permit or varying any condition under the preceding provisions of this section, an agricultural wages committee shall serve on the worker to whom the permit relates, and, in a case where the identity of his employer is known to the committee, on his employer, notice of their proposal so to do, and afford to the worker and the employer (where such a notice as aforesaid is required to be served on him) an opportunity of making representations to the committee, and no such revocation or variation as aforesaid shall take effect until notice of the revocation or variation has been served by the agricultural wages committee on the worker to whom the permit relates and, in a case where the identity of his employer is known to the committee, on his employer.

A notice under this subsection shall be duly served on a person if sent to him by post in a registered letter. [68]

(6) Where a permit granted to a worker under subsection (1) of this section contains a condition for the payment of wages to the worker at a rate not less than the rate therein specified, the amount of wages that may be recovered from an employer of the worker in pursuance of this Act shall, as respects any period during which the permit had effect, be calculated on the basis of the rate so specified instead of on the basis of the minimum rate. [69]

General note.—Sub-ss. (1) and (2), supra, reproduce s. 2 (3) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 639), as amended by s. 4 (3) of the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 653).

Sub-ss. (3)–(5), supra, reproduce sub-ss. (1)–(3) respectively, of s. 5 of the Act of 1947.

Sub-s. (6), supra, reproduces s. 7 (8) of the Act of 1924.

Effect of section.—This section enables an agricultural wages committee to grant a worker who is so incapacitated as to be incapable of earning the minimum rate of wages a permit exempting his employment from the minimum rate order. Such a permit may itself contain alternative conditions as to the wages to be paid to the worker. If an application for a permit is not disposed of within twenty-one days, no liability attaches to an employer who pays the worker at less than the minimum rate during the interval between the expiration of this period and the date when the application is ultimately disposed of. The section also contains provisions for varying and revoking permits.

The granting of permits is one of the functions conferred on wages committees by the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 638) which was not transferred to the Agricultural Wages Board by the Act of 1947.

Applications to wages committees.—The Minister of Agriculture may prescribe the procedure to be followed in connection with applications to wages committees (s. 9 (1), post).

County.—This includes a combination of counties for which an agricultural wages committee is established (s. 2 (3), ante). For definition, see s. 17 (1), post; and see also ss. 17 (2), (3), 18 and 19, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "employment", "employed", "employer" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), post.

6. Provisions as to learners.—(1) Where a minimum rate of wages has been fixed under this Act for a special class of workers defined by reference to the fact that they are in receipt of instruction in agriculture, and the order fixing the rate provides that this section shall have effect in relation thereto, the rate shall not apply in relation to a worker unless there is in force a certificate given by the agricultural wages committee for the county in which the worker is employed that they approve the terms of his employment.

A certificate under this subsection may provide that it shall be deemed to have been in force from such date not earlier than the making to the agricultural wages committee of the application for the certificate as may be specified in the certificate. [70]

(2) An agricultural wages committee in granting an application for a certificate under the preceding subsection may impose such conditions as appear to them requisite for securing that the worker to whom the application relates shall receive adequate instruction, and that the terms of his employment shall be in other respects satisfactory, and if (whether on an application under this subsection or otherwise) it appears to the committee that a condition imposed under this subsection is not being complied with, or that the terms of the worker's employment are no longer satisfactory, they may revoke the certificate. [71]

(3) An agricultural wages committee may (whether on an application under this subsection or otherwise) vary a condition imposed under the last preceding subsection. [72]

(4) Before revoking a certificate or varying a condition under the preceding provisions of this section, an agricultural wages committee shall serve on the worker to whom the certificate relates and on his employer notice of their proposal so to do, and afford to the worker and employer an opportunity of making representations to the committee, and no such revocation or variation as aforesaid shall take effect until notice of the revocation or variation has been served by the agricultural wages committee on the worker to whom the certificate relates and on his employer.

A notice under this subsection shall be duly served on a person if sent to him by post in a registered letter. [73]

(5) It shall not be lawful for the employer of a worker, being an apprentice or learner, who is employed in agriculture in a county for which an agricultural wages committee is established under this Act to receive directly or indirectly from the worker, or on his behalf or on his account, a payment by way of premium unless the payment is duly made in pursuance of an agreement approved for the purposes of this subsection by the agricultural wages committee, and the amount of a payment received in contravention of this subsection shall be recoverable by the person by whom the payment was made. [74]

(6) If an employer acts in contravention of the last preceding subsection he shall be liable on summary conviction in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, and in any proceedings against an employer under this subsection the court shall, whether there is a conviction or not, order the employer to repay any sum which the court finds to have been received by way of premium in contravention of the last preceding subsection. [75]

(7) Nothing in the last preceding subsection shall be taken to exclude the bringing otherwise than in accordance with that subsection of proceedings for the recovery of an amount due under subsection (5) of this section. [76]

(8) The Board may by order made in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act specify matters with respect to which an agricultural wages committee must be satisfied before granting a certificate under subsection (1) of this section or approving an agreement for the purposes of subsection (5) thereof. [77]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 3 (except sub-s. (7) thereof) of the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 651).

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Learners.—The reference in the heading to this section to learners is rather misleading, as the section does not apply to all persons in receipt of instruction in agriculture but only to workers in receipt of such instruction who are also in employment within the meaning given to that expression by s. 17 (1), post. That section states that "employment" means employment under a contract of service or apprenticeship and that the expressions "employed" and "employer" are to be construed accordingly. Hence it follows that the section does not apply to persons in receipt of instruction in agriculture who are not under such a contract, and the giving of a premium in such a case is not affected by the section. Persons in receipt of vocational training on farms under the provisions of the Disabled Persons (Employment) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 346), are also outside the scope of the section, since they too are not under contracts of service.

Special class of workers.—Power to fix a minimum rate of wages for special classes of workers is conferred by s. 3 (6), ante, and Sched. IV, para. 5, post.

Order.—No order applying this section had been made at the date of going to press.

Applications.—The Minister of Agriculture may prescribe the procedure to be followed in connection with applications to wages committees (s. 9 (1), post).

Sub-ss. (5) and (6).—Very similar provisions to those made by these subsections in regard to payment of premiums by or on behalf of apprentices or learners employed in agriculture are made by the Wages Councils Act, 1945, s. 14 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 468), in regard to apprentices and learners to whom a wage regulation order under that Act applies.

Proceedings.—As to the institution of proceedings by an officer appointed by the Minister, see s. 12 (4), post. A duly authorised officer of the Minister may institute civil proceedings on the worker's behalf for the recovery of any sum due on account of the wrongful taking of a premium (s. 12 (5), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "agriculture", "employment", "employed", "employer" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), post.

7. Reckoning of benefits and advantages as payment of wages.—(1) The Board shall have power, for each county for which an agricultural wages committee is established under this Act, by order made in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act—

(a) to define the benefits or advantages (not being benefits or advantages prohibited by law) which for the purposes of a minimum rate of wages fixed under this Act may be reckoned as payment of wages in lieu of payment in cash;

(b) to determine the value at which, for the purposes aforesaid, such benefits or advantages may be so reckoned;

(c) to limit or prohibit the reckoning for the purposes aforesaid of benefits or advantages as payment of wages in lieu of payment in cash. [78]

(2) Subject to the provisions of any order under the preceding subsection, the court may, in any proceedings under this Act, reckon as a payment of wages such amount as in the opinion of the court represents the value of any benefits or advantages (not being benefits or advantages prohibited by law) received by a worker under the terms of his employment. [79]

(3) If an agricultural wages committee are satisfied, on an application in that behalf made by a worker employed in agriculture in their county or by his employer, that the value determined by an order or direction under this section for a house or part of a house occupied as a separate dwelling by the worker does not correspond with the true value thereof, the committee may, subject to any limits imposed by the Board by order made in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act, direct that the value of the house or part of a house is to be reckoned for the purposes of a minimum rate of wages fixed under this Act at such different amount as may be specified in the direction. [80]

General note.—Sub-ss. (1) and (3), supra, reproduce sub-ss. (1) (in part) and (2) of s. 2 of the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 650); sub-s. (2), supra, reproduces s. 7 (11) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 642).

It was originally the duty of wages committees, when so required by regulations, to perform the functions which the Board are empowered to perform under sub-s. (1), supra; see s. 8 (1) (a) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 131). The said s. 8 (1) (a) was repealed by s. 12 (5) of, and Sched. III to, the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 655, 658) and replaced by s. 2 (1) thereof (now sub-s. (1), supra), as part of the general transfer of functions from wages committees to the Board which that Act effected.

County.—This includes a combination of counties for which a single agricultural wages committee is established (s. 2 (3), ante). For definition, see s. 17 (1), post; and see, also, ss. 17 (2), (3), 18 and 19, post.

Proceedings under this Act.—See s. 4, ante.

Benefits and advantages reckoned as payment of wages.—For judicial decisions regarding the benefits and advantages which may be reckoned as payment of wages, see cases cited in notes to s. 4, ante. See also Williams v. Hughes, infra.

Received by the worker.—Unless the benefit or advantage is received by the worker it is not deductible from his wages. The provision of lodgings for a worker which he did not agree to avail himself of, or in fact use, is not a benefit or advantage received by the worker (Williams v. Hughes, [1936] 1 All E. R. 674; Digest Supp.).

Applications to agricultural wages committees.—The Minister of Agriculture may prescribe the procedure to be followed in connection with applications to wages committees (s. 9 (1), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "agriculture", "employment" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), post.

8. Power of agricultural wages committee to award additional wages for piece work in certain cases.—(1) A worker employed in agriculture in a county on piece work for which neither a minimum piece rate nor a minimum time rate applicable in the case of workers employed on piece work has been fixed, or any person authorised by such a worker, may complain to the agricultural wages committee for the county that the piece rate of wages paid to the worker for that work is such a rate as would yield in the circumstances of the case to an ordinary worker a less amount of wages than the minimum rate for time work applicable in the case of that worker, and the committee may, on any such complaint, after giving the employer an opportunity of making such representations as he thinks desirable, direct that the employer shall pay to the worker such additional sum by way of wages for any piece work done by him at that piece rate at any time within fourteen days before the date of complaint, or at any time after the date of complaint and before the decision of the committee thereon, as in their opinion represents the difference between the amount which would have been paid if the work had been done by an ordinary worker at the minimum rate for time work and the amount actually received by the worker by whom or on whose behalf the complaint is made. [81]

(2) A sum directed under the preceding subsection to be paid by an employer to a worker may be recovered by or on behalf of the worker from the employer summarily as a civil debt. [82]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 4 of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 640), as amended by s. 4 (4) of the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 653).

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

This section deals with one of the powers conferred on agricultural wages committees by the Act of 1924, which were not transferred by the Act of 1947 to the Agriculture Wages Board.

County.—This includes a combination of counties for which a single agricultural wages committee is established (s. 2 (3), ante). For definition, see s. 17 (1), post; and see, also, ss. 17 (2), (3), 18 and 19, post.

Minimum piece rate; minimum time rate applicable to piece workers.—As to the power of the Board to fix (i) minimum rates for piece work, and (ii) minimum rates for time work to apply in the case of workers employed on piece work for the purpose of securing to such workers a minimum rate of remuneration on a time work basis, see s. 3 (2), ante. It should be noted that the fixing of these rates is optional, unlike the minimum rate for time work which the Board must fix.

Complaint.—The Minister of Agriculture may prescribe the procedure to be followed in connection with a complaint under this section; see s. 9 (1), infra, and may appoint officers to investigate complaints; see s. 12 (1), post.

Summarily as a civil debt.—See the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, ss. 6, 35 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 325, 342), and Stone's Justice's Manual (80th Edn.), pp. 62 et seq. An authorised officer of the Minister may institute proceedings on behalf of a worker (s. 12 (5), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "agriculture", "employer", "employed" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), post.

9. Provisions as to applications, etc., to agricultural wages committees.—(1) The procedure to be followed on or in connection with applications and complaints under any of the four last preceding sections to agricultural wages committees and sub-committees thereof shall be such (if any) as may be prescribed. [83]

(2) The Minister may pay to persons attending as parties or witnesses before agricultural wages committees and sub-committees thereof allowances by way of compensation for expenses incurred and time lost by such persons in so attending, at such rates as he may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine, and all payments made under this subsection shall be defrayed as part of the expenses of the Minister in carrying this Act into effect. [84]

General note.—Sub-s. (1), supra, reproduces s. 8 (1) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 642) as repealed in part by ss. 2 (3), 12 (5) of, and Sched. III to, the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 650, 655, 658). Sub-s. (2), supra, reproduces s. 9 (2) of the 1947 Act.

Complaints.—The Minister may appoint officers to investigate complaints (s. 12 (1), post).

Sub-committees.—As to the power of agricultural wages committees to appoint sub-committees, see Sched. III, para. 7, post.

Expenses.—As to the defrayal of the Minister's expenses in carrying the Act into effect, see s. 14, post.

Definition.—For definition of "prescribed", see s. 17 (1), post.

10. Criminal liability of agents and special defence open to employer.—(1) Where an offence for which an employer is, under section four or subsection (6) of section six of this Act liable to a fine, has in fact been committed by some agent of the employer or other person, that agent or other person shall be liable to be proceeded against for the offence in the same manner as if he were the employer and either together with, or before or after the conviction of, the employer, and shall be liable on conviction to the same punishment as that to which the employer is liable. [85]

(2) Where an employer who is charged with an offence under section four or subsection (6) of section six of this Act proves to the satisfaction of the court that he has used due diligence to secure compliance with the relevant provisions of this Act, and that the offence was in fact committed by his agent or some other person, without his knowledge, consent or connivance, he shall, in the event of the conviction of that agent or other person for the offence, be exempt from any conviction in respect of the offence. [86]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 7 (5), (6) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 641) as applied by: (i) regulations under s. 3 (2) of the Act of 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 818), and (ii) s. 3 (7) of, and Sched. II, Part I, paras. 1 and 2 to, the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 652, 657).

Definition.—For definition of "employer", see s. 17 (1), post.

11. Avoidance of agreements in contravention of this Act and saving for other agreements, etc.—(1) Any such agreement as the following shall be void, that is to say—

(a) an agreement for the payment of wages in contravention of this Act, or for abstaining from exercising a right of enforcing the payment of wages in accordance with this Act;

(b) an agreement as to holidays that is inconsistent with a direction of the Board in that behalf, or for abstaining from exercising the right to holidays conferred by any such direction. [87]

(2) Nothing in this Act shall prejudice the operation of an agreement or custom for the payment of wages at a rate higher than the minimum rate fixed under this Act or an agreement or custom as to holidays that is not inconsistent with a direction of the Board in that behalf. [88]

General note.—Sub-s. (1), supra, reproduces s. 7 (10) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 642), and sub-s. (2), supra, reproduces s. 14 thereof (as extended by s. 2 (1) of the Act of 1938), as applied by regs. 5 and 7 respectively of S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2025, made under s. 3 (2) of the latter Act (31 Halsbury's Statutes 818).

Agreement for payment of wages in contravention of this Act.—In Smart v. Spencer, [1948] 2 K. B. 105; [1948] 1 All E. R. 749 (see page 59, post), it was held that the object of the Act was to fix a minimum wage to be paid for work done, and, where the worker was employed by the week, the machinery set up by the Act fixed the minimum wage he was to receive for a week in which he worked, but the Act did not deal with a period of a week or longer in which the worker did no work, and, therefore, sub-s. (1) (a), supra, did not render void an agreement whereby the worker was to receive no wages, or part only of his wages, for such a period when he was away from work through illness. But quaere whether an agreement for deductions from wages in respect of absence for odd days in a week is permissible. See notes to Sched. IV, post. See, also, cases cited in notes to s. 4, ante.

Supplementary

12. Officers.—(1) The Minister may, subject to the consent of the Treasury as to number, appoint such officers as he thinks necessary for the purpose of investigating complaints and otherwise securing the proper observance of this Act. [89]

(2) Every officer appointed under this section shall be furnished by the Minister with a certificate of his employment, and when acting under or exercising any power conferred upon him by this Act shall, if so required, produce the certificate to any person or persons affected. [90]

(3) An officer so appointed shall have power—

(a) after giving reasonable notice, to require the production of and to inspect and take copies of wages sheets or other records of wages paid to workers employed in agriculture;

(b) to enter at all reasonable times any premises or place for the purpose of such inspection or for the enforcement of this Act, but in the case of a dwelling-house not without giving reasonable notice; and

(c) to require any such worker, or the employer of any such worker, or any agent of the employer, to give any information which it is in his power to give with respect to the employment of the worker or the wages paid to him. [91]

(4) An officer so appointed shall have power, in pursuance of any special or general directions of the Minister, to take proceedings in respect of offences against this Act and may, although not a barrister or solicitor, prosecute or conduct before a court of summary jurisdiction any proceedings arising under this Act. [92]

(5) Where it appears to an officer so appointed—

(a) that a sum is due from an employer to a worker on account of the payment of wages to him at less than the minimum rate applicable or by reason of a direction given under subsection (1) of section eight of this Act by an agricultural wages committee for the payment of an additional sum by way of wages for piece work; or

(b) that a sum is due from an employer on account of the receipt of a premium in contravention of subsection (5) of section six of this Act;

the officer (if he is authorised in that behalf by special or general directions of the Minister) may institute, on behalf of or in the name of the worker, civil proceedings before any competent court of jurisdiction for the recovery of the sum in question, and in any such civil proceedings instituted by the officer the court shall, if the officer is not a party to the proceedings, have the same power to make an order for the payment of costs by the officer as if he were a party to the proceedings. [93]

(6) Nothing in the last preceding subsection shall be taken to exclude the bringing otherwise than in accordance with that subsection of proceedings for the recovery of any such sum as is therein mentioned. [94]

(7) If any person—

(a) hinders or molests an officer acting in the exercise of his powers under subsection (3) of this section; or

(b) refuses to produce any document or give any information which an officer so acting lawfully requires him to produce or give; or

(c) produces or causes to be produced or knowingly allows to be produced to an officer so acting any wages sheet, record or other document which is false in a material particular, knowing the document to be false; or

(d) furnishes to an officer so acting any information knowing it to be false, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or to both such fine and such imprisonment. [95]

General note.—Sub-ss. (1)–(4) and (7), supra, reproduce ss. 9 and 10 of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 643, 644), as applied by regulations under s. 3 (2) of the Act of 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 819).

Sub-s. (5), supra, reproduces s. 7 (7) of the Act of 1924, as extended by s. 2 (1) of the Act of 1938, and applied by s. 3 (7) of, and Sched. II, Part I, para. 3 to, the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 652, 657).

Sub-s. (6), supra, reproduces s. 7 (9) of the Act of 1924 and s. 3 (8) of the Act of 1947.

General effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Complaints.—The Minister may prescribe the procedure to be followed in connection with complaints (s. 9 (1), ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of "agriculture", "employer", "employment" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), post.

13. Annual reports.—The Minister shall make an annual report to Parliament of his proceedings under this Act and of the proceedings of the Board and of agricultural wages committees, and for that purpose the Board and each committee shall, before such date in every year as the Minister may fix, send to the Minister a report of their proceedings under this Act during the preceding year. [96]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 12 of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 644), as applied by regulations under s. 3 (2) of the Act of 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 819).

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries (s. 17 (1), post).

Powers of the Minister.—When the fixing of minimum wage rates was done by agricultural wages committees the Minister had wider powers of supervising the operation of the Act. Under s. 6 of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 130) he was empowered to direct a committee to reconsider any minimum rate which they had fixed, and under s. 8 (1) (a), (b) thereof could make regulations requiring committees to define and evaluate the benefits and advantages to be reckoned as payment of wages and to define "overtime." These provisions were repealed on the transfer of the rate-fixing functions of the wages committees to the Agricultural Wages Board by s. 12 (5) of, and Sched. III to, the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 655, 658), and the Minister now has no power to require the Board to reconsider any minimum wage rate fixed by them, and the Board exercise their powers with regard to benefits and advantages and "overtime" at their discretion (see ss. 3 (4), 7, ante).

14. Expenses.—The expenses of the Minister in carrying this Act into effect and any expenses authorised by the Minister to be incurred by the Board or an agricultural wages committee or sub-committee thereof, in each case up to an amount approved by the Treasury, shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [97]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 11 (in part) of the Act of 1924, as amended by ss. 9 (1), 12 (5) of, and Sched. III. to, the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 644).

S. 11 of the Act of 1924 as originally enacted limited the expenses which might be defrayed under the section, to £70,000. This limitation was removed by s. 9 (1) of the Act of 1947, thereby assimilating the position as to administrative expenses in England and Wales with that in Scotland under the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) (Scotland) Act, 1937 (1 Edw. 8 & 1 Geo. 6, c. 53).

The maximum amount of £70,000 in one year was never spent, but the Minister of Agriculture stated in committee on the 1947 Bill that such a limitation was a very unusual thing for Parliament to impose, and he did not think it desirable that there should be a difference in regard to the matter between the two countries (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.A., December 17, 1946, col. 154).

Sub-committees.—As to the power of agricultural wages committees to appoint sub-committees, see Sched. III, para. 7, post.

15. Evidence of resolutions and orders of the Board and agricultural wages committees.—In any legal proceedings the production of a document purporting to be a copy of a resolution or order passed or made by the Board or an agricultural wages committee and to be certified by the chairman or secretary of the Board or committee, as the case may be, to be a true copy shall be sufficient evidence of the order or resolution and, in the case of an order, that any notices required to be given by this Act in relation thereto have been duly given, and no proof shall be required of the handwriting or official position of the person certifying the truth of the copy. [98]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 13 of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 644).

16. Power to give effect to, and modify, this Act as respects holidays and holiday remuneration.—(1) The Minister may make regulations for giving effect to the purposes of, and modifying, this Act so far as it relates to holidays and minimum rates of wages by way of pay in respect of holidays, and for excluding, in relation to those matters or either of them, the operation of all or any of the provisions of sections four and ten to thirteen of this Act and paragraph 5 of the Fourth Schedule thereto. [99]

(2) The power conferred by this section shall be exercisable by statutory instrument which shall be subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament. [100]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 3 (1), (2) of the Act of 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 818), as amended by s. 1 (5) of the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 649).

Statutory instrument.—As to statutory instruments generally, see the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 783), which Act came fully into force on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3). For the provisions of the Act relating to statutory instruments which are subject to annulment by resolution of either House of Parliament, see s. 5 thereof.

(3) For the purposes of this Act, a county borough which is surrounded by a county shall be deemed to be included in that county, and a county borough which adjoins two or more counties shall be deemed to be included in such of those counties as the Minister by statutory instrument directs. [103]

(4) The Minister may by statutory instrument direct that, for the purposes of this Act, the area comprising the urban districts of Grange, Ulverston and Dalton-in-Furness and the rural district of Ulverston shall be treated as not forming part of the county of Lancaster but as forming part of the county of Cumberland or the county of Westmorland according as may be specified in the direction. Cumberland and Westmorland.—Cumberland and Westmorland form one of the combinations of counties for which a single agricultural wages committee is to be established in the first instance (see s. 2 (1), proviso (a), ante, and Sched. II, post).

18. London.—No agricultural wages committee shall be established for the county of London, but such portions of that county as the Minister may by order made by statutory instrument define shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be included in such other counties as may be specified in the order. [105]

(2) Nothing in this Act shall affect any order, regulation or complaint made, permit granted, resolution passed, direction, certificate or approval given, application made or granted, notice served or given, date fixed or any other thing done, under an enactment repealed by this Act, but any such order, regulation, complaint, permit, resolution, direction, certificate, approval, application, notice, date or thing shall, if in force at the passing of this Act, continue in force, and so far as it could have been made, granted, passed, given, served, fixed or done under the corresponding provision of this Act, it shall have effect as if it had been made, granted, passed, given, served, fixed or done under that corresponding provision and, in the case of an approval, had been given for the purposes of that provision. [108]

(3) Any document referring to an enactment repealed by this Act shall be construed as referring to the corresponding provision of this Act. [109]

(4) Any person holding office or acting or serving under or by virtue of an enactment repealed by this Act shall continue to hold his office or to act or serve as if he had been appointed or authorised under or by virtue of the corresponding provision of this Act. [110]

(5) Where an offence, being an offence for the continuance of which a penalty was provided, has been committed under an enactment repealed by this Act, proceedings may be taken under this Act in respect of the continuance of the offence in the same manner as if the offence had been committed under the corresponding provision of this Act. [111]

(6) Where an enactment repealed and re-enacted by this Act provides for the doing of some act within, or not earlier than the expiration of, a specified period from the giving of a notice, and the commencement of this Act falls within the period applicable to the giving of a particular notice, the repeal and re-enactment shall be deemed to have taken effect in relation to that notice immediately before the giving thereof. [112]

(7) The mention of particular matters in this section shall not be taken to affect the general application of section thirty-eight of the Interpretation Act, 1889, with regard to the effect of repeals. [113]

Effect of section.—This section repeals (so far only as England and Wales are concerned; see s. 21 (2), post) the enactments consolidated by this Act, namely the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Acts, 1924 and 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 638, 648) and the Holidays with Pay Act, 1938, ss. 1–3, 5, so far as they relate to workers employed in agriculture (31 Halsbury's Statutes 817–819), and provides, for the purpose of securing uninterrupted continuity of the law, that orders, regulations, appointments, legal proceedings, etc., made or taken under the repealed enactments shall have effect as if made or taken under the corresponding provision of this Act.

Passing of this Act.—July 13, 1948.

Sections 3, 6, 7, 16 FOURTH SCHEDULE

ORDERS OF THE AGRICULTURAL WAGES BOARD

1. Where the Board propose to make an order under any provision of this Act, the Board shall—

(a) give, in such manner as appears to the Board requisite for informing persons concerned, public notice of the proposed order and of the manner in which and the time (not being less than fourteen days from the date of the notice) within which objections to the proposals may be lodged ;

(b) serve a like notice by post on the agricultural wages committee for the county to which the order relates ; and shall consider any objections to the proposals which may be lodged in accordance with the notice.

2. After considering any such objections the Board may make an order in accordance with their original proposals or with those proposals as modified in such manner as appears to the Board expedient having regard to any objections lodged :

Provided that where it appears to the Board that, having regard to the nature of any modifications which they propose to make in their original proposals, opportunity should be given for the consideration thereof by persons concerned, the Board shall again give and serve notice under the preceding paragraph, and this paragraph shall apply accordingly.

3. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing paragraphs of this Schedule, where the Board are satisfied that on the ground of the limited application of a proposed order it is unnecessary to comply with the provisions of those paragraphs and certify accordingly, the Board may, instead of complying with those provisions, give notice of the proposed order in such manner as appears to the Board expedient in the circumstances, and may make the order at any time after the expiration of seven days from the giving of the notice.

4. As soon as may be after the Board have made an order under any provision of this Act they shall give public notice of the making of the order and of the contents thereof in such manner as appears to the Board requisite for informing persons concerned, and serve a like notice by post on the agricultural wages committee for the county to which the order relates.

5. An order of the Board under any provision of this Act may apply either universally to all workers employed in agriculture in the county to which the order relates or to any special class of workers (as defined in the order) so employed, or to any special area in that county or to any such special class in such a special area, subject in each case to any exceptions specified in the order ; and an order of the Board fixing or varying a minimum rate of wages so as to secure that workers employed in agriculture receive remuneration calculated by reference to periods during the currency of their employment may make alternative provisions applying according to different circumstances arising during the currency of a worker's employment or in connection with the termination thereof.

6. Without prejudice to the provisions of this Act as to the cancellation and variation of minimum rates of wages and directions as to holidays, an order of the Board made under any provision of this Act may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order made in the like manner and subject to the like conditions. [119]

General note.—This Schedule reproduces Sched. I to the Act of 1947 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 656) as applied by : (i) s. 3 (1) of the Act of 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 818), as amended by s. 1 (5) of the Act of 1947, and (ii) reg. 8 of S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2025, made under s. 3 (2) of the Act of 1938. Para. 5, supra, in addition, replaces a definition contained in s. 16 (1) of the Act of 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 645).

Effect of Schedule.—This Schedule sets out provisions governing the making of Agricultural Wages Board orders (see ss. 3 (6), 6 (8), 7 (1), ante).

County.—This includes a combination of counties for which a single agricultural wages committee is established (s. 2 (3), ante). For definition, see s. 17 (1), ante ; and see, also, ss. 17 (2), (3), 18 and 19, ante.

Orders.—Orders of the Board, which are not statutory instruments, are published in the London Gazette. Copies may be obtained, free of charge, from the Secretary to the Agricultural Wages Board, Birkenhall Mansions, London, W.1.

Special class of workers.—Orders applicable to special classes of workers have been made in the case of workers from Volunteer Agricultural Camps, workers between the ages of fourteen and nineteen organised in teams or parties under approved arrangements with schools and other youth institutions, inexperienced workers and foreign students.

Remuneration calculated by reference to periods during the currency of employment.—See s. 3 (7), ante, and notes thereto.

Para. 5, supra, enlarges the power conferred by s. 3 (7), ante, of fixing a minimum rate so as to secure that agricultural workers receive remuneration calculated by reference to periods during the currency of their employment (i.e. calculated on the basis of a guaranteed week or other period), to allow for alternative provisions being made to cover different circumstances arising during a worker's employment or in connection with the termination thereof. The intention behind these words, which were introduced by the Act of 1947, Sched. I, para. 5 (1 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 656) is that special provision may be made regulating the position as to the payment of wages to workers who are absent from work on account of illness or other unavoidable cause. Prior to the 1947 Act difficulties had been experienced by farmers owing to the obscurity of the law with regard to the deductions which might be made where a worker was sick (see Smart v. Spencer, [1948] 2 K. B. 105 ; [1948] 1 All E. R. 749 (see page 59, post), in which a worker was held to be disentitled to wages in respect of eight months' absence due to illness, and in which case the Judge observed that had the worker's absence been not for complete weeks but for odd days within a week, his decision might have been otherwise). In many cases of absence through sickness, when neither the employer nor the worker desired to terminate the employment, the employer was compelled to give the worker notice rather than risk being liable to continue to pay the full minimum wage. S. 3 (7), ante, as enlarged by para. 5, supra, enables these difficulties to be circumvented by empowering the Board to reduce an employer's liability in regard to the payment of wages or make other suitable provision where a worker is unavoidably absent.

Definitions.—For definitions of "agriculture", "employed", "employment" and "worker", see s. 17 (1), ante.

Persons to whom Goods or Services may be supplied

4. Subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (2) of paragraph 9 hereof, goods and services may be supplied by the Minister or the Committee in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme to occupiers and managers only of agricultural land :

Provided that :—

(1) Goods may be supplied as aforesaid to occupiers of agricultural land only if the Minister or the Committee is satisfied that such an occupier is unable to purchase the said goods through normal trade channels, for cash or on credit ; and

(2) the goods and services which may be supplied as aforesaid to managers of agricultural land shall be limited to :

(a) Goods : drainage pipes and tiles required in connection with a scheme of farm drainage approved by or on behalf of the Minister ; and

(b) Services : any services required in connection with schemes of farm drainage approved as aforesaid and the services mentioned in sub-paragraph (6) of paragraph 5 hereof in connection with schemes of farm water supplies approved as aforesaid.

(3) For the purposes of the two preceding sub-paragraphs, an owner-occupier of agricultural land shall be treated as an occupier of such land, but shall be entitled also as a manager of such land to be supplied with the goods and services appropriate to managers of such land as aforesaid. [124]

Kinds of Goods and Services that may be supplied under the Scheme

5.—(1) Goods : Except as mentioned in sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph, all goods required for agricultural production during the period of five years commencing on 1st October, 1947, may be supplied by the Minister or the Committee under this Scheme.

(2) The provisions of this Scheme relating to goods shall not extend to :—

(a) Livestock, otherwise than in replacement of stock lost through abnormal weather conditions, or in such other special circumstances as may be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury ;

(b) Permanent works, buildings or installations, or components or accessories of such permanent works, buildings or installations, other than drainage tiles or pipes ;

(c) Cash, or payment for any goods ordered by an occupier or manager direct, through normal trade channels.

(3) All goods supplied under this Scheme shall be ordered by the Minister or the Committee, or in the case of drainage pipes or tiles, shall be ordered by or supplied from stocks in the possession of the Minister or the Committee.

(4) Short-term Services : All such short-term services as relate to agricultural production may be supplied by the Minister or the Committee under this Scheme, including ploughing, cultivating, harrowing, manure distributing, drilling, harvesting, threshing, bracken cutting, spraying and general farm work, including also the supply of labour and the provision of accommodation for farm workers.

(5) Agricultural machinery may be hired to occupiers of agricultural land in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme, at approved hiring rates.

(6) Long-term Services : All such long-term services as relate to agricultural production may be supplied by the Minister or the Committee under this Scheme, including bush clearing, mending of field walls, farm drainage, farm ditching, and other like works of improvement, together with ploughing and other operations required for reclaiming derelict land ; and including also excavating, trenching and backfilling in connection with farm water supplies. [125]

Procedure for obtaining Goods or Services

6.—(1) Any eligible person requiring goods or services shall sign a contract with the Minister or the Committee before the goods or services are supplied, undertaking to make repayment according to the terms of the contract. In the case of services, the cost shall be based on the rates normally charged by local contractors, and, in the case of goods, on suppliers' quotations less any discount for cash that the Minister or Committee may be able to obtain ; provided that in the absence of local contractors' rates for services, the Minister or the Committee shall make what appears to them to be a fair and reasonable charge for the services rendered.

(2) Application for goods and services shall be made in writing, but the Minister and the Committee may refuse any application at their discretion or (in the case of the Committee) after reference to the Ministry. Where an application is made by an occupier, enquiries may be made as to his financial position, and his efficiency as a farmer. [126]

Conditions of Repayment

7.—(1) The cost of any goods supplied, including the cost of carriage, shall be repaid within a period (not exceeding three years) agreed between the occupier or manager and the Minister or the Committee. Simple interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum shall be payable on any amount outstanding from the time the Minister or the Committee pay the suppliers the cost of the goods ordered. The Minister may, in special circumstances and with the approval of the Treasury, vary the terms of credit allowed ; and in the case of the replacement of livestock lost as a result of abnormal weather conditions in the year 1947, the rate of interest shall be reduced to $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum.

(2) The cost of short-term services shall be repaid within one month after the date of invoice, which date shall not be earlier than the completion of the work. A discount of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. may be allowed if payment is made within one month after the date of invoice. In consideration of any extension of credit, an interest charge of 5 per cent. per annum may be made at any time on any balance of account which is not paid within six months after the date of invoice.

(3) The cost of long-term services shall be repaid by instalments, together with simple interest on any outstanding balance of account at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. The period over which such instalments are payable shall be fixed by the Minister or the Committee according to the nature of the work, but shall not exceed three years. Interest shall be calculated from date of demand made after completion of the work. The cost of long-term services may be paid in a lump sum after completion of the work, if the occupier or manager so prefers. [127]

Methods of Securing Repayment

8.—(1) The occupier or manager obtaining goods under this Scheme shall not forfeit any grants or subsidies that may be payable to him by the Ministry, but shall be required to agree to the retention by the Ministry of the whole or part of such grants or subsidies in satisfaction of any account for goods or services outstanding against him. The Ministry shall exercise this right of retention with due consideration of the occupier's or manager's requirements for ready cash, and of the circumstances in which the debt was incurred.

(2) In the case of default the Minister or the Committee may proceed to secure repayment by all appropriate means, subject to due consideration of any special circumstances.

(3) The Minister may in his discretion sue for recovery of any debt due to the Committee, or may direct the Committee to sue. [128]

Miscellaneous

9.—(1) The Minister, or the Committee acting under the direction of the Minister, may acquire and hold stocks of drainage pipes or tiles with a view to supplying such pipes or tiles to occupiers and managers in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme.

(2) The Minister or the Committee may enter into agreements with agricultural machinery contractors for hiring machinery to such contractors, so that the contractors may in turn carry out services for the benefit of occupiers and managers of agricultural land, being services which the Minister or the Committee are empowered under this Scheme to render direct to such occupiers or managers. In such cases, the rates of charge and conditions of repayment pertaining to the services as aforesaid shall be such as may be agreed between the contractor on the one hand and the occupier or manager on the other.

(3) The Minister or the Committee may enter into agreements with agricultural machinery contractors, drainage contractors, or civil engineering contractors, for the purpose of jointly or in combination supplying services to occupiers and managers of agricultural land, being services which the Minister or the Committee are empowered under this Scheme to render to such occupiers or managers. Such agreements shall embody such terms and conditions as may be agreed between the Minister or the Committee on the one hand, and the said contractors on the other. In any such case, the Minister or the Committee shall be a party to any contract made with the occupier or manager, and the terms of any such contract shall conform to paragraphs 6, 7 and 8 of this Scheme, so far as the circumstances of the case will allow. [129]

Directions to the Committee by the Minister

10. The Committee, in addition to performing any functions which under this Scheme it may be required or authorised to perform, shall do such things as the Minister may from time to time direct for the purpose of giving effect to this Scheme. [130]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Scheme, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

1. The Agricultural Goods and Services Scheme in England and Wales has hitherto depended on a general statutory authority (Section 25 (1) of the Agriculture (Miscellaneous War Provisions) Act, 1940) expiring on 31*st December,* 1947. Authority is given to the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries by Section 103 of the Agriculture Act, 1947, for the continuation of the supply of goods and services to persons managing or farming agricultural land, subject to the making of an Order, with the approval of the Treasury, to be laid before Parliament forthwith after being made.

2. This Scheme, which is made with the approval of the Treasury under the above-mentioned authority, provides for the continuation of the expiring scheme in substantially the form in which it has operated in recent years; but opportunity has been taken to clarify certain matters and to remove some minor administrative anomalies. The objects of the Scheme remain as before; to promote efficiency in agriculture and facilitate food production.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

With the bringing into force of Part V of the Agriculture Act, 1947, the County War Agricultural Executive Committees, which were established by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries early in the war for the performance of various functions relating to agriculture, are to be replaced by the County Agricultural Executive Committees established by the Minister under the provisions of that Part of the Act. In order to secure continuity, it is necessary that, at any rate for the time being, the functions of the "War Committees" under some existing Orders, whether made in pursuance of Defence Regulations or otherwise, should continue to be exercised by the new "County Committees". The present Order, therefore, amends the existing Orders specified in the Schedule by substituting the "County Committees" for the "War Committees" mentioned therein.

This Order came into operation on 16th February, 1948, the date on which the County Agricultural Executive Committees came into being.

INJURIOUS WEEDS (DELEGATION TO COUNTY BOROUGH COUNCILS) ORDER, 1948

S.I. 1948 No. 1135

May 31, 1948

Whereas under the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921, all powers conferred by the Corn Production Acts, 1917 and 1920, with respect to the destruction of injurious weeds continue to be exerciseable as if such of the provisions of the said last mentioned Acts as are specified in the Schedule to the said Act of 1921 had not been repealed but were continued in force as set out with the necessary modifications in the said Schedule :

And Whereas under paragraph (6) of the said Schedule, as amended by subsection (2) of section seventy-six of the Agriculture Act, 1947, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries (hereinafter called " the Minister ") may authorise the Council of any county or borough to exercise on behalf of the Minister any of the powers of the Minister under the said Schedule.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the powers hereinbefore recited and every other power enabling him in that behalf, the Minister hereby makes the following Order :

1. The Council of any county borough may on behalf of the Minister and at the expense of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, but subject to such directions as to approval of expenditure or otherwise as may from time to time be given by the Minister, exercise within the county borough in respect of land which is not agricultural land within the meaning of the Agriculture Act, 1947, the powers of the Minister exerciseable under the provisions set out in the Schedule to the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921, provided that nothing in this Order shall be construed as authorising the institution of proceedings for an offence under the said Schedule aforementioned, without the previous consent of the Minister. [158]

2.—(1) This Order may be cited as the Injurious Weeds (Delegation to County Borough Councils) Order, 1948, and shall come into operation on the 14th day of June, 1948.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [159]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order delegates to County Borough Councils the powers of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries under the Schedule to the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921, to serve notices upon occupiers of non-agricultural land in their areas requiring the cutting down or destruction of the weeds specified therein, to execute any such work where the person served is in default, and to recover the cost thereof.

The powers were previously, by the Agricultural Committees (Injurious Weeds) Order, 1921 (S. R. & O., 1926, No. 1498) delegated to the Agricultural Committees of Counties and County Boroughs ; but such Committees were abolished by the Agriculture Act, 1947.

CASES

Agriculture—Agricultural worker—Wages—Illness—Agreement that no wages be paid while worker away through illness—Validity—Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Act, 1924 (c. 37), s. 7 (1), (10); s. 8 (1) (a).

The contract of service between an employer and an agricultural worker contained a term that no wages should be paid for a period when the workman was away through illness. The worker was away through illness for eight months, but during that time he was allowed by the employer to continue to occupy a cottage rent free and his employment was not terminated. The worker claimed pay for the period that he was away ill and contended that the term of the contract that no wages were payable during illness was void under the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Act, 1924, s. 7 (10), which provides: " Any agreement for the payment of wages in contravention of this Act, or for abstaining to exercise any right of enforcing the payment in accordance with this Act, shall be void ":—

Held: (i) the object of the Act of 1924 was to fix a minimum wage to be paid for work done, and, where the worker was employed by the week, the machinery set up by the Act fixed the minimum wage he was to receive for a week in which he worked, but the Act did not deal with a period of a week or longer in which the worker did no work, and, therefore, s. 7 (10) did not render void an agreement whereby the worker was to receive no wages, or part only of his wages, for a period when he was away from work through illness.

Seabrook & Sons, Ltd. v. Jones, [1929] 1 K. B. 335, distinguished.

(ii) the fact that under s. 8 (1) (a) of the Act and the Northamptonshire and Soke of Peterborough Agricultural Wages Order, dated January 19, 1942, made thereunder, the benefit of occupying a cottage rent free " may be reckoned as payment of wages " for the purpose of the minimum wage would not necessarily make it wages in other contexts.—SMART v. SPENCER, [1948] 2 K. By virtue of reg. 66 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries delegated to a county war agricultural committee his powers, under reg. 62 (1), to give " directions with respect to the cultivation, management or use of land for agricultural purposes." The committee decided that eight acres of sugar beet should be grown by the occupiers of certain land, but left to its executive officer the selection of the field, which was required by the regulation to be specified in the notice to the occupier. The officer consulted a local sub-committee, appointed to make recommendations to the committee, and served a notice on the occupiers specifying the field to be so cultivated:—

Held: on the principle of delegatus non potest delegare, the committee could not delegate the power to determine the land to be cultivated to its officer, and, therefore, the notice was ineffective and non-compliance with it was not an offence.—ALLINGHAM v. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES, [1948] 1 All E. An Act to make further provision with respect to the Defence Regulations continued in force by the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, and with respect to certain emergency and temporary enactments extended by or contained in that Act; to repeal certain other emergency enactments; and for purposes connected with the matters aforesaid. [162] [18th December, 1947.]

6. Extension of section 12 of Act of 1946.—Section twelve of the Act of 1946 (which empowers local authorities to remove certain works and to restore the land affected, and is limited by subsection (4) thereof to expire on the thirty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and forty-seven) shall have effect as if for the reference to that date there were substituted a reference to the tenth day of December, nineteen hundred and fifty. [163]

General note.—By s. 1 of the present Act "the Act of 1946" is the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 879). For s. 12 thereof, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 886. That section empowered local authorities who, in pursuance of statutory powers, had done work on land for the purpose of protecting persons and property from injury or damage in the event of air attack or for any purpose connected with the war, to remove those works and to restore the land to its former condition. The power, which was conferred principally for the purpose of enabling local authorities to remove air-raid shelters, is extended by the present section to December 10, 1950.

12. Short title and commencement.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Emergency Laws (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1947. [164]

(2) This Act, except sections eight, ten and eleven, shall come into operation on the thirty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and forty-seven. [165]

General note.—The main effect of sub-s. (2), supra, is to dovetail the operation of the present Act with the relevant earlier legislation.

CASES

War damage—Temporary works payment—"Works reasonably executed for temporarily meeting the circumstances created by the damage"—Provision of alternative accommodation away from site of damage—Permanent structures—War Damage Act, 1943 (c. 21), s. 6 (2).

In 1941 the S. Hospital suffered severe damage by bombing. In 1942 the hospital authorities effected certain works which involved the construction on the site of a former store room, in place of a kitchen and scullery which had been rendered unusable, of a new main kitchen and scullery in the course of which construction it was necessary to take up a timber floor, fill in the cavity with rubble and lay down a thick concrete floor, and the dividing of a former ward on the ground floor into several parts which were converted into a new operating theatre, with a surgeon's dressing room, sterilising room, anaesthetising room, X-ray room, dark room and office, to replace those on the first floor which had virtually been destroyed. Wiring for electricity, the tapping of the electric main in the street, and the laying of heavy cables to the X-ray room had also been effected :—

Held : the works were neither works of temporary repair nor of temporary precaution, but were carried out to provide alternative accommodation at a distance from the area of the damage, and were not "works reasonably executed for temporarily meeting the circumstances created by the damage" within the War Damage Act, 1943, s. 6 (2).

Per VAISEY, J. : The statement of the case by the War Damage Commission seems to place some emphasis on the physical life of the works in question. It is alleged that some of them would last for twenty-five years and others for forty to fifty years. I do not think that that is the test. I do not think that the works have to be "temporary" in the sense that they are likely to decay at an early date. I think that the reference to "temporary works" in ss. 16 and 20 of the Act is somewhat misleading. The works in themselves may be as permanent as possible. The point is : Were they executed for temporarily meeting the circumstances created by the damage ?—Re ST. Gaming and wagering—Betting—"Public place"—Bets taken in public house—Street Betting Act, 1906 (c. 43), s. 1 (4)—Police—Conduct.

Licensed premises which are not a common inn do not constitute a "public place" within the Street Betting Act, 1906, s. 1 (4), because there is no right of entry, restricted or otherwise, into such premises. Therefore, an information laid under s. 1 of that Act, charging the defendant with frequenting such premises for the purpose of receiving bets, is bad, because the Act has no application.

The appellant was convicted by a court of summary jurisdiction on an information alleging that he, being the holder of a justices' licence, did suffer his premises to be used in contravention of the Betting Act, 1853, s. 3 (which provides that any person who is the occupier of any house or other place and shall knowingly and wilfully permit the same to be used for the purpose of betting shall commit an offence), and the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, s. 79. The appellant submitted that the information was bad because it did not disclose an offence known to the law in that, while the offence under s. 3 was "knowingly and wilfully permitting", the particulars of the offence given in the information were "in that he permitted . . .", the words "knowingly and wilfully" being omitted:—

NATIONAL SERVICE ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 64)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

One of the few aspects of the law relating to compulsory service in the Armed Forces with which local authorities are concerned is the exemption accorded to the blind.

The exemption was originally given in relation to compulsory training by s. 2 of the Military Training Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 594), and on the suspension of that Act at the outbreak of war, the provision was carried through to s. 11 (1) of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1052), which exempts a person "certified by a local authority, as defined by the Blind Persons Acts, 1920 and 1938, to be registered as a blind person under arrangements made by the authority under those Acts."

As from January 1, 1949, the end of the so-called "interim period", the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1947, are consolidated in the present Act, which accordingly preserves the exemption of the blind, though in slightly different terms, in ss. 1, 5 thereof and Sched. I thereto. Among the enactments repealed by s. 60 of, and Sched. VI to, the present Act is the whole of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939, supra.

Other relevant sections of the present Act appear in the title EDUCATION, post. [170]

PART I

SERVICE IN THE ARMED FORCES

Liability for service in the armed forces

1. Liability to be called up for service.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, every male British subject ordinarily resident in Great Britain who has attained the age of eighteen years and has not attained the age of twenty-six years and is not a person mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act shall be liable to be called upon to serve in the armed forces of the Crown for two terms of service, that is to say—

(a) a term of whole-time service in the regular forces; and

(b) a term of part-time service in an auxiliary force in accordance with this section. [172]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, the term of whole-time service for which a person shall be liable to be called up under this Part of this Act shall be a period of twelve months beginning with the day on which he is required by an enlistment notice served under section nine of this Act to present himself to the authority specified therein and ending when his term of whole-time service is completed in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule to this Act:

Provided that His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint a period shorter than twelve months as the term of whole-time service for which a person shall be liable to be called up as aforesaid. [173]

(3) On the day next after that on which the term of a person's whole-time service is completed he shall, subject to the provisions of the next following section, be deemed—

(a) if his last service during that term was in the royal navy or the royal marines, to be entered for service in a royal naval special reserve which the Admiralty shall raise and maintain for the purposes of this Part of this Act; or

(b) if that last service was in the regular army, to be enlisted for service in the territorial army or the army reserve, as the Army Council may direct; or

(c) if that last service was in the regular air force, to be enlisted for service in the air force reserve;

for a term of part-time service ending with the expiration of the seventh year after the beginning of his term of whole-time service; so, however, that the end of a person's part-time service shall be postponed by any period by which the term of his whole-time service was extended by virtue of proviso (b) to paragraph 1 of the Second Schedule to this Act. [174]

General note.—This section, which reproduces ss. 1 and 2 (1) and (2) of the National Service Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1145, 1146), sets out the liability for compulsory whole-time and part-time service but exempts the persons mentioned in the First Schedule, post. The exemptions include those certified as blind. Only male persons are subject to the call-up.

Interpretation.—See s. 34 of the Act.

Date of operation.—The Act comes into force on January 1, 1949 (s. 62 (2), post).

Training during part-time service

5. Summoning for training during part-time service.—(1) The Service Authority may cause to be served on any person during his term of part-time service a training notice which shall state that he is summoned for training and the period for which he is summoned and shall require him to present himself at such place and time on such day (not earlier than the thirtieth day after the date of the service of the notice), and to such authority, as may be specified in the notice. [175]

(2) Where a training notice has been served on any person, the Service Authority may at any time before the day on which he is thereby required to present himself cause to be served on him a supplementary notice varying the training notice by altering the place or time at which, but not the date on which, he is thereby required to present himself. [176]

(3) Every training notice served otherwise than by registered post shall require the person upon whom it is served to acknowledge receipt thereof within such time as may be specified in the requirement; and if acknowledgment is not received, the Service Authority may cause a further training notice to be served on him by registered post and may by that notice direct that the former notice shall be deemed never to have had effect. [177]

(4) A person who fails to comply with a training notice shall be liable to be apprehended and unless he has some reasonable excuse punished in the same manner as a person belonging to an auxiliary force failing to appear when called into actual or permanent service or on embodiment so, however, that the maximum punishment that may be awarded in respect of any such offence shall be, in the case of a person convicted by a court of summary jurisdiction, a fine of twenty-five pounds, and in any other case detention or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years. [178]

(5) If at any time during a person's term of part-time service any change occurs in his name or address, he shall forthwith notify the change to such person and in such manner as may be notified to him under regulations of the Service Authority; and if he fails to do so, he shall be guilty of an offence under this Part of this Act. [179]

(6) A person shall not during his term of part-time service be required to perform any duty under this Part of this Act so long as he is not ordinarily resident in Great Britain or is a person specified in the First Schedule to this Act; and where by virtue of this subsection any person upon whom a training notice is served under this section is not, on the day on which he is thereby required to present himself, liable to perform any duty under this Part of this Act, he shall, for the purposes of that notice, be deemed not to have been liable to perform any such duty at the date of the service of the notice. [180]

General note.—This section, which reproduces provisions of s. 6 of the National Service Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1148), exempts from duty during part-time service, inter alia, the persons specified in the First Schedule, post. This provision, contained in sub-s. (6), supra, meets cases where disability, as for instance blindness, has supervened.

Date of operation.—The Act comes into force on January 1, 1949 (s. 62 (2), post).

Interpretation.—See s. 34 of the Act.

(2) This Order shall come into operation on the 1st day of July, 1948. [201]

* * * * *

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

Paragraph (1) of Regulation 56A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, provides that building and other operations of the kinds set out in Part II of the Sixth Schedule to those Regulations, when carried out for any of the purposes set out in the first column of Part I of that Schedule, shall require the authority of the Government department or other body set out in the second column of Part I. . . .

Article 1 of this Order amends Part I . . . of the Schedule.

Paragraphs 3 and 4 of Part I of the Schedule provide that building for certain educational purposes shall require the authority of the Minister of Education. Article 1 (2) of this Order brings the language of those paragraphs into conformity with the terms of the Education Act, 1944.

Paragraph 6 of Part I of the Schedule provides that building by electricity undertakers shall require the authority of the Electricity Commissioners. Article 1 (3) of this Order transfers their functions under that paragraph to the Minister of Fuel and Power.

Article 2 of this Order contains transitional provisions consequential on Articles 1 (3) and 1 (4) of the Order.

General note.—From this Order certain provisions applying only to Scotland have been omitted and consequential omissions occur in the official Explanatory Note, supra.

Reg. 56A and Sched. VI, etc.—Reg. 56A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, and Sched. VI to those Regulations (see 40 Halsbury's Statutes 1392, 1469) were added, or substituted by S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1596, dated October 10, 1941.

By S. R. & O., 1945, No. 1619, which came into force on December 20, 1945, the said Regulation and Schedule now have effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 629), the scope of which was later extended by the Supplies and Services (Extended Purposes) Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1289).

Electricity Commissioners.—The Commissioners were established by s. 1 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 754). On the nationalisation of the electricity supply industry, the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 58 (1) (40 Halsbury's Statutes 481), empowered the Minister of Fuel and Power to dissolve the Commissioners by order, a power which was exercised as from August 1, 1948, by the Electricity Commissioners (Dissolution) Order, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 1769). The present Order had already taken effect from July 1, 1948.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,

SIR,

PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1936—BUILDING BYELAWS; EXTENSION OF PERIOD OF OPERATION

I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Section 68 of the Public Health Act, 1936, which provides that any building byelaw made by a local authority under Part II of the Act shall cease to have effect on the expiration of ten years from the date on which it was made unless the Minister, by order, extends that period, and to say that he is considering the further revision of the Model Series, foreshadowed in the Prefatory Memorandum, as a preliminary to the making of new byelaws by local authorities to replace those which will cease to have effect by the operation of Section 68.

In order to provide sufficient time for such revision and for the making of new byelaws and to avoid the necessity for the issue of individual orders, the Minister, in exercise of his powers under the proviso to Section 68 of the Public Health Act, 1936, has decided to extend until the 31st December, 1949:—

(a) Building byelaws made under Part II of the Public Health Act, 1936, (b) Byelaws with respect to new streets and buildings which have, by order, been extended annually, which are at present in force and would otherwise cease to have effect.

A copy of the appropriate Order will be forwarded to each authority. [202]

SIR,

BUILDING LICENSING: DEFENCE REGULATION 56A

(1) Extension of "free allowances" for further six months.
(2) Discontinuance of term "Control of Civil Building".
(3) Licensing work done under Statutory Notice.
(4) Work on Farmhouses and Farm Buildings.

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to invite the attention of local authorities to the Control of Building Operations (No. 10) Order, 1947, dated 17th December, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2698), which extends for a further six months the present free allowances within which certain building work may be carried out without a building licence. The effect of the Order is that between the 1st February, 1948, and the 31st July, 1948, work may be done without a licence on any single property if its cost including the cost of any other work done without a licence on the property during the six months period does not exceed £10; and in addition work costing a total of not more than £2 in any one month in the period may be carried out without a licence. This £2 monthly allowance is not cumulative.

2. Civil Building—Building Licensing.

The circumstances in which civil building was contrasted with military work no longer exist. In future, therefore, the term "Control of Civil Building" will be replaced in official communications by "Building Licensing".

3. Licensing of work done under Statutory Notice.

It may not always be possible, within the quota available for licensing work, to issue immediately a licence for work required by Statutory Notice, but every effort should be made to issue such licences at the earliest possible date. Inability to obtain the necessary licence is an adequate defence against proceedings for failure to obey a Statutory Notice, but it is undesirable that such a position should arise. Applicants who have been served with a Statutory Notice should be given a clear indication of the licensing position and if it is impossible to issue a licence immediately, the application should be retained and cleared as soon as possible.

4. Work on Farmhouses and Farm Buildings.

Some confusion has arisen over the issue of licences for work costing more than £100 on farm dwelling-houses and the buildings attached to them. Some applications have been dealt with by the Regional Licensing Officer of the Ministry of Works and others by the local authorities. It seems advisable to clarify the position. As such applications are more closely related to the demands of the agricultural programme than to housing needs it has been decided that all applications involving work in excess of £100 either on a farmhouse or on farm buildings or on both shall in future be dealt with by the Regional Licensing Officer of the Ministry of Works who will also release controlled materials.

Repair or maintenance of farmhouses or farm buildings costing less than £100 will continue to be dealt with by local authorities, and applications for this class of work should be given special consideration. It will probably be found that many of these applications have the support of the Agricultural Executive Committee and consultation with Regional Licensing Officers of the Ministry of Works, in any cases of doubt, would avoid duplication of enquiries and assist in co-ordinating regional policy.

The special restrictions on issues of licences involving the use of timber (see paragraph 3 of Circular 117/47) should not be applied to applications for repairs to farm buildings.

The issue of licences for new dwellings on small holdings will still be the responsibility of local authorities under the general terms of Circular 137/47. [203]

I am, Sir, etc.

Circular 40/48

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
15th March, 1948

SIR,

BUILDING LICENSING: DEFENCE REGULATION 56A

Licensing of Maintenance, Repair and Minor Works.
Reconditioning of Occupied Premises. Conversions and Adaptations.
Issue of "U" Licences for Special Types of Work.
Issue of Licences for Prefabricated Structures.
Contravention of Defence Regulation 56A.

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to inform you that the Government have reviewed the present arrangements for the licensing of maintenance, repair and minor works in the light of the decisions that have had to be taken with regard to capital investment and particularly in view of paragraph 14 of the White Paper on Capital Investment in 1948 (Cmd. 7268) which states that, "It is implicit in the object of the investment review that the volume of maintenance and small works in 1948 must continue to be strictly controlled, since any significant expansion of this class of work would clearly impede the transfer of resources to more essential purposes".

2. As hitherto the volume of licences that may be issued by each local authority will be settled by Regional Building Committees at Zonal Conferences or by other convenient methods. Where Zonal Conferences are arranged representatives of the local authorities and of the Government Departments most closely concerned will participate. The aim of these Conferences will be to collate information regarding building proposals and building resources and to determine the amount of work which may be licensed each month by the various authorities concerned.

3. If it appears that as a result of the restriction on the volume of new work put in hand more operatives will be available for maintenance and repair work than in a corresponding previous period, the Ministry of Works will consult the Ministry of Labour regarding the possibility of alternative employment on essential work in the building industry or other industries. If the Ministry of Labour advise that such alternative employment is available, before any other steps are taken that Department will offer such employment to men reporting to the Employment exchange for work. On the other hand, if the Ministry of Labour advise that such alternative employment is not available, the Regional Building Committee will consider what volume of work may be licensed or authorised additional to the levels previously agreed at Zonal Conferences or otherwise. The local authority will be advised by the Secretary of the Regional Building Committee of any change in the agreed level of licensing. Local offices of the Ministry of Labour and National Service will keep a close watch on the local unemployment situation and will advise the Regional Director of the Ministry of Works of any actual or imminent unemployment among local building operatives.

4. It is important to ensure that the issue of additional licences or authorisations shall not (a) result in work of a luxury nature or of lesser urgency to the detriment of other schemes in the area, and (b) throw an unduly heavy burden upon the supply of scarce materials, particularly timber and steel. In all cases where an authorisation to obtain steel is necessary for work which is subject to a licence application, a reference should first be made to the Regional Licensing Officer of the Ministry of Works who will advise whether or not steel can be made available. Paragraph 3 of Appendix B of Circular 179/47 should be cancelled.

5. Within the monetary licensing ceilings laid down at Zonal Conferences or otherwise, the urgent and essential work set out in the five categories defined in Circular 171/46 must still come first. Where the raising of the monetary ceiling under paragraph 3 permits, any arrears of applications within the five categories must be cleared before any licences are issued for work of a less urgent character. It is particularly important that work required under a Statutory Notice should be licensed with as little delay as possible. As regards work of maintenance and repair of a less urgent character, decisions on applications must be determined by the nature of the materials required. Subject to the exceptions set out in paragraph 7, preference should be given to work requiring little or no timber and, for the present, in view of the heavy demands for sanitary-ware and fittings for new houses, licences should not be issued for work involving the use of sanitary-ware and baths.

6. It should be noted that in order to keep the non-industrial load on electrical generating stations within reasonable limits, the Electricity Commission have recently instructed Supply Undertakings to co-operate in measures designed to restrict the demand for electricity from non-industrial consumers more particularly by limiting to essential needs the connection of new supplies and the provision of appliances on hire or hire-purchase. In general, therefore, new services and apparatus, especially on hire or hire-purchase, will be provided only to (a) new domestic or commercial premises, (b) war damaged houses which have been made habitable again or houses which have been divided into separate tenancies, (c) farms and farm workers cottages where the County Agricultural Executive Committees certify that the installation will assist increased food production, (d) existing premises where the present facilities for heating and/or cooking are worn out or where serious hardship would result if the supply is not provided. In future, therefore, confirmation should be obtained that the Electricity Supply Undertaking is willing to connect and supply before a licence is granted. Regard should also be had to the materials likely to be required.

7. Reconditioning or Improvement of Existing Houses.

Work on the reconditioning of existing houses for which licences could be issued within the existing licensing ceilings or within the higher levels of licensing envisaged under paragraph 3, but which requires the use of sanitary-ware, baths and pipes must necessarily be limited at present by their scarcity. The current demand for these materials for the large numbers of new houses now being completed month by month and for the provision of essential replacements or for the installation of amenities in premises to be converted into flats, leaves only a small margin of supplies available for the improvement of amenities in houses where such work is either necessary or desirable.

Proposals for the reconditioning of existing houses which involve only such work as repairs to the damp-course, elimination of dry rot, repairs to roof or structure or the provision of an additional bedroom or bedrooms, should be licensed in so far as room can be found within the monetary licensing ceilings. In considering applications for other forms of reconditioning work involving the scarce materials referred to earlier, preference must be given for the time being to houses occupied by or intended for agricultural workers. Any such proposals which receive the support of the local authority and the Agricultural Executive Committee should be forwarded for consideration by the Principal Housing Officer, accompanied by a short statement indicating the cost and nature of the works to be carried out, the amount of timber, steel and additional fittings required, and whether the local authority would be able to issue a licence within the agreed monetary ceiling.

8. Conversions and Adaptations.

The issue of licences for work resulting in additional family units of accommodation by the conversion or adaptation of houses or other buildings is normally outside the licensing ceiling arrangements, and is linked with the arrangements for the construction of new houses. Where a conversion scheme calls for comparatively small amounts of controlled materials particularly timber (in respect of which experience has shown that less than one-fifth of a standard of softwood should normally be required) licences may be issued for—

(a) house now capable of occupation as a single unit which can be converted into not more than three separate units of family accommodation, and the cost is less than £500 for each additional unit of accommodation which results, (e.g. a scheme for producing three units of accommodation should not cost more than £1,000);

(b) stables, other buildings or houses not now capable of occupation as such, where the cost does not exceed £500 per unit of family accommodation produced; and

(c) larger houses which are to be converted into four or more separate units of family accommodation and the cost does not exceed £500 for each of the units of accommodation resulting.

Licences should not be granted by local authorities for schemes involving expenditure in excess of the stated limits. Where special circumstances exist such as war damage or excessive dilapidation or the local authority is satisfied that structurally satisfactory houses will remain empty or not fully used if not converted, and the cost is more than the above limits, or the timber required is much more than the normal amount as stated above, the application should be referred to the Principal Housing Officer for special consideration.

In certain types of premises where full conversion into self-contained flats is desired by the owner but cannot be undertaken within the financial limits set out above, it is suggested that the owner be advised to undertake the conversion in two stages. Such a procedure applies particularly to certain types of terrace houses which could be made available for three or four families. In the first instance a licence may be issued for the work essential to make the premises adaptable for occupation by a number of family units. At some time in the future it may be possible to issue a licence for the provision of the work temporarily deferred.

Applications for licences for work of adaptation which extends the accommodation in an occupied house only by provision of an additional bedroom or bedrooms must be dealt with under the agreed licensing ceilings.

9. The instructions in paragraphs 5, 7 and 8 above, cancel the general directions on repairs, etc., by private owners in Circulars 2871, 9/44, 49/44 and paragraph 11 of Circular 125/45.

10. Issue of "U" Licences for Special Types of Work.

The arrangements and instructions in Circular 117/47 (paragraphs 6 to 9) may still be operated outside the authorised monetary ceilings, and licences for this class of work may be issued where there is no shortage of labour for construction of greater priority. It should be noted, however, that unemployment or prospective unemployment of painters and decorators will in future be dealt with under the provisions of paragraph 3 of this circular, and paragraph 5 of Circular 117/47 should accordingly be cancelled. The reference to painting and decorating work in paragraph 9 of Circular 117/47 should also be cancelled.

11. Prefabricated Structures.

Local authorities were advised in paragraph 2 of Circular 8/47 to grant licences to applicants desiring to purchase components for prefabricated structures and not proposing to use any paid labour in their erection. Representations have now been made that the erection of small prefabricated garages, huts, greenhouses, etc., does not require the use of materials (other than cement) and requires a negligible amount of local labour to erect. In such circumstances the issue of a licence should have no detrimental effect upon other building work in the area, and local authorities may therefore issue the necessary licences outside the fixed monetary ceiling or other licensing limit determined by the Regional Building Committee at Zonal Conferences or otherwise. There can be no question of issuing authorisations for controlled materials in these cases.

12. Contraventions of Defence Regulation 56A.

In Circular 8/47, paragraph 11, local authorities were asked to make Quarterly Returns to the Regional Licensing Officer of the Ministry of Works giving certain information on alleged contraventions investigated by them. No provision was made in the suggested form of return for reporting cases where the investigation establishes that an offence of a minor character has been committed and where for this or other reasons proceedings cannot appropriately be instituted. As it is essential that information on such cases should be readily available in the event of any future contravention by the same person, the suggested form of return should be amended under item (c) to show :—

C. (vi) Names and addresses of persons against whom proceedings have not been instituted but who have been warned about offences against Defence Regulation 56A.

In making the first return under the new heading it would be an advantage if local authorities would include information (if it is readily available) on any cases dealt with in this manner since the issue of Circular 8/47. [204]

SIR,

STATISTICS OF TRADE ACT, 1947, SECTION 14 : ADDITIONAL INFORMATION TO BE FURNISHED AS TO ESTIMATE OF COST OF NEW BUILDING

(1) I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Section 14 of the Statistics of Trade Act, 1947, the effect of which is to require, in addition to the particulars specified in Section 61 of the Public Health Act, 1936, and Section 84 of the London Building Acts (Amendment) Act, 1939, information as to the estimated cost of proposed new building works and, in the latter case, notification of completion of the work. It is intended that the information so obtained shall form the basis of periodical returns which will provide comprehensive information for the whole of the country as to the extent and progress of various descriptions of building activity.

(2) While the control of new building by means of licences under Defence Regulation 56A remains in operation, such particulars will be available from the applications for building licences, and it is not proposed to ask local authorities to supply separate returns during its continuance.

(3) It is, however, important that effect should be given now to the provisions of Section 14 of the Statistics of Trade Act in order to ensure continuity, and local authorities will no doubt take steps to amend their form of application under Section 61 of the Public Health Act, 1936, or in the case of the London County Council, the prescribed notice under Section 84 of the London Building Acts (Amendment) Act, 1939, by the insertion thereon of suitable words or the attachment thereto of a slip, requiring the additional particulars specified in the Section.

(4) A further communication will be addressed to local authorities when the submission of separate returns becomes necessary and details of the particulars required and forms on which the information should be furnished will be sent to them well in advance of the date on which such returns are required to be made. BUILDING LICENSING

Part I. Revised Financial Limits.
Revised Licensing Functions of Officers appointed by Local Authorities.
Unpaid Labour : Contraventions : Control of Materials.
Fees for Professional Services.
Amendment of Licences to cover increased costs.

Part II. Payment to Local Authorities in respect of licensing work undertaken by their officers on behalf of the Minister of Works.
Method of Payment : Period of Claim : To whom sent.
Arrangements for Advances.

SIR,

I am directed by the Minister of Health to inform you that the Minister of Works is making an Order amending, as set out below, the financial limits within which building work may be done without licence. Outside these limits strict control will still be necessary to ensure that building labour and materials shall not be used on less essential works to the detriment of building projects of high national importance and urgency. While, however, building controls must be maintained in effective operation, it is desirable to make such relaxations as circumstances justify. Much of the work urgently necessary to bring occupied houses up to a reasonable standard could be carried out with materials readily available, and it is to facilitate such work and to simplify the arrangements for its execution that the new Order has been made. If experience shows that the relaxation is used for non-essential purposes and that the progress of essential work is thereby impeded, the Government will feel obliged to review the position.

PART I. FINANCIAL LIMITS UNDER NEW CONTROL OF BUILDING OPERATIONS ORDER

(1) Under the Control of Building Operations (No. 11) Order, which will come into force on the 1st July, 1948, the amount of work which may be carried out without licence on any property during the period 1st July, 1948, to the 30th June, 1949, has been fixed at £100. A copy of the Order will be sent as soon as possible.

Revised Licensing Functions of Officers appointed by Local Authorities

(2) As from 1st July, 1948, as a result of the change to the £100 limit, local authorities will no longer be concerned with applications for licences for work other than housing, and all such applications should be referred to the appropriate licensing officer of the Ministry of Works. As regards housing work the authority given by the Minister of Works to officers appointed for the purpose by local authorities is to signify his granting of licences for licensable work to private dwellings within the area of the local authority where the local authority is satisfied that the work should be allowed to proceed. The term private dwelling includes private garages, greenhouses or garden walls within the curtilage of a house, but does not include farm houses, hotels, hostels, boarding houses, holiday camps or shops (with or without living accommodation).

(3) Unpaid Labour.

The instructions in paragraph 2 and Appendix B of Circular 8/47 are cancelled. Any work carried out in excess of the free limit is subject to licence whether done by paid or unpaid labour, and in future the value of unpaid labour (other than the labour of the owner or occupier of a building) should be taken into account on the rough basis of normal building rates within the area in computing the cost of any building work.

(4) Contraventions.

There is no change in the instructions in Circular 8/47 about powers delegated to local authorities to initiate prosecutions for alleged contraventions of Defence Regulation 56A.

(5) Controlled Materials.

The shortage of timber and steel makes it quite impossible to introduce any relaxation at present of the restrictions on the use of these materials.

(a) Timber.—Applications for timber for licensed housing work will be dealt with by the Principal Housing Officer. Applications for timber for work to be carried out without licence within the free limits should be referred to the Area Officer of the Timber Control.

(b) Steel and Building Board.—A circular detailing modified arrangements for licences will be issued shortly.

(c) Other Materials.—Under the Control of Building Materials Order, referred to in Circular 93/48, priority in supplies of certain materials listed in a memorandum attached to that Circular will continue to be given to work providing new houses or other new accommodation.

(6) Fees for Professional Services.

Amendment of Licences to Cover Increased Costs.

Notes prepared by the Ministry of Works are circulated for information in Appendices A and B.

PART II. PAYMENT TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES IN RESPECT OF LICENSING WORK UNDERTAKEN BY THEIR OFFICERS ON BEHALF OF THE MINISTER OF WORKS

Representations have been made from time to time that the expenditure solely incurred on licensing work is a heavy burden upon local authorities, and it has been decided to reimburse such approved additional expenditure on licensing work in the proportion of 3 : 1 (i.e. 75 per cent. to be met by way of grant and the balance by local authorities) as from 1st April, 1947. Payments will be made annually on Form M.O.W. 1782, a copy of which is attached for information. It should be noted that salaries of permanent officials should be excluded in calculating additional approved expenditure, but overtime payments to permanent staff, salaries or wages of substitutes engaged solely to relieve the permanent staff for licensing work, additional rent incurred for premises used only for that purpose and printing expenses in connection with licensing may be included. Supplies of Form M.O.W. 1782 when available will be sent to Local Authorities by the Assistant Regional Director (Controls) at the Regional Office of the Ministry of Works in England, and by the Assistant Director for Wales (Controls) at 42 Park Place, Cardiff; the forms will not, however, be available for some time yet. Local authorities will no doubt appreciate this advance information to enable them to prepare their claims.

Arrangements for Advances.—Where an advance is required as indicated on page 1 of the Form, payment of the advance will be made after preliminary scrutiny of the claim. In no case will the advance payment exceed 90 per cent. of the total amount claimed. The balance will be retained pending examination of the claim by the District Auditor.

I am, Sir, etc.

APPENDIX A

Fees for Professional Services

Representations have been made by professional bodies that the inclusion of fees for professional services whether relating to the actual supervision of the work or to other services such as the drawing up of plans in the licensed cost, has, for various reasons, been causing difficulty. In the circumstances, it has been decided that, while the legal position is not altered in any way, professional fees of architects, surveyors and engineers may, in appropriate cases, be specifically excluded from the licensed cost. This will be done by the following endorsement on the licence after the figures specifying the permitted cost of the work :—" exclusive of any professional fees paid to any architect, surveyor, or engineer acting as such in an advisory and/or supervisory capacity in connection with the work." This endorsement should be made in all cases where an architect, surveyor, or engineer is actually employed in an advisory or supervisory capacity. It will not apply to the salary paid to an architect, surveyor, or engineer who is a member of the staff of the contractor carrying out the work.

APPENDIX B

Amendment of Licences to Cover Increased Costs

Cases arise where the licensed cost has been exceeded although no work outside the licence has been done and the architect could not know beforehand that the cost would be exceeded. In such cases the defence afforded by proviso (a) to paragraph 6 of Defence Regulation 56A is available and the technical infringement is normally cleared by the issue of a letter to the effect that no further action will be taken. Such an exculpation is, however, not regarded as sufficient from the point of view of the architect who is still in the position of having to give a certificate inconsistent with the licence, and the Ministry of Works has been asked to issue retrospective licences to cover these cases.

There is no power under the Regulation to issue retrospective licences. It has, however, been decided that the cost inserted on the original licence may be amended in these cases to show the actual cost of the work on completion. In order to ensure as far as possible that the local authority or the Ministry of Works does not become a party to disputes between the architect, builder and building owner, it must be clearly understood that any amendment may only be made at the written request of the building owner or the person paying the cost of the work and may not be made at the request of any person acting on behalf of either of these parties. Only excess costs may be covered and in no circumstances may an amendment be made in any case where work outside the terms of the licence has been carried out. Where it appears that a contravention has occurred on other grounds no amendment of the licence may be made without reference to the Regional Director of the Ministry of Works.

This arrangement will not absolve the architect, builder or building owner from the necessity of applying for a supplementary licence if it becomes apparent in the course of the work that the cost will be exceeded, and prior approval will still be necessary if work outside the licence is to be done.

The amendment will be made on both the building owner's copy of the licence and on the file copy and will be signed by the local authority Licensing Officer or the person who originally signed the licence.

Circular 108/48

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
25th June, 1948.

To all Housing Authorities
County Councils (for information)
England.

SIR,

HOUSING

Licences for Building New Houses

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Circular 137/47 of the 15th August, 1947, and to state that he has been examining the possibility of authorising further licences for the erection of houses by private persons, particularly those in need of a home who desire to build one for their own occupation.

2. During the last nine months, much progress has been made with the Government programme, and the houses under construction are now being completed at an efficient rate. Additional contracts are being let in accordance with the allocations made to local authorities by the Principal Housing Officers of the Ministry with a view to maintaining so far as practicable for the time being the present level of construction.

Licensing at Local Authority's Discretion out of Housing Allocations

3. The Minister has decided to leave it within the discretion of local authorities who desire to do so to utilise part of the allocations made to them after the date of this Circular for houses to be built by private persons under licence. Applications for licences for such houses need no longer be referred to the Principal Housing Officer for his prior approval.

4. This discretion is given to local authorities subject to the following conditions :—

(i) The allocations made from time to time by the Principal Housing Officers to the local authority will comprise all houses authorised to be built in the district by or with the approval of the local authority for the period stated (other than houses built in replacement of war destroyed houses which are eligible for " cost of works " payments).

(ii) The total number of houses for which licences are issued must not in any case be more than one-fifth of any such allocation.

(iii) Priority should continue to be given to applications for agricultural houses recommended by the County Agricultural Executive Committee and for houses for miners and key workers in Development Areas.

Additional Authorisations

5. Where a local authority have not yet invited tenders for all the houses covered by an allocation made before the date of this Circular and wish to devote part of the balance to licensing private building, they should submit proposals to the Principal Housing Officer.

6. Where a local authority have now or in the future used up all their allocations and wish to deal with some pressing individual cases in advance of a further allocation, they should refer the matter to the Principal Housing Officer.

General Conditions as to Issue of Licences

7. The following points should be observed by a local authority in issuing licences :—

(i) Each licence should relate to not more than one structurally separate building, e.g. a single house or a pair of semi-detached houses.

(ii) The plans and outline specification should be approved by the local authority. The use of scarce materials should not be permitted to a greater extent than that adopted by the local authority in their own houses.

(iii) Where it is necessary to secure mixed development, it is intended to authorise local authorities to include in their estates a proportion of houses of somewhat larger size than the standard 900–950 superficial feet. The Minister is prepared to leave to them for the same purpose a similar discretion in regard to houses to be erected under licence up to a maximum superficial area of 1,500 square feet. In determining the type and size of houses to be licensed in a particular case, the local authority should have regard to the size and composition of the family for whom it is intended.

(iv) Every house in respect of which a licence is issued must be subject to conditions limiting building cost, selling price and rent chargeable.

The building cost and the selling price, both of which will vary according to the size and type of the house and circumstances of the district, should be fixed by the local authority on the basis of the cost of houses built by them. Appropriate allowance should be made for differences in the size of the houses and for any special circumstances arising out of the cost of building on particular sites, e.g. building in stone to harmonise with the neighbouring village or when the cost of the land or its development is abnormal. The selling price should be the all-in, freehold figure.

The maximum amount of the rent chargeable should be fixed by reference to the selling price and to the rents payable in respect of comparable property.

(v) Special attention should be drawn to the condition of every licence that unless the work covered by the licence is started within two months from the date of the licence, the licence automatically lapses. Licensees should be requested to notify the local authority of the date on which work starts on the site. If the licensee satisfies the local authority that it was impracticable for him to start work within two months, it will be open to the local authority to issue a fresh licence valid for a further period of two months. It is essential, however, to maintain strict control over all licences that have been issued, in order to avoid an overload of commitments and a risk of subsequent dislocation of the building programme.

Houses for Sale

8. Licences should not be issued by local authorities in respect of houses built for sale to unknown purchasers. Houses for sale built under licence must go and be seen to go to persons in need of homes. It is therefore essential that where a house is intended for an owner occupier the identity of the owner occupier should be known to the local authority before the licence is issued. It is only in this way that the local authority can satisfy themselves that the issue of a licence will serve a housing need comparable to that served by the erection of a house built by them.

Houses for Letting

9. Applications may also be considered by local authorities for the building of houses for letting, provided they are satisfied that the houses will serve genuine needs. [207]

I am Sir, etc.

By an oversight in failing to apply for a supplementary licence, the plaintiffs supplied material and did repair work on the defendant's house in excess of the cost covered by licences from the Minister of Works. In an action by the plaintiffs to recover the balance due for the additional work :—

Held : (i) if a licence is granted to do certain work at a specified cost and the cost is exceeded, that is prima facie a contravention of reg. 56A, para. 2, of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, and the defences provided by provisos (a) and (b) of para. 6 of the regulation are available to the alleged offender, and it matters not that there is also an offence under para. 8 of the regulation as for a breach of a condition of the licence ; in the circumstances there had been a contravention of the regulations ; and the defendants could not bring themselves within proviso (a) or proviso (b), and, therefore, the plaintiffs' action must fail.

(ii) if the cost of the work for which a licence was obtained included the cost of providing and fixing an article and the licensed cost was exceeded, it was not permissible to deduct the actual cost of the article from the excess and seek to reduce the apparent excess to that extent.

Building—Control—Licence—Need to be in writing—Permitted cost of work exceeded—Oral permission covering excess—Retrospective effect of licence—Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927 (as amended)), reg. 56A (2), (6).

By the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, reg. 56A (2), the carrying out of any building specified in Sched. VI, Part III, to the regulations " shall be unlawful except in so far as there is in force in respect thereof a licence granted by " the Minister of Works. By para. (6) : " If any . . . work is carried out in contravention of ", inter alia, para. (2) " the person at whose expense . . . the work is carried out, and . . . the person undertaking . . . the carrying out of the work . . . shall each be guilty of an offence against this regulation." Para. (6A) imposes a fine and imprisonment for a contravention of the regulation.

On May 10, 1946, the plaintiffs, a firm of builders, obtained a licence under reg. 56A (2), on behalf of the defendant, for work (described as " repairs to garages ") to be carried out at a total cost not exceeding £35. The licence was in writing, in the form prescribed by the Minister of Works, and was granted by the borough surveyor on behalf of the local authority which was empowered to act for the Minister in the matter. While carrying out the work, the plaintiffs found that the total cost would exceed £35 and they obtained oral permission from the borough surveyor to complete the work, provided that the total cost did not exceed £100. The work was accordingly completed, the total cost amounting to £69 18*s.* 2*d.* Some months later, in response to a written application by the plaintiffs, the borough surveyor issued a written licence, expressed to be supplementary to the licence of May 10, 1946, for " further repairs to garages " at a total cost not exceeding £34 18*s*. In an action by the plaintiffs to recover the cost of the work, the defendant contended that the plaintiffs were debarred from recovering the excess over the £35 as there was no licence in force in respect thereof as required by reg. 56A (2), and the additional work was, therefore, illegal :—

Held : (i) the " supplementary " licence was of no effect, because the wording of reg. 56A (2) prevented a licence having any retrospective effect and required the licence to precede the work.

(ii) [JENKINS, J., dissenting] : in view of the fact that persons contravening reg. 56A were liable to prosecution and that the effective enforcement of the licensing system could not be achieved except by means of written licences, the licence contemplated by reg. 56A (2) must be a written document, and accordingly the oral permission given to the plaintiffs did not amount to a licence within the meaning of the regulation.

(iii) therefore, the additional work was illegal and the plaintiffs were debarred from claiming payment for it.

HOUSE TO HOUSE COLLECTIONS REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2662

In pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by section 4 of the House to House Collections Act, 1939, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following regulations :—

1. Title and extent.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the House to House Collections Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the twenty-ninth day of December, 1947.

(2) These regulations shall not extend to Scotland. [210]

" the Act " means the House to House Collections Act, 1939 ;

" chief promoter ", in relation to a collection, means a person to whom a licence has been granted authorising him to promote that collection or in respect of whom an order has been made directing that he shall be exempt from the provisions of subsection (2) of section 1 of the Act as respects that collection;

"collecting box" means a box or other receptacle for monetary contributions, securely closed and sealed in such a way that it cannot be opened without breaking the seal;

"licence" means a licence granted by a police authority under section 2 of the Act;

"order" means an order made by the Secretary of State under section 3 of the Act;

"prescribed badge" means a badge in the form set out in the Fourth Schedule to these regulations;

"prescribed certificate of authority" means a certificate in the form set out in the Third Schedule to these regulations;

(2) A mark shall for the purposes of these regulations be deemed to have been made on a collecting box if it is made on a wrapper securely gummed to the collecting box.

(3) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [211]

3. Local collections of a transitory nature.—(1) Every certificate granted under subsection (4) of section 1 of the Act shall be in the form set out in the First Schedule to these regulations, and sections 5 and 6 and subsections (4) and (5) of section 8 of the Act shall be set forth on the back of every such certificate.

(2) Where such a certificate is granted as aforesaid, the provisions of these regulations shall not apply, in relation to a collection made for the purpose specified on the certificate, within the locality and within the period so specified, to the person to whom the certificate is granted or to any person authorised by him to act as a collector for the purposes of that collection. [212]

4. Applications for licences and orders.—(1) An application for a licence shall be in the form set out in the Second Schedule to these regulations, and shall give the particulars there specified.

(2) An application for a licence or for an order shall be made not later than the first day of the month preceding that in which it is proposed to commence the collection:

Provided that the police authority or, as the case may be, the Secretary of State may grant the application notwithstanding that it was not made within the time required by this paragraph if satisfied that there are special reasons for so doing. [213]

5. Responsibility of promoters as respects collectors.—Every promoter of a collection shall exercise all due diligence—

(a) to secure that persons authorised to act as collectors for the purposes of the collection are fit and proper persons; and

(b) to secure compliance on the part of persons so authorised with the provisions of these regulations. [214]

6. Certificates of authority, badges, collecting boxes and receipt books.—(1) No promoter of a collection shall permit any person to act as a collector, unless he has issued or caused to be issued to that person—

(a) a prescribed certificate of authority duly completed (except as regards the signature of the collector) and signed by or on behalf of the chief promoter of the collection ;

(b) a prescribed badge, having inserted therein or annexed thereto a general indication of the purpose of the collection ; and

(c) if money is to be collected, a collecting box or receipt book marked with a clear indication of the purpose of the collection and a distinguishing number, which indication and number shall, in the case of a receipt book, also be marked on every receipt contained therein in addition to the consecutive number of the receipt.

(2) Every promoter of a collection shall exercise all due diligence to secure—

(a) that no prescribed certificate of authority, prescribed badge, collecting box or receipt book is issued, unless the name and address of the collector to whom it is issued have been entered on a list showing in respect of any collecting box or receipt book the distinguishing number thereof ; and

(b) that every prescribed certificate of authority, prescribed badge, collecting box or receipt book issued by him or on his behalf is returned when the collection is completed or when for any other reason a collector ceases to act as such.

(3) In the case of a collection in respect of which a licence has been granted—

(a) every prescribed certificate of authority shall be given on a form obtained from His Majesty's Stationery Office, and every prescribed badge shall be so obtained ; and

(b) every prescribed certificate of authority shall be authenticated, and the general indication on every prescribed badge of the purpose of the collection shall be inserted therein or annexed thereto, in a manner approved by the chief officer of police for the area in respect of which the licence was granted. [215]

7. Duties of collectors in relation to certificates and badges.—Every collector shall—

(a) sign his name on the prescribed certificate of authority issued to him and produce it on the demand of any police constable or of any occupant of a house visited by him for the purpose of collection ;

(b) sign his name on the prescribed badge issued to him and wear the badge prominently whenever he is engaged in collecting ; and

(c) keep such certificate and badge in his possession and return them to a promoter of the collection on replacement thereof or when the collection is completed or at any other time on the demand of a promoter of the collection. [216]

8. Age limit.—No person in the metropolitan police district or the City of London under the age of eighteen years, or elsewhere under the age of sixteen years, shall act or be authorised to act as a collector of money. [217]

9. Importuning.—No collector shall importune any person to the annoyance of such person, or remain in, or at the door of, any house if requested to leave by any occupant thereof. [218]

10. Collection of money.—(1) Where a collector is collecting money by means of a collecting box, he shall not receive any contribution save by permitting the person from whom it is received to place it in a collecting box issued to him by a promoter of the collection.

(2) Where a collector is collecting money by other means than a collecting box, he shall, upon receiving a contribution from any person, forthwith and in the presence of such person enter on a form of receipt in a receipt book issued to him by a promoter of the collection and on the corresponding counterfoil or duplicate the date, the name of the contributor and the amount contributed, and shall sign the form of receipt, the entries and signature being in ink or indelible pencil, and shall hand the form of receipt to the person from whom he received the contribution. [219]

11. Duty of collectors to return boxes and books.—Every collector, to whom a collecting box or receipt book has been issued, shall—

(a) when the collecting box is full or the receipt book is exhausted, or (b) upon the demand of a promoter of the collection, or (c) when he does not desire to act as a collector, or (d) upon the completion of the collection, return to a promoter of the collection that collecting box with the seal unbroken or that receipt book with a sum equal to the total amount of the contributions (if any) entered therein. [220]

12. Examination of boxes and books.—(1) Subject as provided in paragraph (2) of this regulation, a collecting box when returned shall be examined by, and, if it contains money, be opened in the presence of, a promoter of the collection and another responsible person.

(2) Where a collecting box is delivered unopened to a bank, it may be examined and opened by an official of the bank in the absence of a promoter of the collection.

(3) As soon as a collecting box has been opened, the contents shall be counted and the amount shall be entered with the distinguishing number of the collecting box on a list, which shall be certified by the persons making the examination.

(4) Every receipt book when returned and all sums received therewith shall be examined by a promoter of the collection and another responsible person, and the amount of the contributions entered in the receipt book shall be checked with the money and entered with the distinguishing number of the receipt book on a list, which shall be certified by the persons making the examination. [221]

13. Provision for envelope collections.—(1) Where the promoter of a collection to whom an order has been granted informs the Secretary of State that he desires to promote an envelope collection, and the Secretary of State is of opinion that the collection is for a charitable purpose of major importance and is suitably administered, the Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, give permission for the promotion of an envelope collection.

(2) Where an envelope collection is made in accordance with this regulation—

(a) every envelope used shall have a gummed flap by means of which it can be securely closed;
(b) no collector shall receive a contribution except in an envelope which has been so closed; and
(c) these regulations shall have effect subject to the following modifications:—

(i) sub-paragraph (c) of paragraph (1) of regulation 6 shall not apply;
(ii) regulation 10 shall not apply;

(iii) regulations 11 and 12 shall have effect as if each envelope in which a contribution is received were a collecting box ;

(iv) in regulation 11 for the words " with the seal unbroken " there shall be substituted the word " unopened " ;

(v) in paragraph (3) of regulation 12 for the words " As soon as a collecting box has been opened " there shall be substituted the words " As soon as the envelope has been opened " and the words " with the distinguishing number of the collecting box " shall be omitted.

(3) In this regulation " envelope collection " means a collection made by persons going from house to house leaving envelopes in which money may be placed and which are subsequently called for. [222]

14. Promoters to furnish accounts.—(1) The chief promoter of a collection in respect of which a licence has been granted shall furnish an account of the collection to the police authority by which the licence was granted within one month of the expiry of the licence :

Provided that if licences are granted to the same person for collections to be made for the same purpose in more than one police area, a combined account of the collections made in all or any of those police areas may, by agreement between the chief promoter and the respective police authorities, be made only to such of the respective police authorities as may be so agreed.

(2) The chief promoter of a collection in respect of which an order has been made shall furnish an account annually to the Secretary of State so long as the order remains in force, and if the order is revoked a final account shall be furnished within three months of the date of the revocation of the order.

(3) The police authority or the Secretary of State may extend the period within which an account is required to be furnished to the authority or to him, as the case may be, if satisfied that there are special reasons for so doing.

(4) The chief promoter of a collection which is made in connection in whole or in part with a street collection of which an account is required to be furnished to a police authority by regulations made under section 5 of the Police, Factories, etc. (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1916, may, if the said police authority agrees, combine the accounts of the house to house collection, in so far as it is made in connection with the street collection, with the accounts of the street collection, and the amount so included in the combined account shall not be required to form part of the account required to be furnished under paragraph (1) or, as the case may be, paragraph (2) of this regulation, so, however, that in the case of an account furnished under the said paragraph (2) the account shall show, in addition to an account in respect of moneys received from house to house collections not made in connection with a street collection, a statement showing the total proceeds of all combined collections, the total expenses and the balance applied to charitable purposes. [223]

15. Form and certification of accounts.—The account required by the preceding regulation—

(a) where money has been collected, shall be furnished in the form set out in the Fifth Schedule to these regulations and, where property has been collected and sold, shall be furnished in the form set out in the Sixth Schedule to these regulations, and in either case shall be certified by the chief promoter of the collection and by an independent responsible person as auditor ; and

(b) where property (other than money) has been collected and given away or used, shall be furnished in the form set out in the Seventh Schedule to these regulations and shall be certified by the chief promoter and by every person responsible for the disposal of the property collected. [224]

16. Vouching of accounts.—(1) Every account furnished under paragraph (a) of regulation 15 of these regulations shall be accompanied by vouchers for each item of the expenses and application of the proceeds and, in the case of a collection of money, by every receipt book used for the purposes of the collection and by the list referred to in paragraph (2) of regulation 6 of these regulations and the list referred to in regulation 12 of these regulations.

(2) Paragraph (1) of this regulation shall not apply to an account certified by an auditor who is a member of an association or society of accountants incorporated at the date of these regulations or is on other grounds accepted as competent by the authority to which the account is submitted, but where in such a case the vouchers, receipt books and lists mentioned in the said paragraph (1) are not submitted with an account, the chief promoter shall ensure that they are available for three months after the account is submitted and shall, if the authority to which the account was submitted so requires at any time within that period, submit them to that authority. [225]

17. Disposal of disused certificates of authority, etc.—The chief promoter of a collection shall exercise all due diligence to secure that all forms of prescribed certificates of authority and prescribed badges obtained by him for the purposes of the collection are destroyed when no longer required in connection with that collection or in connection with a further collection which he has been authorised to promote for the same purpose. Theatres and places of entertainment—Cinematograph—Sunday performance —Permission—Condition—Prohibition of admission of child under fifteen—Sunday Entertainments Act, 1932 (c. 51), s. 1 (1).

It is not ultra vires a licensing authority when allowing, under s. 1 (1) of the Sunday Entertainments Act, 1932, a cinematograph theatre in their area to be opened on Sundays, to take into consideration matters concerning the well-being and the physical and moral health of children and to impose a condition that children under the age of fifteen years, whether accompanied by an adult or not, shall be excluded from the theatre.

The court is entitled to investigate the action of the local authority with a view to seeing whether it has taken into account matters which it ought not to take into account, or, conversely, has refused to take into account matters which it ought to take into account. Once that question is answered in favour of the local authority, it may still be possible to say that the local authority, nevertheless, has come to a conclusion so unreasonable that no reasonable authority could ever have come to it, and in such a case the court can interfere. The power of a court, however, to interfere in any case is not that of an appellate authority to override a decision of the local authority, but is that of a judicial authority which is concerned, and concerned only, to see whether the local authority has contravened the law by acting in excess of the powers which Parliament has confided in it.

Regulation 63 enables the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, in the case of England and Wales, and the Secretary of State in the case of Scotland

4.—(1) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
29th December, 1947.

SIR,

SCABIES ORDER, 1941 : EXPIRY OF DEFENCE REGULATION 33A

I am directed by the Minister of Health to inform you that under the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, and the Emergency Laws (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1947, Regulation 33A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, will expire on 31st December, 1947, and that the Scabies Order, 1941, which was made under that Regulation, will accordingly also cease to be operative after that date.

The Regulation and the Scabies Order were introduced, as authorities are aware, as an emergency war-time measure to combat an exceptional increase of scabies which threatened to be detrimental to the war effort. It would not be warrantable, in the view of the Minister, to keep in force any longer the drastic powers of entry into residential premises, and of compulsory examination and treatment (as contained in the Order) which were justified under the stress of war. The time has come to revert to reliance on normal statutory powers, as contained in the Public Health Acts, for dealing with verminous conditions, and the Minister is confident that authorities will continue, as before the war, to do all they can in tracing the existence of such conditions and in taking appropriate measures, within those powers to remedy them.

A copy of this Circular is being forwarded to the Medical Officer of Health. [255]

I am, Sir, etc.

STATUTES

EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 46)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which came into force on receiving the Royal Assent on July 13, 1948, has two purposes, dealt with respectively in Parts I and II of the Act. Part I consolidates with modifications the enactments relating to the functions of the Minister of Labour and National Service as to employment and training for employment. Part II implements recommendations of the Committee on the Juvenile Employment Service, presided over by Sir Godfrey Ince, which reported in September, 1945, and provides for the establishment of a comprehensive Youth Employment Service. Finally, Part III of the Act contains a number of supplementary provisions.

S. 1 of the Act places on the Minister (who may appoint advisory committees to assist him) a general duty to provide services and facilities for promoting employment, and the remaining sections of Part I of the Act (except s. 6, which saves existing powers) deal in detail with the Minister's powers for carrying out this duty.

S. 2, replacing generally the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 650), authorises the establishment and maintenance of employment exchanges (as labour exchanges are now called) and the collection and furnishing of information for any of the purposes mentioned in s. 1. The Minister is enabled to defray, or contribute towards, the cost of employment bureaux established by local authorities under other Acts (for example, the Labour Bureaux (London) Act, 1902; 20 Halsbury's Statutes 649) or by non-profit-making bodies such as the British Legion. The existing provisions regarding the making of arrangements with employers for the notification of vacancies, and as to penalties for false statements, are substantially continued, as is also the provision prohibiting the disqualification of a person from employment exchange facilities for refusing work in the event of a trade dispute affecting his trade or where the wages offered are too low. A new provision enables the Minister to pay, by way of grant or loan, the expenses of persons attending an employment exchange, and the fees of any medical practitioners who may examine such persons.

The Minister's power of providing training courses, which hitherto has been limited to the unemployed and certain other specified categories of persons (see the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 77; 28 Halsbury's Statutes 547, as amended by the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1939, s. 8; 32 Halsbury's Statutes 746), is extended to cover all persons above the upper limit of compulsory school age (i.e. at present, fifteen) whether employed or not (s. 3). The same section also extends the power which the Minister formerly had under the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 79, of defraying or contributing towards the cost of courses provided by other authorities or persons. This extension of scope will enable effect to be given to the policy laid down in the White Paper on Employment Policy issued in 1944 (Cmd. 6527) for the extended use of training to facilitate post-war redeployment of labour.

Substantially re-enacting the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 100 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 560), s. 4 of the present Act enables the Minister to assist any scheme for promoting greater regularity of employment in industry.

S. 5 (1), which replaces provisions made by the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, s. 2 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 650), and the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 102 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 561), extends the Minister's power of making loans or grants in respect of the removal and resettlement expenses of workers and their dependants, first, to cover foreign workers, and secondly, to cover the further removal of such workers when their employment comes to an end. These extensions are designed to facilitate the recruitment of foreign workers, which the Government is desirous of promoting. S. 5 (2) and (3) authorise the recovery of travelling expenses from the person assisted in certain circumstances, detailed provision for repayment out of the National Insurance Fund in connection with loans for travelling expenses being made by the Employment and Training (Payment of Travelling Expenses) Regulations, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 1668), post.

Since statutory provision in this matter was first made in the years 1909–10, responsibility for the provision of employment services for juveniles in England has been divided between two authorities, employment exchanges and local education authorities. Though difficulties arose from this dual control the general effect of Part II of the Act is to retain the previous system while modifying and extending it in a number of important respects. Part II, which follows in the main the recommendations of the Ince Committee, applies to all persons under the age of eighteen and persons over that age who are still at school (s. 7 (2)).

The Act, while preserving the ultimate responsibility of the Minister of Labour and National Service, provides for the central administration of the service by a Central Youth Employment Executive staffed by officers of that Minister and of the Minister of Education and the Secretary of State for Scotland (s. 7 (1); Ince Report, para. 146). A National Youth Employment Council, together with advisory committees for Scotland and Wales, have been established to advise the Minister as to the service generally (s. 8 (1); Ince Report, paras. 169–180; and S.I. 1948 No. 2081, post), while area Youth Employment Committees are to advise the Minister or the local education authority, as may be appropriate, on matters relating to local administration (ss. 9, 10 (2) (c); Ince Report, paras. 181–184).

In order that the service, whether provided locally by the officers of the Minister or by the local education authority, may be in a position to give adequate advice to all persons who wish to use it, regulations may be made requiring proprietors of schools to furnish reports on the health, ability, educational attainments and aptitudes of their pupils on leaving school or attaining a prescribed age (s. 13; Ince Report, para. 44). These reports will be confidential documents, though parents or guardians of the persons to whom they relate will be entitled to examine them, but not to copy them, in the presence of the officers responsible (s. 13 (3)). Proprietors of schools failing to comply with the regulations will be guilty of an offence (s. 13 (4)).

Subject to a temporary saving for existing schemes, the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 81 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 550), which empowered local education authorities to provide employment services for juveniles under approved schemes, is repealed (s. 21 (1) and Sched. II), being replaced with modifications by ss. 10–12 of the present Act. Any local education authority may now be authorised by means of a scheme approved by the Minister of Labour under s. 10 to undertake any such functions as are conferred on the Minister with regard to employment exchanges and services connected therewith. The persons to be covered by such schemes are persons at school or persons under eighteen who are residing or employed in their area or who apply in the area for advice as to employment.

(1) No scheme may be submitted after January 13, 1949 (s. 10 (5); Ince Report, para. 159). This removes an element of instability inherent in the previous system by ensuring that by that date the authorities responsible for administering the service in all areas will be determined once and for all;

(2) All schemes must be in effective operation within six months after approval, or such longer period as may be allowed (s. 12 (5); Ince Report, para. 160);

(3) A scheme must apply to the whole area of a local education authority (s. 10 (1); Ince Report, para. 162). Under the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, supra, which contained no such provision, a number of schemes were approved which applied to part only of an authority's area, resulting in administrative difficulties for the Minister of Labour who had to provide for the remaining part which was often a straggling fringe round an urban area; and

(4) Where a local education authority wish to terminate a scheme, an order of the Minister and six months' notice are necessary (s. 12 (3); Ince Report, para. 161). Hitherto an authority has been able to terminate a scheme on as little as three months' notice, which often gave insufficient time for the Ministry of Labour to provide an alternative service.

Existing schemes are continued in force until January 13, 1949, and if before that date a local education authority submits a new scheme under s. 10, the Minister has power to prolong the life of the old scheme until the new one is in operation (s. 21 (3)).

A scheme under s. 10 must contain, inter alia, provisions for consultation and co-operation with the authority responsible for administering the service in any other area, and for delegating prescribed functions to a committee of the local education authority (s. 10 (2)). In addition, a scheme must provide for the administration by the authority of unemployment benefit and national assistance (s. 11 ; Ince Report, para. 137).

Grants of 75 per cent. of the administrative expenses of an authority under a scheme will be paid by the Minister (s. 10 (3) and the Youth Employment Service (Administrative Expenses) Regulations, 1948 ; S.I. 1948 No. 1742), post). Provision is made for the amendment and revocation of schemes, including provision for revocation where a scheme is not being conducted efficiently (s. 12 (4) ; Ince Report, para. 151).

Finally, Part III of the Act contains various ancillary sections, including provisions as to expenses (s. 14), offences (s. 16) and regulations (s. 17). Provision is made for amending the qualifications required for appointment as a member of the National Youth Employment Council or of the Advisory Committees for Scotland and Wales, and for varying the number of such members (s. 15). [257]

[13th July, 1948.]

PART I

FUNCTIONS OF MINISTER AS TO EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

1. General functions of Minister as to employment and training for employment.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the Minister of Labour and National Service (in this Act referred to as "the Minister") to provide such facilities and services as he considers expedient for the purpose of assisting persons to select, fit themselves for, obtain and retain employment suitable to their age and capacity, of assisting employers to obtain suitable employees, and generally for the purpose of promoting employment in accordance with the requirements of the community. [258]

(2) For the purpose of advising and assisting him in the performance of his functions under this Act, the Minister may appoint such advisory committees as he thinks fit, and any such committee may be appointed either in respect of the whole of Great Britain or in respect of any area therein. [259]

(3) The Minister may make regulations with respect to the constitution and functions of any such advisory committee as aforesaid. [260]

General note.—This section imposes a general duty on the Minister of Labour and National Service to provide services for promoting employment. The succeeding sections of this Part of the Act deal with his functions in more detail, while Part II contains special provisions relating to the Youth Employment Service.

Promoting employment in accordance with the requirements of the community.—As to these words, see 156 H. of L. Official Report 632. It should be noted that the Act contains no power for the compulsory direction of labour, though power exists independently under reg. 58A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended).

Advisory committees.—Advisory committees were previously established for a more limited purpose under the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, s. 2 (5) (20 Halsbury's Statutes 651).

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press no regulations under this section had been made. Until superseded, the Employment Exchanges (Advisory Committee) Regulations, 1917 (S. R. & O., 1917, No. 601), made under the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, s. 2 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 650), will continue in force as if made under sub-s. (3), supra (see s. 21 (2), post).

2. Employment exchanges and employment services.—(1) The Minister may establish and maintain, in such places as he thinks fit, employment exchanges, that is to say offices or places for the collection and furnishing of information, either by the keeping of registers or otherwise, respecting persons who seek to engage employees and persons who seek employment. [261]

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, the Minister may make such arrangements as he considers expedient, whether by means of employment exchanges or otherwise, for the collection and furnishing of information, and the provision of advice, guidance or other services for persons of any class (whether employed or not) for any of the purposes mentioned in section one of this Act. [262]

(3) Subject to the approval of the Treasury, the Minister may defray or contribute towards expenditure incurred by any local authority under any enactment other than this Act in the provision of any such services as are mentioned in the last foregoing subsection, and may make such contributions as he may, with the consent of the Treasury, determine towards the funds of any voluntary association having among its objects the provision of any such services. [263]

(4) The Minister may make regulations with respect to the management of employment exchanges provided by him under this section, and otherwise with respect to the exercise of his functions thereunder. [264]

(5) No person shall be disqualified or otherwise prejudiced in respect of facilities provided at any employment exchange as aforesaid on account of his refusal to accept employment found for him through such an exchange if the ground of his refusal is that a trade dispute which affects his trade exists, or that the wages offered are lower than those current in the trade in the district where the employment is found. [265]

(6) Subject to the approval of the Treasury, the Minister may, in such cases and subject to such conditions as he thinks fit, make payments by way of grant or loan to persons travelling to or attending at any employment exchange or other place for the purpose of availing themselves of services provided under this section, and may pay to medical practitioners, in respect of the examination of persons availing themselves of such services, such fees as he may determine. [266]

(7) If any person, for the purpose of obtaining employment or procuring employees, knowingly makes any false statement or false representation to an officer of any employment exchange provided by the Minister under this section, or to any person acting for or for the purposes of any such exchange, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds. [267]

(8) The Minister shall, so far as practicable, make arrangements with employers for the notification by them to employment exchanges of situations in their employment which are or are about to become vacant. [268]

General note.—This section re-enacts in modified form the provisions of the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 650) (repealed by s. 21 (1) and Sched. II, post), dealing with the establishment of employment exchanges and the furnishing of information, advice and other services.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Employment exchange.—This term is defined by sub-s. (1), supra, substantially reproducing the definition of "labour exchange" in the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, s. 5 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 651). The exchanges have, for many years past, been officially designated employment exchanges.

Under any enactment other than this Act.—These words are necessary since special provision regarding the defrayal of local authority expenditure under the Act is made by ss. 10 (3) and 11, post.

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press no regulations had been made under this section. Until superseded, the General Regulations for Labour Exchanges managed by the Ministry of Labour, 1910 (S. R. & O., 1910, No. 800), as amended by S. R. & O., 1917, No. 601, made under the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, s. 2 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 650), will continue in force as if made under sub-s. (4), supra (see s. 21 (2), post).

Trade dispute.—The expression "trade dispute" is not defined by the Act of 1909 or by the present Act. But see the National Insurance Act, 1946, s. 13 (6) (b) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 433); the National Assistance Act, 1948, s. 64 (1) (see title PUBLIC ASSISTANCE, post); the Industrial Courts Act, 1919, s. 8 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 719); and National Association of Local Government Officers v. Bolton Corporation, [1943] A. C. 166; [1942] 2 All E. R. 425, H. L.

Offence.—Proceedings for an offence under the Act may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Minister (s. 16, post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority" and "voluntary association", see s. 18 (1), post.

3. Provisions as to training for employment.—(1) The Minister may provide such training courses for persons, whether employed or not, who are above the upper limit of the compulsory school age as he thinks necessary or expedient for any of the purposes mentioned in section one of this Act. [269]

(2) For the purposes aforesaid, the Minister may, in such cases and subject to such conditions as he may with the approval of the Treasury determine, defray or contribute towards the cost of training courses provided by any other authority or person for any such persons as are mentioned in the last foregoing subsection. [270]

(3) References in this section to the provision of a training course shall be construed as including references—

(a) to the making of payments to persons who attend at any such course, in respect of their maintenance or in respect of their travelling expenses;

(b) to the provision of residential accommodation, board and facilities for recreation and welfare for such persons;

(c) to the provision of any other facilities or services incidental to the purposes of the course. [271]

(4) Without prejudice to the foregoing provisions of this section, where, in pursuance of arrangements made with the Minister, provision is made by an employer for the training of persons in his employment, the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, make any payment or provide any facility or service to or for the benefit of those persons which he could make or provide if they were attending at a training course provided by him under this section. [272]

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorising the Minister to defray or contribute towards the cost of any course of instruction provided by a local education authority under section seventy-six of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, or to make any payment or provide any facility or service to or for the benefit of persons attending at such a course. [273]

(6) Subject as hereinafter provided the Minister of National Insurance may, with the consent of the Treasury, authorise the payment out of the National Insurance Fund of contributions towards expenses incurred by the Minister under this section in respect of persons entitled to unemployment benefit under the National Insurance Act, 1946, and persons who would be so entitled but for regulations made under that Act:

Provided that contributions under this subsection shall not exceed half a million pounds in any year. [274]

General note.—This section empowers the Minister of Labour and National Service (a) to provide training courses for all persons above the upper limit of the compulsory school age; and (b) to make payments and provide facilities in respect of training courses provided by any other authority or person for such persons, or by an employer for his employees, whatever their age.

The section replaces and extends the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 77 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 547), as amended by the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1939, s. 8 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 746), now repealed by s. 21 (1) and Sched. II, post. The wider powers provided by the present section implement the policy, laid down in the White Paper on Employment Policy issued in 1944 (Cmd. 6527), of providing training courses to facilitate the post-war redeployment of labour.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Training courses.—This term includes a course of instruction or course of occupation (s. 18 (1)).

Courses for persons under eighteen.—It is not the Minister's intention to provide training courses specifically for persons under eighteen years of age, since such persons are primarily the responsibility of the local education authorities (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.A., May 4, 1948, col. 22).

Upper limit of the compulsory school age.—This means the age that is for the time being that limit by virtue of s. 35 of the Education Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 165), together with any Order in Council under that section or any order made under s. 108 (3) of that Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 214). At present the upper limit is fifteen years, but it is intended when practicable to raise the limit to sixteen.

Whether employed or not.—These words embody the principal change effected by this section. Hitherto training courses could be provided only for persons not in whole-time employment and for members of the armed forces.

Sub-s. (4).—This subsection contains an extension of the scope of the previous law, and is inserted to implement a recommendation contained in para. 134 of the Report of the Committee on the Juvenile Employment Service for a scheme of training and maintenance grants to enable suitable boys and girls to take a course of training for a skilled occupation away from home where no facilities are available in their home neighbourhood.

Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 76.—28 Halsbury's Statutes 546. That section is prospectively repealed by the Education Act, 1944, s. 121, Sched. IX, Part II (37 Halsbury's Statutes 222, 238); see ss. 41–47 of that Act. But see also s. 21 (1) and Sched. II, post.

Sub-s. (5).—The provision made by this subsection, results from the fact that, since by s. 83 (1) of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 551), an authorised course of instruction is deemed to be a school, any expenditure incurred by local education authorities in providing such a course qualifies for a grant under the Education Act, 1944, s. 100 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 207).

National Insurance Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 412. As to entitlement to unemployment benefit, see ss. 11–13 of that Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 729 et seq.).

Definition.—For definition of "local education authority", see s. 18 (1), post.

4. Schemes for promoting regularity of employment.—(1) Where any scheme for promoting greater regularity of employment in any industry is approved by the Minister on the joint application of an organisation representing employers and an organisation representing workmen in that industry, the Minister may, in accordance with arrangements made with the consent of the Treasury, assist the administration of the scheme by attaching officers of the Ministry of Labour and National Service to help in the administration thereof, and by such other means as he thinks fit. [275]

(2) The Minister may, in accordance with such arrangements as aforesaid, issue on behalf of employers to persons to whom any such scheme applies any sums payable to those persons whether by way of wages or otherwise:

Provided that any arrangements making provision for the issue of any such sums shall also make provision for paying to the Minister any sums so issued by him and any expenses incurred by him which are attributable to the scheme. [276]

(3) If an organisation representing employers and an organisation representing workmen in any industry make to the Minister a joint representation as to any difficulty in the operation of any scheme for promoting greater regularity of employment in the industry, or in making any further scheme for that purpose for the industry, the Minister may appoint one or more persons to hold an inquiry into the circumstances giving rise to the difficulty and to make a report to him with respect thereto. [277]

(4) The fee to be paid by the Minister to any person holding such an inquiry as aforesaid shall be such as the Minister may with the consent of the Treasury direct. [278]

General note.—This section substantially re-enacts s. 100 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 560), which is repealed by s. 21 (1) and Sched. II, post. The powers provided by that section have not recently been used, but the Government has thought it desirable to retain them (see 156 H. of L. Official Report 633).

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

5. Payments towards cost of removal and resettlement of workers.—(1) Subject to the approval of the Treasury, the Minister may, for the purposes of his functions under section one of this Act, make provision by way of grant or loan or otherwise—

(a) for facilitating the removal of any persons, with or without their dependants, to or from any place in Great Britain for the purpose of obtaining employment;

(b) for the maintenance and welfare of persons so removed in the course of their removal or pending their resettlement, and, in the case of persons removed to any place in Great Britain, for their resettlement;

(c) where any persons removed as aforesaid for the purpose of obtaining employment fail to obtain employment, or employment obtained by persons so removed comes to an end, for facilitating the further removal of those persons, with or without their dependants, to any place whether in Great Britain or elsewhere. [279]

(2) Where any payment by way of loan has been made by the Minister under this section to or in respect of any person, being a person satisfying the contribution conditions for unemployment benefit under the National Insurance Act, 1946, on account of expenses of travelling to any place for the purpose of obtaining employment, the Minister of National Insurance may, whether or not that person obtains employment at that place, repay out of the National Insurance Fund such part of the advance as may be prescribed by regulations made by that Minister with the consent of the Treasury; and except as provided by the following provisions of this section, any sum so repaid out of the National Insurance Fund shall not be recoverable from the person to whom the loan was made. [280]

(3) If, in the event of employment being found for a person to or in respect of whom any such payment as is mentioned in the last foregoing subsection has been made, that person either fails without reasonable excuse to enter on that employment, or, within seven days of entering on it, leaves that employment without reasonable excuse, the sum repaid under the last foregoing subsection out of the National Insurance Fund may be recovered from him or deducted from any unemployment benefit, sickness benefit or retirement pension under the National Insurance Act, 1946, which may thereafter become payable to him. [281]

(4) Any sums recoverable under the last foregoing subsection may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recovered by the Minister of National Insurance summarily as a civil debt, and any sums recovered under that subsection shall be paid into the National Insurance Fund. [282]

General note.—Sub-s. (1), supra, reproduces with modifications part of s. 2 (1) of the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 650), and also s. 102 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 561), both of which are repealed by s. 21 (1) and Sched. II, post. Sub-s. (1) of the present section is of wider application, chiefly in order to facilitate the recruitment of foreign workers. In the first place, assistance towards resettlement is no longer restricted to persons coming from a place within the United Kingdom, and secondly, sub-s. (1) (c) enables provision to be made for the further removal to any place, whether in Great Britain or elsewhere, of assisted persons when their employment comes to an end.

The remaining subsections are subsidiary. Sub-ss. (2) and (3) reproduce, with slight modifications, s. 103 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 561).

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

National Insurance Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 412. As to unemployment and sickness benefit, see ss. 11–13 thereof (39 Halsbury's Statutes 429 et seq.); as to retirement pensions, see ss. 20 and 21 thereof (39 Halsbury's Statutes 439 et seq.). The contribution conditions for receipt of unemployment benefit are set out in Sched. III, para. 1, to the same Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 494).

National Insurance Fund.—This Fund was established under the National Insurance Act, 1946, s. 35 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 453).

Regulations.—See the Employment and Training (Payment of Travelling Expenses) Regulations, 1948, post, which provide that the amount repayable out of the National Insurance Fund under sub-s. (2), supra, shall be one-half of the amount (if any) by which the loan exceeds four shillings. As to regulations generally, see s. 17, post.

Civil debt.—As to the recovery of civil debts in courts of summary jurisdiction, see the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 35 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 342).

6. Saving for existing powers.—The powers conferred on the Minister by this Part of this Act shall be additional to and not in substitution for any powers exercisable by the Minister or by any other authority under any other enactment. [283]

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

PART II

THE YOUTH EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

7. Central Youth Employment Executive.—(1) For the purpose of facilitating the establishment of a comprehensive youth employment service, the Minister may make arrangements with the Minister of Education and the Secretary of State for the performance of any of his functions under this Act in relation to persons to whom this Part of this Act applies through an executive body, to be known as the Central Youth Employment Executive, consisting of such persons, being officers of the Minister, the Minister of Education or the Secretary of State, as may be appointed in accordance with the arrangements. [284]

(2) The persons to whom this Part of this Act applies are persons under the age of eighteen years and persons over that age who are for the time being attending school. [285]

General note.—The terms of reference of the Ince Committee, whose recommendations are implemented in this Part of the Act, stated that the new comprehensive Youth Employment Service would be administered as a joint service by the Minister of Labour and National Service, the Minister of Education and the Secretary of State for Scotland, but that the Minister of Labour and National Service would continue to be the Minister responsible to Parliament. It was stated that, centrally, the service would be administered by a Juvenile Employment Executive staffed from all three departments and advised by a Central Joint Council appointed by the three Ministers jointly but owing responsibility in the first instance to the Minister of Labour and National Service. Locally, the machinery for operating the service was to continue on much the same lines as before. The present section accordingly provides for the establishment of a Central Youth Employment Executive which will be responsible for questions of policy and procedure.

Definition.—For definition of " school ", see s. 18 (1), post.

8. National Youth Employment Council.—(1) Without prejudice to the powers conferred on the Minister by this Act to appoint advisory committees, there shall be constituted, in accordance with the provisions of Part I of the First Schedule to this Act, a council, to be known as the National Youth Employment Council, and Advisory Committees on Youth Employment for Scotland and Wales respectively. [286]

(2) It shall be the duty of the National Youth Employment Council (in this Act referred to as " the Council ") to advise the Minister as to the performance of his functions and the functions of local education authorities under this Act in relation to persons to whom this Part of this Act applies, and for that purpose to make to him such reports as the Minister may require and such representations as they consider expedient: and it shall be the duty of the said Advisory Committees to advise the Council as to the matters aforesaid so far as they relate to Scotland and Wales respectively, and for that purpose to make to the Council such reports as the Council may require and such representations as they consider expedient. [287]

(3) The supplementary provisions contained in Part II of the First Schedule to this Act shall have effect in relation to the Council and in relation to the Advisory Committees constituted under this section. [288]

General note.—This section, in conjunction with Sched. I, post, implements with one minor modification the recommendations as to national advisory machinery made by the Ince Committee in paras. 169–180 of their Report. The modification mentioned concerns the number of members of the Council (see the notes to Sched. I, post).

The National Council and the Advisory Committees for Scotland and Wales take the place of the National Advisory Councils for England and Wales, and for Scotland set up by the Minister of Labour in 1928. By the National Youth Employment Council and Advisory Committees for Scotland and Wales Regulations, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 2081), post, which came into operation on October 1, 1948, provision was made for the appointment of the first members of the National Council and Advisory Committees; it was further provided that the term of office of a member of the National Council or of an Advisory Committee should normally be three years, and the circumstances in which the office of a member should be vacated were prescribed.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Powers to appoint advisory committees.—For the powers in this connection conferred on the Minister by the present Act, see s. 1 (2), ante, and s. 9, post.

Persons to whom this Part of this Act applies.—See s. 7 (2), ante.

Definition.—For definition of " local education authority ", see s. 18 (1), post.

9. Youth Employment Committees.—(1) Regulations made by the Minister under section one of this Act shall provide for the constitution, for such areas as the Minister may determine, of advisory committees, to be known as Youth Employment Committees, for the purpose of advising the Minister as to the performance in those areas of his functions under this Act in relation to persons to whom this Part of this Act applies and of performing in relation to such persons in those areas such other duties connected with the Minister's said functions as may be specified in the regulations:

Provided that no such committee shall be appointed for any area in respect of which a scheme approved by the Minister under the next following section is for the time being in force. [289]

(2) The chairman and members of any such committee shall be appointed by the Minister, and shall include persons possessing experience and knowledge of education, employment and other conditions affecting the welfare of persons to whom this Part of this Act applies. [290]

General note.—This section, with s. 10 (2) (b), post, which together implement paras. 181–183 of the Ince Committee Report, provide for the appointment of local advisory committees to be known as Youth Employment Committees. Such committees, under slightly different names, are not new. In an area for which the Minister of Labour and National Service provided a youth employment service such committees were principally known as Juvenile Advisory Committees, while in a local education authority area they were called Juvenile Employment Committees. The Ince Report recommended the retention of such committees, but that they should in all cases be called Juvenile Employment Committees. The substitution of "Youth" for "Juvenile", which applies throughout the Act, was effected on the Report stage of the Bill.

Regulations.—Regulations for the constitution of Youth Employment Committees are to be made under s. 1, ante. Up to the time of going to press no such regulations had been made. As to regulations generally, see s. 17, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Persons to whom this Part of this Act applies.—See s. 7 (2), ante.

A scheme.—Where a Youth Employment Service is being provided by a local education authority under a scheme made under s. 10, post, the Youth Employment Committee will be appointed by the authority in accordance with the scheme, instead of by the Minister (see the proviso to sub-s. (1), supra, and s. 10 (2) (b), post).

10. Powers of local education authorities.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, any local education authority may be authorised by means of a scheme approved by the Minister under this section to undertake, in respect of the whole area of that authority, any such functions as are conferred on the Minister by section two of this Act in relation to persons to whom this Part of this Act applies, being persons who are for the time being attending school or residing or employed in any part of that area, or who apply in that area for advice as to employment whether in that area or elsewhere. [291]

(2) Any scheme approved by the Minister under this section—

(a) shall contain such provisions as appear to the Minister to be expedient for requiring the local education authority to consult and co-operate with the local education authority for any other area for which a scheme under this section is in force or, where no such scheme is in force, with the Minister;

(b) shall provide for the exercise by a committee of the local education authority of such of the functions of that authority under the scheme as may be prescribed by the scheme; and

(c) shall provide for the appointment by the said committee of one or more sub-committees, to be known as Youth Employment Committees, constituted in such manner as may be prescribed by the scheme, and for the performance by any such sub-committee of such advisory functions and such other duties connected with the functions of the local education authority under the scheme as may be so prescribed. [292]

(3) Where a scheme under this section is in force, the Minister shall from time to time pay to the local education authority in respect of their administrative expenses under the scheme such sums as may be determined in accordance with regulations made by the Minister with the consent of the Treasury. [293]

(4) Subject to the provisions of the next following subsection, the Minister may approve any scheme submitted to him for his approval under this section either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient after consultation with the local education authority. [294]

(5) No scheme shall be approved by the Minister under this section unless it is submitted to him within six months after the commencement of this Act :

Provided that if any scheme so submitted is not approved by the Minister, he may authorise the local education authority to submit to him a fresh scheme within such period as he may direct, and may approve any fresh scheme submitted by that authority within that period. [295]

General note.—This section, as supplemented by ss. 11 and 12, post, replaces s. 81 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 550), which had been found defective in several respects. The present section, implementing recommendations made by the Ince Committee (see paras. 158–162 of their Report) accordingly, inter alia, provides that a scheme must apply to the whole area of an authority, and limits the time within which a scheme may be submitted to six months from July 13, 1948. A temporary saving for schemes in force under the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 81, supra, is effected by s. 21 (3), post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Persons to whom this Part of this Act applies.—These are persons under the age of eighteen years and persons over that age who are for the time being attending school (see s. 7 (2), ante). Schemes under the present section will therefore cover a slightly wider range of persons than the previous schemes (see the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, s. 81; 28 Halsbury's Statutes 550), which only applied to persons under the age of eighteen.

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 17, post. Under sub-s. (3), supra, the Minister has made Youth Employment Service (Administrative Expenses) Regulations, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 1742), post, which came into operation on July 31, 1948.

Six months.—The period of six months allowed to local education authorities for making up their minds whether or not to submit a choice of employment scheme, was criticised at the Committee Stage of the Bill as being too short. It was pointed out, however, by the Government spokesman that the power to submit schemes had existed since 1910 when the Education (Choice of Employment) Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7 & 1 Geo. 5, c. 37) was passed, and the Report of the Committee on the Juvenile Employment Service which recommended the six months' period had been available since September, 1945. Moreover, all local education authorities had been circularised with a model scheme in August, 1947. The Minister stated that while he could not agree to any extension of this period, which would unduly delay the establishment of a comprehensive service, all that was required in the first instance were paper schemes of what local education authorities planned to do, and that an extension of time for overcoming any difficulties on the practical side would be allowed where necessary (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.A., May 11, 1948, cols. 51, 58). As to the time within which a scheme is to be brought into effective operation, see s. 12 (5), post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "local education authority" and "school", see s. 18, post.

11. Administration by local education authorities of unemployment benefit and national assistance.—(1) Any scheme approved under the last foregoing section shall provide, in addition to the matters specified in that section, for the performance by the local education authority of such functions as may be prescribed by the scheme in connection with—

(a) the administration of unemployment benefit claimed under the National Insurance Act, 1946, by persons under the age of eighteen years ;

(b) the grant of assistance under the National Assistance Act, 1948, to persons under that age. [296]

(2) There shall in each year be paid out of the National Insurance Fund to every local education authority performing such functions as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection, sums equal to the aggregate amount from time to time paid by that authority in unemployment benefit under the National Insurance Act, 1946. [297]

(3) The National Assistance Board shall in each year pay to every local education authority performing such functions as are mentioned in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section, sums equal to the aggregate amount of the expenses from time to time incurred by that authority in giving assistance under the National Assistance Act, 1948, not being expenses in respect of which payments may be made by the Minister under subsection (3) of section ten of this Act. [298]

General note.—This section, which is supplementary to s. 10, ante, makes it obligatory to include in any scheme under that section provision for the administration of unemployment benefit and national assistance by the local education authority, who are entitled to be reimbursed by the Minister of National Insurance out of the National Insurance Fund and by the National Assistance Board, respectively. The provisions made by the present section give effect to the views of the Ince Committee (see paras. 136 and 137 of their Report), that employment and unemployment problems are so inextricably interwoven that whoever administers the service must deal with the juvenile in respect of both matters.

National Insurance Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 412. As to unemployment benefit, see ss. 11–13 of that Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 429 et seq.). The National Insurance Fund was constituted under s. 35 thereof (39 Halsbury's Statutes 453).

National Assistance Act, 1948.—See title PUBLIC ASSISTANCE, post. Assistance for persons in need is granted under Part II of that Act by the National Assistance Board, formerly the Assistance Board but re-named by s. 2 of that Act.

Definition.—For definition of "local education authority", see s. 15, post.

12. Amendment and revocation of schemes under s. 10.—(1) A scheme approved by the Minister under section ten of this Act may be amended by a subsequent scheme so approved, and subsection (5) of that section shall not apply to any such amending scheme. [299]

(2) If it appears to the Minister that any such scheme as aforesaid should be amended, he may after consultation with the local education authority give directions to the local education authority requiring them to submit for his approval a scheme amending the first mentioned scheme in respect of such matters as may be specified in the directions; and if any such directions are not complied with within such time as may be specified therein, the Minister may, after consultation with the Council, by order revoke the scheme. [300]

(3) A scheme approved by the Minister under section ten of this Act may, if application is made in that behalf by the local education authority, be revoked by order made by the Minister as from such date (not being earlier than six months from the date on which the application is made) as may be specified in the order. [301]

(4) If it appears to the Minister that all or any of the functions of the local education authority under any such scheme as aforesaid have not been or are not being adequately performed, he may after consultation with the local education authority give to that authority such directions for remedying the default as he considers appropriate; and if any such directions are not complied with to the satisfaction of the Minister, he may, after consultation with the Council, by order revoke the scheme as from such date as may be specified in the order. [302]

(5) Without prejudice to the foregoing provisions of this section, if it appears to the Minister after consultation with a local education authority on whose application a scheme has been approved under section ten of this Act that the said authority have not taken, within the period of six months from the date on which that scheme was so approved, or such longer period as may be allowed by the Minister in any particular case, such steps as are necessary for putting the scheme into effective operation, he shall by order revoke the scheme. [303]

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

The Council.—The National Youth Employment Council (s. 8 (2), ante).

Sub-s. (3).—The length of notice required to discontinue a scheme operating under s. 81 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 350), was only three months, which allowed insufficient time for the Ministry of Labour and National Service to get a scheme under their auspices into operation. The Ince Committee, in para. 161 of their Report, proposed a minimum period of six months, and the present subsection enables effect to be given to this recommendation. It may be noted that revocation can only be effected by order of the Minister, who is not bound to make any such order.

Sub-s. (4).—This subsection implements the recommendation in para. 151 of the Ince Committee's Report that, where a scheme is not being operated efficiently and in accordance with his requirements, the Minister should have power to terminate the scheme on giving the responsible authority six months' notice.

Sub-s. (5).—This subsection implements para. 160 of the Ince Committee's Report, which recommended that the date by which a local education authority must put a scheme into operation should be not later than six months after the submission of their proposal and that if by that date they had not put a scheme into operation the proposal should lapse, unless the Minister agreed for good cause to extend the period.

It will be noted that while the period allowed for submitting a scheme (see s. 10 (6), ante) and for bringing it into operation is, in each case, six months, the latter period can be extended whereas the former can not. See the note to s. 10, ante, headed "Six months".

Definition.—For definition of "local education authority", see s. 18 (1), post.

13. Notification of particulars.—(1) The Minister may make regulations for requiring the proprietors of schools to furnish to the Minister in such manner as may be prescribed by the regulations such particulars as may be so prescribed with respect to pupils leaving school or who, while attending school, attain such age as may be prescribed by the regulations. [304]

(2) The particulars prescribed by any such regulations for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection shall be such particulars relating to the health, ability, educational attainments and aptitudes of the persons to whom they relate as appear to the Minister to be required for enabling adequate advice and assistance to be given to those persons in accordance with the provisions of this Act. [305]

(3) Any regulations made under this section shall make provision for restricting the disclosure of any particulars furnished thereunder, for prescribing the conditions under which records of any such particulars shall be maintained and the purposes for which they may be used and for requiring such records to be destroyed after such period as may be prescribed by the regulations:

Provided that any person being a parent or the guardian of a person of whom particulars have been so furnished shall be entitled, on application to the officer having the custody thereof, to examine those particulars in his presence, but shall not be entitled to receive or take copies thereof. [306]

(4) If any person contravenes or fails to comply with any requirement imposed on him by regulations made under this section, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds. [307]

(5) In relation to any area in which a scheme under section ten of this Act is for the time being in force, subsection (1) of this section shall have effect as if for the second reference to the Minister there were substituted a reference to the local education authority, and as if the references to schools did not include any school maintained by that authority:

Provided that subsection (3) of this section shall apply to any particulars kept by the local education authority in accordance with the scheme with respect to pupils of any school so maintained, as if those particulars had been furnished in pursuance of regulations made under the said subsection (1). [308]

General note.—This section enables effect to be given to a recommendation of the Ince Committee in para. 44 of their Report to the effect that every school should be required to register with the Youth Employment Service in such manner as might be prescribed every school-leaver or every person attaining the age of seventeen if still at school. In para. 45, the Committee stated that they contemplated that registration would in practice be effected by transferring to the Service the school record card or an abstract based on it.

These provisions are designed to facilitate the giving of vocational guidance to pupils before they leave school. The obligation to register is the only element of compulsion in the Youth Employment Service. The Ince Committee, in para. 44, already referred to, further recommended that persons registered by their school should be compelled to attend for interview by an officer of the Service, but this recommendation was not accepted.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 17, post. Up to the date of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

Sub-s. (3), proviso.—In the section as originally drawn the restriction on the disclosure of reports made by schools under the section was absolute, but following criticism the proviso to sub-s. (3), supra, was inserted in the Bill at the Committee Stage in the House of Lords.

Offence.—Proceedings for offences cannot be instituted except by or with the consent of the Minister (s. 16, post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "local education authority", "proprietor" and "school", see s. 18 (1), post.

PART III

SUPPLEMENTAL

14. Expenses.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to payments to be made out of the National Insurance Fund or by the National Assistance Board, there shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament, to such amount as may be sanctioned by the Treasury,—

(a) any expenditure of the Minister or the Minister of Education or the Secretary of State under this Act;

(b) such expenses or allowances payable to the members of the Council, of the Advisory Committees for Scotland and Wales, of any other committee appointed by the Minister under this Act, or of any committee or sub-committee thereof, as the Minister may with the consent of the Treasury determine. [309]

(2) Any sums paid out of the National Insurance Fund in respect of expenditure of the Minister under this Act shall be paid as an appropriation in aid of moneys provided by Parliament for that expenditure. [310]

Provisions with respect to payments out of National Insurance Fund, etc.—For the provisions of the Act in this connection, see ss. 8 (6), 5 (2) and 11 (2), (3), ante.
The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).
The Council.—The National Youth Employment Council (s. 8 (1), ante).
Committees.—As to the appointment of Committees by the Minister under this Act, see ss. 1 (2), 8 (1) and 9, ante.

15. Supplementary provisions as to National Youth Employment Council, etc.—(1) His Majesty may by Order in Council amend any of the provisions of Part I of the First Schedule to this Act relating to the number or qualification of the persons to be appointed as members of the Council or of the Advisory Committee for Scotland or Wales. [311]

(2) Any such Order in Council may be varied or revoked by a subsequent Order in Council. [312]

(3) A draft of any Order in Council under this section shall be laid before Parliament, and the draft shall not be submitted to His Majesty unless each House of Parliament presents an Address to His Majesty praying that the Order be made. [313]

Order in Council.—Up to the time of going to press no Order in Council under this section had been made.
The Council.—The National Youth Employment Council (s. 8 (1), ante).
May be varied or revoked.—The general power of variation and revocation conferred by s. 32 (3) of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1003), does not apply to Orders in Council; hence the express provision.
The draft shall not be submitted, etc.—Under existing procedure the two Houses of Parliament have no power to amend draft Orders in Council on their being laid before them for affirmative approval: they must either give or withhold their approval of the drafts as they stand.

16. Provisions as to offences.—Proceedings for any offence under this Act shall not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Minister. [314]

Offence under this Act.—See ss. 2 (7) and 13 (4), ante. The present provision avoids the danger of malicious action by a private individual.
The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

17. General provisions as to regulations.—Any power of the Minister or the Minister of National Insurance to make regulations under this Act shall be exercisable by statutory instrument, and every such instrument shall be subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament. [315]

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

Statutory instrument.—Statutory instruments, which since January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3), have superseded the earlier Statutory Rules and Orders, are defined in s. 1 of the Statutory Instruments Act (30 Halsbury's Statutes 784). As to statutory instruments which are subject to annulment by resolution of either House of Parliament, see s. 5 of that Act. This "negative resolution procedure" may be contrasted with the "affirmative resolution procedure" referred to in s. 15, ante.

18. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

"compulsory school age" has the meaning assigned to it by section thirty-five of the Education Act, 1944 ;

"industry" means any class or classes of establishments or undertakings or of branches or departments of establishments or undertakings, or any class or classes of such establishments, undertakings, branches or departments in any area, which the Minister may determine to be an industry for the purposes of this Act ;

"local authority" means the council of a county, county borough or county district, the common council of the City of London and the council of any metropolitan borough ;

"local education authority" means a local education authority as defined by section one hundred and fourteen of the Education Act, 1944 ;

"proprietor" in relation to a school maintained by a local education authority means that authority, and in relation to any other school means the person or body of persons responsible for the management of the school ;

"school" means a school as defined by section one hundred and fourteen of the Education Act, 1944 ;

"training course" includes a course of instruction or course of occupation ;

"voluntary association" includes any company which is required by its constitution to apply its profits, if any, or other income in promoting its objects and prohibited thereby from paying any dividend to its members. [316]

(2) Any reference in this Act to any other enactment shall, unless the context otherwise requires, be construed as a reference to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment. [317]

"Compulsory school age".—The Education Act, 1944, s. 35 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 165) defines "compulsory school age" as meaning any age between five years and fifteen years, and provides that accordingly a person shall be deemed to be of compulsory school age if he has attained the age of five years and has not attained the age of fifteen years and a person shall be deemed to be over compulsory school age as soon as he has attained the age of fifteen years. A proviso to the said section provides for the eventual raising of the school-leaving age to sixteen.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 1 (1), ante).

"Local education authority".—By the Education Act, 1944, s. 114 (1) (38 Halsbury's Statutes 217), "local education authority" means, in relation to any area for which a joint education board is constituted as the local education authority under the provisions of Part I of the First Schedule to that Act, the board so constituted, and save as aforesaid means, in relation to a county, the council of the county, and, in relation to a county borough, the council of the county borough.

"School".—By the Education Act, 1944, s. 114 (1) (38 Halsbury's Statutes 217), "school" means an institution for providing primary or secondary education or both primary and secondary education, being a school maintained by a local education authority, an independent school, or a school in respect of which grants are made by the Minister to the proprietor of the school; and the expression "school", where used without qualifications, includes any such school or all such schools as the context may require.

19. Application to Scotland. [318]

20. Provisions as to Northern Ireland. [319]

21. Repeals.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, the enactments specified in the Second Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule. [320]

(2) Any regulations made under the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, and any rules or other instruments having effect by virtue of such regulations, shall, if in force immediately before the commencement of this Act, continue in force and have effect as if the regulations had been made under the corresponding provisions of this Act, and may be amended or revoked accordingly. [321]

(3) Any scheme in force under section eighty-one of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935, immediately before the commencement of this Act shall continue in force until the expiration of six months from the commencement of this Act, and if within that period a scheme under section ten of this Act has been submitted to the Minister by the local education authority, shall continue in force for such further period as the Minister may direct; and while any such scheme is in force, the enactments repealed by this section shall have effect in relation thereto as if this section had not been enacted. [322]

(4) Notwithstanding the repeal by this section of section one hundred and thirty-five of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1946, any agency which, immediately before the commencement of this Act, is maintained by an education authority under that section may be maintained thereunder until the expiration of six months from the commencement of this Act, and if within that period a scheme under section ten of this Act has been submitted to the Minister by that authority, may be so maintained for such further period as the Minister may direct. [323]

(5) Nothing in this section shall affect the validity of any regulations made, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, under paragraph (g) of subsection (1) of section sixty-nine of the National Insurance Act, 1946, in relation to any enactment repealed by that Act. [324]

Labour Exchanges Act, 1909.—20 Halsbury's Statutes 650.

Regulations.—Regulations made under the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, supra, which were in force on the commencement of the present Act, were the General Regulations for Labour Exchanges (S. R. & O., 1910, No. 806, as amended by S. R. & O., 1917, No. 601); and the Employment Exchanges (Advisory Committee) Regulations, 1917 (S. R. & O., 1917, No. 601).

Commencement of this Act.—July 13, 1948.

Sub-s. (3).—The subsection effects a temporary saving for former Youth Employment Service schemes made under s. 81 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 550), which is repealed by sub-s. (1), supra, and Sched. II, post, pending the coming into operation of new schemes under s. 10, ante.

NATIONAL SERVICE ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 64)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

When the National Service Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1142), extended the compulsory call-up of youths for the Armed Forces, provision was made, by ss. 10 and 11 of that Act (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1151, 1152) for transferring to the Service Authorities the obligation of local education authorities to provide educational facilities for conscripts during their period of whole-time service, though power was given to make arrangements as to education with the service authorities. In addition, local education authorities and others were placed under a duty to supply the Minister of Labour and National Service with such information as to male pupils or ex-pupils as the Minister might require " for the purpose of assisting his consideration of questions connected with their being called up for service."

The bulk of the provisions of the Act of 1947, including the sections mentioned above, were only, however, to come into force as from January 1, 1949, and on July 30, 1948, the present Act was passed with a view to consolidating, without amendment, the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1947, and other legislation. Accordingly, ss. 10 and 11 of the Act of 1947 are repealed and replaced as from January 1, 1949, by ss. 28 and 29 of the present Act. The new and the old sections are identical save for the closing words of s. 29 of the latter Act which read " under this Part of this Act " as against " under this Act " in s. 11 of the former. The whole of the National Service Act, 1947, is repealed as from January 1, 1949, by s. 60 of the present Act and Sched. VI thereto.

Other relevant sections of the present Act appear in the title BLIND PERSONS, ante. [380]

* * * * *

28. Further education during whole-time service.—(1) The duty of local education authorities under section forty-one of the Education Act, 1944, to secure the provision for their area of adequate facilities for further education shall not extend to any person during his term of whole-time service; and a person shall, during his term of whole-time service, be exempt from compulsory attendance for further education under that Act. [332]

(2) It shall be the duty of the Service Authorities to provide, so far as may be practicable, further education within the meaning of the said section forty-one for persons during their terms of whole-time service; and, notwithstanding the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, every local education authority shall have power to provide, or secure the provision of, such facilities for further education for such persons as aforesaid as may be agreed between them and any Service Authority, upon such terms, if any, as may be so agreed. [333]

(3) In making arrangements for such further education as aforesaid the Service Authorities shall have regard to any representations made to them by or on behalf of bodies of persons concerned with education. [334]

General note.—This section supersedes s. 10 of the National Service Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1151), its terms being identical with that section. S. 41 of the Education Act, 1944 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 170), requires local education authorities to secure the provision of facilities for (a) full-time and part-time education for persons over compulsory school age, and (b) leisure-time occupation in training and recreation, when desired, and the object of the present section is to transfer the obligation to the Service Authorities as regards national service men during their whole-time service. Local education authorities may, however, make educational arrangements with the Service Authorities. The obligation of local education authorities under s. 41 remains unchanged during the subsequent part-time service.

The term "local education authority" is defined in s. 114 (1) of the Education Act, 1944 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 217).

Date of operation.—This section comes into force on January 1, 1949 (s. 62 (2), post).

29. Information to be furnished by education authorities.—It shall be the duty of every local education authority, and of the governing body or other persons having the management of any university, school or other educational institution, to give to the Minister, on his request, such information in their possession, or reasonably available to them, about male persons receiving, or who have received, education for which the local education authority are responsible, or, as the case may be, education at the university, school or other institution, as the Minister may from time to time require for the purpose of assisting his consideration of questions connected with their being called up for service under this Part of this Act. [335]

General note.—This section supersedes s. 11 of the National Service Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1152), without substantial change.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service (s. 34 (1) of the Act).

For the purpose of assisting, etc.—The Minister might wish to check a man's registration particulars; the authorities might be in process of calling up someone and might find that there were two people of the same name, or of similar names and registration numbers, and they might not be sure which was which. It was therefore desired to be able to ask educational authorities for men's names, registration numbers, home addresses, etc. (see 437 H. of C. Official Report 737). Similar provision was made by s. 10 of the Military Training Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 605), which expired by effluxion of time on May 30, 1942.

Date of operation.—This section comes into force on January 1, 1949 (s. 62 (2), post).

30. False statements and forgery.—Any person who—

(a) in giving any information for the purposes of this Part of this Act knowingly or recklessly makes a statement which is false in a material particular, or

(b) with intent to deceive—

(i) forges or uses, or lends to or allows to be used by any other person, any certificate issued under this Part of this Act, or

(ii) makes, or has in his possession, any document so closely resembling any certificate so issued as to be calculated to deceive, shall be guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds or to both such imprisonment and such fine. [336]

General note.—This section reproduces s. 16 of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1057), which Act had been the principal Act relating to military conscription since its passing on September 3, 1939. As from January 1, 1949, the whole of the Act of 1939 is repealed by s. 60 of the present Act and Sched. VI thereto.

Date of operation.—This section comes into force on January 1, 1949 (s. 62 (2), post).

* * * * *

* * * * *

61. Duration of Act.—No person who attains the age of eighteen years on or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifty-four shall be liable under this Act to be called upon to serve in the armed forces of the Crown; and accordingly this Act shall continue in operation only with respect to persons who have attained that age or who have been called up for service under this Act before that date:

Provided that His Majesty may by Order in Council substitute for the said day such later day as may seem to His Majesty expedient. [337]

General note.—This section sets a limit to the duration of compulsory service in the Armed Forces, but the limit may be extended by Order in Council.

Proviso.—Under the National Service Act, 1947, ss. 27 and 22 (1) (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1159, 1157) it appeared that an affirmative resolution of both Houses was required before the limit could be so extended, and this was confirmed by the Minister of Defence in the course of the debates on the Bill. The present Act makes no such provision, but it is provided by s. 4 of the National Service (Amendment) Act, 1948 (12 & 13 Geo. 6, c. 6), that in case of an Order in Council under the proviso a draft of the Order is to be laid before Parliament and is not to be submitted to His Majesty except in pursuance of an address presented by each House of Parliament.

62. Short title and commencement.—(1) This Act may be cited as the National Service Act, 1948. [338]

(2) This Act shall come into force on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-nine. [339]

January 1, 1949.—This is the date when the bulk of the provisions of the National Service Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 1142), including ss. 10 and 11 thereof relating to local education authorities, was to have taken effect. The provisions of that Act are, however, reproduced in the present Act.

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT SERVICE (ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES) REGULATIONS, 1948

July 22 1948

The Minister of Labour and National Service (hereinafter referred to as " the Minister ") by virtue of the powers conferred on him by section 10 (3) of the Employment and Training Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as " the Act "), and of all other powers in that behalf, and with the consent of the Treasury, hereby makes the following Regulations :—

1. Short title, commencement and interpretation.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Youth Employment Service (Administrative Expenses) Regulations, 1948, and shall come into operation on the 31st day of July, 1948.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

(3) In these Regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them, that is to say:—

"approved scheme" means a scheme approved by the Minister under section 10 of the Act;

"authority" means a local education authority as defined in section 18 or, in the application of these Regulations to Scotland, in section 19 of the Act;

"financial year" has the meaning assigned to that expression by section 305 of the Local Government Act, 1933, or, in the application of these Regulations to Scotland, by section 174 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1947.

(4) Any reference in these Regulations to any enactment shall, unless the context otherwise requires, be construed as a reference to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment. [342]

2. Application to Scotland. [343]

3. Payment of grant.—Subject to the provisions of these Regulations a substantive grant will be payable to authorities by the Minister for each financial year in respect of their administrative expenses incurred in that year in connection with functions undertaken by them under an approved scheme. [344]

4. Amount of grant.—The grant payable for a financial year to an authority will be equal to three-quarters of the net administrative expenses of that year of that authority incurred as aforesaid, recognised by the Minister as expenditure in aid of which parliamentary grants should be made to the authority. [345]

5. Method of claim and conditions for grant.—(1) Each authority undertaking functions under an approved Scheme shall submit to the Minister annual estimates of expenditure in such form and at such time as the Minister may direct. The amount of grant estimated to be payable for the year will, subject to the provision by Parliament of the necessary moneys, be payable by one or more instalments on account during the year.

(2) The inclusion by the Minister of expenditure for the purpose of calculating the instalments of grant payable on account shall not be regarded as committing the Minister to the recognition of such expenditure for the purpose of these Regulations.

(3) The authority shall make a claim to the grant in such form as the Minister may direct and shall furnish such other returns in connection therewith as the Minister may require, and the balance of the grant will be paid after the claim has been duly certified by the District Auditor of the Ministry of Health.

(4) The grant is conditional upon the Minister being satisfied—

(i) that the provisions of the approved scheme have been observed,

(ii) that the functions undertaken by the authority have been efficiently discharged, and

(iii) that the authority have supplied punctually such information and returns as the Minister has required.

If the Minister is not satisfied on any of these matters, he may withhold or make a deduction from the grant. [346]

6. Ascertainment of net administrative expenses.—For the purpose of these Regulations net administrative expenses shall be ascertained by deducting from the total of the recognised administrative expenditure incurred as aforesaid all income relating to the functions under the approved scheme except income from rates raised by the authority or grants paid by the Minister under these Regulations. REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 65)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which received the Royal Assent on July 30, 1948, and is based on the Reports of the Committee on Electoral Law Reform, substantially amends the law relating to parliamentary and local government elections, and corrupt and illegal practices in connection therewith, but it is not in the nature of a code. It is divided into six Parts and has thirteen Schedules; its provisions are to come into force on different dates (s. 80).

The Act repeals and supersedes, inter alia, most of the provisions of the existing Representation of the People Acts; in particular, virtually the whole of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 548), the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Act, 1943 (i.e. Part I of the Parliament (Elections and Meeting) Act, 1943; 36 Halsbury's Statutes 93), the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time) Registration Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 238), and most of the Representation of the People Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 67). It also partly repeals and otherwise amends, inter alia, the Ballot Act, 1872 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 427), the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 465), the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 511), the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 295), the London Government Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 259), and the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 389).

Part I of the Act relates to the parliamentary franchise and its exercise. While retaining the machinery for the redistribution of seats introduced by the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, supra, and the time-honoured distinction between county and borough constituencies, the Act entirely recasts the distribution of seats at parliamentary elections, abolishing altogether university and two-member constituencies (s. 1 (1) and Sched. I).

The parliamentary franchise is also placed on a new basis, the main alterations being, besides the disappearance of the university franchise, the abolition of the business premises qualification and the substitution of a qualifying date for the qualifying period in connection with the residence qualification, which is now to be the only qualification conferring the franchise (ss. 1 (2), (3), 2; and see s. 71 (3)). The exercise of the right to vote will, however, continue to depend on registration, while, on the other hand, no one will be permitted at a general election to vote as an elector in more than one constituency (s. 1 (2), proviso).

The law relating to the registration of electors is re-enacted on much the same lines as it was enacted by the Representation of the People Act, 1918, supra. This involves the retention of the system of registration officers (s. 4), as well as the re-establishment of the two annual registers of electors, the spring register and the autumn register (s. 5). But where two or more constituencies have the same registration officer, they will together form a registration area (s. 4 (2)). Moreover, there will be not only an absent voters list, but also a list of proxies and a list of persons entitled to vote by post as proxy, but all three lists are only to be prepared if and when a poll is to be taken (Sched. III, Part II, para. 15 (1)).

Special provision is made so as to enable persons who have or are about to acquire what the Act calls a "service qualification", to be registered on the strength of a "service declaration". The effect of such a declaration may be that the declarant is to be treated for the purposes of registration as having been resident on the qualifying date at an address at which he was not in fact residing, and the declaration may be made notwithstanding the declarant is not yet of age (s. 6).

The existing law as to the division of constituencies into polling districts and the designation of polling places is substantially re-enacted, provision being made that in the case of a county constituency each parish is, in the absence of special circumstances, to form a separate polling district or separate polling districts (s. 7).

On principle all persons voting as electors will have to do so in person at the polling station allotted to them under the Ballot Act, 1872, supra. Exception is, however, made (i) for persons registered as service voters; (ii) for persons unable or unlikely to go in person to the polling station for certain specified reasons; (iii) for persons unable or likely to be unable, by reason of blindness or some other physical incapacity, to go in person to the polling station, or, if able to go, to vote unaided; (iv) for persons unable or likely to be unable to go in person from their qualifying address to the polling station without making a journey by air or sea; and (v) for persons no longer residing at their qualifying address. Any such person may, in general, vote by post if he applies to be treated as an absent voter and furnishes an address in the United Kingdom to which a ballot paper is to be sent. A person registered as a service voter may vote by proxy, and so may a person not so registered if unable or likely to be unable to go in person to the polling station by reason either of the general nature of his occupation, service or employment, or of his service as a member of His Majesty's reserve or auxiliary forces, if he applies to be treated as an absent voter and is likely to be at sea or out of the United Kingdom on the date of the poll. Moreover, a person not registered as a service voter, if he is entitled to vote in person, but unable or likely to be unable to go in person to his polling station by reason of the particular circumstances of his employment, on the date of the poll, as a constable or, for election purposes, by the returning officer may vote at any other polling station of the constituency on production and surrender of a certificate as to employment. On the other hand, a person whose application to be treated as an absent voter is allowed is not entitled to vote in person (s. 8, in conjunction with Sched. III, Part III, para. 4 (1)).

An application to be treated as an absent voter is to be made to, and decided by, the registration officer, who is to keep a record of absent voters and the addresses furnished by them to which their ballot papers are to be sent. Such applications are, in general, to be for a particular election only, but in certain cases are to be for an indefinite period (s. 9).

Proxies are to be appointed by the registration officer by means of a proxy paper issued by him on the application of the elector. The appointment, which is free of stamp duty, may be cancelled by the elector by means of notice to the registration officer and will cease to be in force on the issue of a proxy paper appointing a different person to vote for the elector. Otherwise, it will remain in force for all elections for which the elector is registered pursuant to the same service declaration or, as the case may be, at which he is entitled to vote by proxy pursuant to the same application to be treated as an absent voter. A proxy must be a British subject of full age and not subject to any legal incapacity to vote at the election, and no person may vote as proxy at the same election in any constituency on behalf of more than two electors of whom that person is not the spouse, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild. A record of electors for whom proxies have been appointed and of the names and addresses of the persons appointed is to be kept by the registration officer (s. 10).

A proxy must, in general, vote in person at the elector's polling station, but the proxy of a person registered as a service voter may in certain circumstances vote by post if he applies so to do and furnishes an address in the United Kingdom to which a ballot paper can be sent. The application is to be made to the registration officer, who is to keep a record of all persons for the time being allowed to vote by post as proxy and of the addresses furnished by them to which their ballot papers are to be sent (s. 11).

The proceedings at a general election or bye-election are to be conducted in accordance with a time-table laid down in the Act, and there are new provisions as to the procedure up to the poll, the poll itself, and the counting of votes. In particular, the period for the delivery of nomination papers is extended; any reference in the description of the candidate on his nomination paper to his political activities is prohibited; a deposit by means of a banker's draft may only be refused if the returning officer does not know that the drawer carries on business as a banker in the United Kingdom; provision is made for the issue of official poll cards to electors and their proxies; the candidate's spouse and his election agent are given the right to attend at the counting of the votes; and the returning officer is enabled to limit the number of the counting agents who may attend at the counting of the votes (s. 12 (1), in conjunction with Sched. III).

The Act also provides for the circumstances in which an infringement of the rules as to the conduct of elections is not to invalidate the elections (s. 12 (2)).

The register of electors and the special lists to be prepared under the Act (see supra) are to be conclusive for the purposes of an election on certain questions; and, as far as the poll and the counting of the votes are concerned, in fact conclusive on other questions (s. 13 (1)–(3)). There is also a very wide provision under which the misnomer or inaccurate description of a place or person in the register of electors or other document is not to affect the operation of that document with respect to that person or place where the description is such as to be commonly understood (s. 13 (4)).

In the event of a tie the returning officer is, by s. 14, no longer entitled to a casting vote; instead the decision in such a case is to be by lot.

The existing provisions as to the return or forfeiture of a candidate's deposit are re-enacted with some modifications. Most of the modifications are consequential, but the return of the deposit of a candidate who is elected is no longer dependent on his taking the oath as a member (s. 15).

The provisions in force as to returning officers at parliamentary elections and as to the discharge of their functions are substantially re-enacted, too. However, the returning officer is required to give to the acting returning officer written notice of any duties which he reserves to himself (ss. 16 and 17).

The existing law as to payments by and to the returning officer is also re-enacted without important modifications (s. 18). But there are no provisions corresponding to those of s. 6 of the Parliamentary Elections (Returning Officers) Act, 1875 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 457), which related to the use of ballot boxes, etc., provided for municipal or school board elections.

Supplementary provisions relate to infringements of secrecy and tampering with postal votes (s. 19) and breaches of official duty (s. 20).

Part II of the Act contains general provisions as to the local government franchise and its exercise. The franchise for local government elections, i.e., elections of councillors under the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 295), or the London Government Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 259), is similar to the parliamentary franchise (see supra), but in addition to the residential qualification there is a non-residential qualification based on the occupation as owner or tenant of rateable land or premises of the yearly value of not less than £10 (ss. 21 and 22). Here, again, the exercise of the right to vote continues to depend on registration, while, on the other hand, no one will be permitted, at an ordinary election for any local government area which is not a single electoral area, to vote as an elector in more than one electoral area (s. 21 (1), proviso).

Whenever a registration officer prepares a register of parliamentary electors, he is also to prepare a register of local government electors for the local government areas, or parts thereof, included in the area for which he acts; and the two registers are, so far as practicable, to be combined, the names of persons registered only as local government electors being marked to indicate that fact and a person entitled as a resident to be registered as an elector in any local government area not being entitled to be so registered as a non-resident. A service declaration made for parliamentary elections is also available for local government elections, and the only persons who may make special service declarations for local government elections are peers who are subject to a legal incapacity to vote at parliamentary elections (s. 23).

At any local government election the polling station allotted to electors from a parliamentary polling district wholly or partly within the electoral area is, in the absence of special circumstances, to be in the parliamentary polling place for that district unless the polling place is outside the electoral area; and any power to constitute polling districts for local government elections is to be exercised with that in view (s. 24).

The provisions as to the manner and place of voting at local government elections are similar to those applicable to parliamentary elections as noted above. The most important differences are as follows: There is no exception from the general rule requiring voting at the elector's polling station in favour of persons no longer resident at their qualifying address. A person registered as a service voter may not vote by post as an absent voter. Postal voting is not allowed at rural district or parish elections. A person may not vote as an absent voter by proxy on the ground of the general nature of his occupation, service or employment, or of his service as a member of His Majesty's reserve or auxiliary forces. But where a person is registered, otherwise than as a service voter, at the same qualifying address as a parliamentary and as a local government elector and there is in force an appointment of a proxy for parliamentary elections based on the general ground of his occupation, service or employment, then, in respect of that registration, at local government elections at which postal voting is allowed, he is to be treated as an absent voter and may only vote by proxy (s. 25, in conjunction with Sched. IV, Part II, para. 7 (4)).

The provisions as to applications to be treated as an absent voter at local government elections are almost identical with those applicable to parliamentary elections (s. 26; and see supra).

Appointments of proxies for parliamentary elections have effect also for local government elections, and the only persons for whom the proxies may be specially appointed for local government elections are service voters who are peers and as such subject to a legal incapacity to vote at parliamentary elections. Otherwise the provisions as to proxies and voting by proxies are the same as, or similar to, those applicable in the case of parliamentary elections (s. 27; and see supra).

What the Act calls the "local elections rules", i.e., Sched. II to the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 474), and Sched. II to the London Government Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 354), are adapted in relation to voting by post or proxy and amended so as to bring them into conformity with the rules governing parliamentary elections as amended by the Act (s. 28 (1), (3), in conjunction with Sched. IV). However, it must not be assumed that all these rules are now identical. In particular, the provisions as to deposit and as to the issue of official poll cards are not adopted. On the other hand, it is provided that a candidate's consent to nomination is to contain a statement that he is qualified as required by law and that the statement is to give particulars of his qualification (s. 28 (2)).

There are also provisions as to when an infringement of the "local elections rules" is not to invalidate an election (s. 28 (4)), as to the effect of the register, etc. (s. 29), as to tampering with postal votes (s. 30), and as to breaches of official duty (s. 31). All these provisions are similar to the corresponding provisions applicable in the case of parliamentary elections and noted above.

Part III of the Act deals with corrupt and illegal practices and other matters relating to the election campaign. It amends and supplements, in particular, the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 465), and the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 511). Some of its provisions apply only to parliamentary elections, some only to local government elections, and some to both parliamentary elections and local government elections. The following provisions may be noted here. There is a new limit of expenses for parliamentary elections, and the provisions as to declarations and returns as to expenses at such elections are also altered (s. 32, in conjunction with Sched. IX, Part II). The use of motor vehicles at parliamentary elections for conveying electors to or from the poll is restricted (s. 33). Candidates at parliamentary elections are given the right to send their election addresses free of postage (s. 34) and to use certain schools and halls for election meetings (s. 35, in conjunction with Sched. V). At the same time the category of schools in which committee rooms may not be set up is re-defined and extended (s. 36). Ss. 24 and 26–35 of the Act of 1883 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 476 et seq.), which relate to election agents and election expenses, are applied with modifications to local government elections, but this does not apply to parish elections, for which special provision is made (ss. 38, 39); and where there is no election agent, the candidate at a parliamentary or local government election is to be treated as his own election agent (s. 44). No premises are to be rateable by reason of being used for holding election meetings (s. 41).

For the purposes of this Part of the Act, local government elections include municipal elections in the City of London, but the provisions of this Part apply to such elections only subject to modifications (s. 56).

Part IV of the Act contains special provisions as to local elections. The dates for the ordinary election of councillors are changed. Such elections are to be held, in the case of county councillors, in April and, in the case of other councillors, in May. But the Act defines in the first instance only the week in which the election is to be held, leaving it, in the case of borough councillors, to the Secretary of State and, in the case of other councillors, to the county council in question to fix the day of election. In connection with the change of dates the Act also enacts certain ancillary provisions and consequential amendments (s. 57, in conjunction with Sched. VI). The time-table for the election of county councillors and borough councillors is also recast, the time-limits being now the same in either case (s. 58). The provisions of s. 11 (2) and (3) of the London Government Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 270), which relate to the election of members of the London County Council, are re-enacted with modifications, the number of councillors being raised to three for each parliamentary constituency; and there are also ancillary provisions in connection therewith (s. 59). The ordinary election of parish councillors is in all cases to be conducted by means of nomination and, if necessary, a poll (s. 60); and provision is made for the extension of the hours of poll at district and parish elections in the same way as, under the Local Government (Hours of Poll) Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 411), in the case of county and borough elections (s. 61).

Part VI of the Act contains general provisions relating, inter alia, to the discharge of registration duties (s. 66); the payment and ascertainment of registration expenses (ss. 68 and 69); registration appeals (s. 70); superannuation rights (s. 72); the interpretation of the Act and application of local government provisions (ss. 71 (1), (2) and 75 et seq., in conjunction with Sched. XII); the interpretation and adaptation of other Acts (s. 74 (1)–(3), in conjunction with Sched. X); a new form of writ for parliamentary elections (s. 74 (4), in conjunction with Sched. IX, Part I); repeals (ss. 74 (5), 80 (7), in conjunction with Scheds. XI and XIII); and the commencement of the provisions of the Act (see supra). [355]

PARLIAMENTARY FRANCHISE AND ITS EXERCISE

Operation of this Part of the Act.—Except where otherwise expressly provided, this Part of the Act is to come into force so as to enable the first register of electors prepared hereunder to be the autumn register of 1949, and is to have effect with respect to that register and subsequent registers under the Act and the elections for which they are used (s. 80 (1), post).

There is, however, a qualification to this general provision: the provisions of this Part relating to the constituencies which are to return members are, again except where otherwise expressly provided, to come into force for the purposes of the first general election after the passing of the present Act (namely, July 30, 1948), and are not to affect the present House of Commons or any right to vote at an election to fill a vacancy in a university constituency in the present House or the conduct of such an election. Certain advance preparations are also authorised (s. 80 (2), post). Moreover, none of the provisions of this Part is to apply in relation to any parliamentary bye-election begun before the provision in question comes into force (s. 80 (8), post), the beginning of an election for this purpose being the day on which notice of the election is given (s. 80 (10) (b), post).

Parliamentary franchise and distribution of seats

1. Constituencies and electors.—(1) Subject to any Order in Council hereafter made under the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, there shall for the purpose of parliamentary elections be the county and borough constituencies, each returning a single member, which are described in the First Schedule to this Act, and no other constituencies. [357]

(2) The persons entitled to vote as electors at a parliamentary election in any constituency shall be those resident there on the qualifying date who, on that date and on the date of the poll, are British subjects of full age and not subject to any legal incapacity to vote:

Provided that a person shall not be entitled to vote as an elector in any constituency unless registered there in the register of parliamentary electors to be used at the election nor, at a general election, to vote as an elector in more than one constituency. [358]

(3) The qualifying date for parliamentary elections shall be determined by reference to the date fixed for the poll as follows:—

(a) in Great Britain—

(i) where the date fixed for the poll is between the fifteenth day of March and the second day of October in any year, the qualifying date shall be, in England and Wales, the twentieth day of the preceding November and, in Scotland, the first day of the preceding December;

(ii) where the date fixed for the poll is between the first day of October in any year and the sixteenth day of the following March, the qualifying date shall in all parts of Great Britain be the fifteenth day of the preceding June;

(b) in Northern Ireland (subject to the following provisions of this Act)—

(i) where the date fixed for the poll is between the first day of April and the second day of October in any year, the qualifying date shall be the thirty-first day of October in the preceding year;

(ii) where the date fixed for the poll is between the first day of October in any year and the second day of the following April, the qualifying date shall be the thirteenth day of the preceding April. [359]

Commencement of section.—See note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.

General note.—This section deals with the composition of the House of Commons and with the parliamentary franchise.

The composition of the House of Commons was previously governed (as far as Great Britain was concerned) by s. 37 of, and the Ninth Schedule to, the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 569, 589), in conjunction with the Representation of the People (Reading University) Act, 1938 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 652), and the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Acts, 1944 and 1947, i.e. the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 389), as amended by the Representation of the People Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 67), and the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 677).

The parliamentary franchise was previously regulated by Part I of the Act of 1918, as amed. by various statutes (see 7 Halsbury's Statutes 548), in conjunction with the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Acts, 1943 and 1944 (i.e. the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Act, 1943 = Part I of the Parliament (Elections and Meeting) Act, 1943; 36 Halsbury's Statutes 93), and the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Act, 1944; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 238), with Part III of the Representation of the People Act, 1945, as amended by the Elections and Jurors Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 78), and with ss. 1 et seq. of the last-mentioned Act (38 Halsbury's Statutes 100 et seq.).

As to the making of Orders in Council thereunder, see ss. 4 and 5 thereof, as set out in Sched. II, post.

Parliamentary election.—S. 17 of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1000) defined the expression "parliamentary election" as meaning "the election of a member or members to serve in Parliament for a county or division of a county, or parliamentary borough or division of a parliamentary borough, or for a university or combination of universities", but the words "or members" in this definition are repealed by s. 80 and Sched. XIII, post.

County and borough constituencies, etc.—Note that university constituencies and two-member constituencies are abolished.

Persons.—Under s. 19 of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1001), the expression "person", unless the contrary intention appears, includes any body of persons corporate or unincorporate. There can be no doubt, however, that the expression means here "individual" (cf. Wills v. Tozer (1904), 53 W. R. 74). But a person who is a corporation sole may, of course, be entitled to the franchise in his individual capacity (see Harris v. Phillips, [1891] 1 Q. B. 267).

Women are "persons" for this purpose, just as much as men (cf. s. 1 (1) of the Act of 1889; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 992, and Sex Disqualification (Removal) Act, 1919, s. 1; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 79).

Resident there.—Residence is now the sole basis of the franchise, the business premises and university franchises being abolished.

For rules for determining questions of residence, see s. 2, post.

As to the notional residence of persons with a service declaration in force, see also s. 6 (5) (a), post.

Qualifying date.—Note that there is no longer a qualifying period, and that the periods mentioned in sub-s. (3), supra, do not include the days by reference to which they are described, so that, where, for instance, the date fixed for the poll is March 15, the qualifying date in England and Wales is that laid down in sub-s. (3) (a) (ii), supra.

For special provisions where part of the register is not published in time, see s. 5 (3), post; and as to the qualifying date in connection with the first register prepared under the Act, see s. 80 (9) (a), post, and S.I. 1949 No. 327, reg. 72.

On that date and on the date of the poll.—This applies only to the words following, and the residence qualification need not exist at the date of the poll.

British subjects.—As from January 1, 1949, British nationality is governed by the British Nationality Act, 1948 (11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 56). By virtue of s. 3 (2) of that Act, the present Act is to "continue to have effect in relation to citizens of Eire who are not British subjects in like manner as it has effect in relation to British subjects." See also as to a presumption in the case of a person with a service declaration in force, s. 6 (5) (b), post.

Of full age.—A person attains full age on the day preceding the anniversary of his twenty-first birthday (Re Shurey, Savory v. Shurey, [1918] 1 Ch. 263).

As to a presumption in the case of a person having a service declaration in force, see further s. 6 (5) (b), post.

Not subject to any legal incapacity to vote.—For definition of "legal incapacity", see s. 76 (1), post. See further, as to a presumption in the case of persons with a service declaration in force, s. 6 (5) (b), post.

Peers are disqualified from voting at common law, but the disqualification does not extend to a peer of Ireland who "shall for the time being be actually elected and shall not have declined to serve for any county, city or borough of Great Britain" (see Rhondda's (Viscountess) Claim, [1922] 2 A. C. 339, at p. 368, per Lord BIRKENHEAD, C.). Moreover, notwithstanding the repeal of s. 9 (5) of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 555), which enacted that the incapacity should not extend to peeresses in their own right, there can be no doubt that any incapacity of a peeress to vote in her own right which may have subsisted at common law is not revived by the present Act (cf. Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 38 (2); 18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005, and s. 80 (7), proviso (a), post). It is also clear that the incapacity does not extend to a peeress by marriage, nor, of course, to the holder of a courtesy title.

A candidate at a parliamentary election may vote if otherwise qualified (Harwich Case, Robinson's Case (1803), 1 Peck. 381, 383). So may a returning officer, the restrictions of s. 2 of the Ballot Act, 1872 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 428), being repealed by s. 80 and Sched. XIII, post.

Idiots are disqualified from voting at common law (see Bedford (County) Case, Burgess' Case (1785), 2 Lud. E. C. 381, 567; contrast Oakhampton Case, Robin's Case (1791), 1 Fras. 69, 162, and Bridgewater Case, Tucker's Case (1803), 1 Peck. 101, 108). But on general principles it would appear that a person of unsound mind may vote during a lucid interval (see Beverley's Case (1603), 4 Co. Rep. 123b).

By s. 2 of the Forfeiture Act, 1870 (5 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 841), a person who has been sentenced for treason or felony to death, or penal servitude, or any term of imprisonment with hard labour, or exceeding twelve months, is, until he has suffered the punishment to which he has been sentenced, or such other punishment as may be substituted therefor by competent authority, or receives a free pardon from His Majesty, disqualified from voting (except in Scotland); and it is to be noted in this connection that a "ticket-of-leave man" has not suffered his punishment and is still under sentence. By the Criminal Justice Act, 1948 (11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 58), s. 1 (2), sentences of imprisonment with hard labour may no longer be imposed, and by s. 83 of, and Part I of Sched. X to, the same Act, the reference to hard labour in s. 2 of the Act of 1870 is, as respects England and Wales, repealed, but a subsisting disqualification attaching by virtue of a sentence of imprisonment with hard labour is not affected (see the Criminal Justice Act, 1948, s. 78 and Sched. VII, para. 2.

Numerous disqualifications from voting are also imposed by enactments relating to corrupt and illegal practices (see note to s. 5 ("Enactments imposing any disqualification, etc."), post).

Register of parliamentary electors, etc.—See s. 5, post.

2. Residence.—(1) For the purposes of the foregoing section, any question as to a person's residence on the qualifying date for an election shall be determined in accordance with the general principles formerly applied in determining questions arising under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, as to a person's residence on a particular day of the qualifying period, and in particular regard shall be had to the purpose and other circumstances, as well as to the fact, of his presence at or absence from the address in question. [360]

(2) Without prejudice to the said general principles, a person's residence in a dwelling house shall not be deemed for the purposes of the foregoing section to have been interrupted—

(a) by reason of that person's absence in the performance of any duty arising from or incidental to any office, service or employment held or undertaken by him, if he intends to resume actual residence within six months of giving it up and will not be prevented by the performance of the duty aforesaid; or

(b) by reason of permission being given by letting or otherwise for its occupation furnished by some other person—

(i) if the permission is given in the expectation that throughout the period for which it is given the person giving it or his wife or her husband will be absent in the performance of any such duty as aforesaid; or

(ii) if the first mentioned person intends to resume actual residence within nine weeks of giving it up and will not be prevented by the permission given as aforesaid. [361]

(3) A person who is a patient in any establishment maintained wholly or mainly for the reception and treatment of persons suffering from mental illness or mental defectiveness, or who is detained in legal custody at any place, shall not by reason thereof be treated for the purposes aforesaid as resident there. [362]

Commencement of section.—See note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.

General note.—This section relates to the determination of questions of residence for the purposes of s. 1, ante. Sub-s. (2) (a), supra, may be compared with s. 1 (1) of the Representation of the People Act, 1921, as amended by s. 9 (2) (b) of, and Sched. III to, the Economy (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 646), and sub-s. (2) (b) with s. 7 (2) of the Representation of the People Act, 1918, as amended by the provisions just cited of the Act of 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 553).

General principles formerly applied.—The term "residence" had been fairly clearly defined by a series of judicial decisions long before the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (see infra) was passed, the meaning of the term approximating to "inhabitance". In substituting the new test of residence on a "qualifying date" instead of for a "qualifying period" the Legislature was anxious not to be thought to imply that the old line of cases had ceased to apply. In enacting the present section it has been careful to preserve the case-law applicable to questions "as to a person's residence on a particular day of the qualifying period" rather than over the period itself.

The word "residence" implies "home" (Barlow v. Smith (1892), 9 T. L. R. 57); and actual residence is a question of fact in each case, sleeping on the premises not being conclusive (R. v. Exeter (Mayor), Wescomb's Case (1868), L. R. 4 Q. B. 110; Oldham Case, Cobbett v. Hibbert and Platt, Baxter's Case (1869), 20 L. T. 302, 308). Residence as a guest (Horsham Case, Andrews' Case (1866), 14 L. T. 274), or as a trespasser (Beal v. Ford (1877), 3 C. P. D. 73), does not seem to disqualify. And see Tewkesbury Case, Marshall's Case (1844), Bar. & Arn. 259.

The vote of a person who stayed occasionally in a house in which he kept two servants and allowed guests to stay was held good (Northallerton Case, Johns v. Hutton, Whithorn v. Thomas (1869), 1 O'M. & H. 171). If a voter's family are in the house, and he can return if he so wishes, his vote is good (Berwick-on-Tweed Case, Robison's Case (1860), Wolf. & B. 171). Mere absence does not disqualify if there is an intention to return (Ipswich Case, Pisey's Case (1838), Falc. & Fitz. 271).

Merely to warehouse furniture in a place after giving up possession of a house is not sufficient residence (Bath Case, Walmsley's Case (1857), Wolf. & D. 147). Absence by agreement, or on duty, making it impossible to be present on the qualifying date, is, subject to sub-s. (2), supra, a disqualification (see Ford v. Pye (1873), L. R. 9 C. P. 269; Durant v. Carter (1873), L. R. 9 C. P. 261; and Ford v. Drew (1879), 5 C. P. D. 59).

Dwelling house.—For meaning, see s. 76 (1), post.

Not be deemed to have been interrupted.—It must not be thought that actual residence need be uninterrupted at common law. Thus, in Bond v. St. George, Hanover Square Overseers (1870), L. R. 6 C. P. 312, BRETT, L.J., referred with approval to the statement of an author adopted by ERLE, C.J., in Kidderminster Case, Powell v. Guest (1864), 18 C. B. N. S. 72, at p. 80, that "in order to constitute residence a party must possess at least a sleeping apartment, but that an uninterrupted abiding at such dwelling is not requisite, and that absence, no matter how long, if there be the liberty of returning at any time, and no abandonment of the intention to return whenever it may suit the party's pleasure or convenience so to do, will not prevent a constructive legal residence." See also Ipswich Case, Pisey's Case, supra;

R. v. Exeter (Mayor), Wescomb's Case, supra; and Taylor v. St. Mary Abbott Overseers (1870), L. R. 6 C. P. 309.

Will not be prevented by the performance of the duty aforesaid.—For special provisions as to members of His Majesty's reserve or auxiliary forces, see s. 71 (3), post.

Sub-s. (3).—Note that this subsection deals only with the question of residence and not with that of incapacity to vote.

3. Adaptation of 7 & 8 Geo. 6, c. 41.—(1) The provisions contained in sections four to seven of, and the Third Schedule to, the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, as amended by section thirty-three of the Representation of the People Act, 1945, and by the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1947, shall, as from the passing of this Act, be further amended as hereafter mentioned in this section, and shall accordingly have effect as set out in the Second Schedule to this Act. [363]

(2) In section four the words " After the submission of their report under the last foregoing section " at the beginning of subsection (1), and the words " and the number of members which they recommend should be returned by each of them " in subsections (1) and (3) shall be omitted, and in subsection (2) for the words " an Act giving effect (whether with or without modifications) to the recommendations contained in the reports submitted by the Commissions under the last foregoing section " there shall be substituted the words " the Representation of the People Act, 1948 ". [364]

(3) In subsection (1) of section five, for the words " a parliamentary county or division of a parliamentary county or a parliamentary borough or division of a parliamentary borough " there shall be substituted the words " a county constituency or a borough constituency ". [365]

(4) Section six (which excepts university constituencies from the scope of the Act) shall be omitted, and for section seven there shall be substituted the following section :—

" 7. In this Act the expression ' constituency ' means an area having separate representation in the House of Commons." [366]

(5) In the Third Schedule—

(a) in rule 1, in the table showing the number of constituencies, for the words " 591 " there shall be substituted the words " 613 " ;

(b) there shall be omitted—

(i) paragraph (1) of rule 2, paragraph (2) of rule 5A, and the whole of rule 3 (which relate to two-member constituencies) and in paragraph (2) of the said rule 2 the word " other " ;

(ii) in rule 5, sub-paragraph (b) (i) of paragraph (1) (which relates to the constitution of parliamentary counties and boroughs in Scotland) and in the definition in paragraph (2) of the expression " county " the words " in sub-paragraph (a) " and the words from " and in sub-paragraph (b) " onwards ;

(iii) rule 7 (which provides for the continuance as a separate constituency of the City of London) ;

(iv) in rule 8, the words " or, in applying these rules for the purpose of section three of this Act," and the following words in sub-paragraph (a) (i) of paragraph (1), the words " or any part thereof " and the words " or that part thereof " and the following words in sub-paragraph (b) (i) of that paragraph and the whole of paragraph (2) ; and

(c) in lieu of the said rule 7 there shall be inserted immediately before rule 5 the following rule :—

" 4A. There shall continue to be a constituency which shall include the whole of the City of London and the name of which shall refer to the City of London ". [367]

Commencement of section.—See note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.
General note.—This section brings the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 389) into line with the new electoral provisions.
House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, ss. 4–7 and Sched. III.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 392 et seq., 396.
Representation of the People Act, 1945, s. 33.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 92.
House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1947.—40 Halsbury's Statutes 677.
Passing of the Act.—July 30, 1948.

Registration of parliamentary electors

4. Registration officers and areas.—(1) For the registration of electors there shall be electoral registration officers (in this Act referred to as " registration officers "). [368]

(2) In England and Wales, there shall be a registration officer for each constituency, and that officer shall be—

(a) in the case of a county constituency which is coterminous with or wholly contained in one county, or of a borough constituency which is coterminous with or wholly contained in a borough or urban district, the clerk of the authority for that county or that borough or district;

(b) in any other case, the clerk of the authority for such county or such borough or urban district as the Secretary of State may by order direct;

and any two or more constituencies having the same registration officer shall together form a registration area, which shall be known by the name of the area of the authority whose clerk is registration officer. [369]

(3) In Scotland, the assessor of any county or large burgh shall be the registration officer for any constituency or part of a constituency which is situated within that county or large burgh, and where there is more than one assessor of a county or large burgh such one of them as may be appointed by the county or town council for the purposes of this Act shall be the registration officer and all other assessors thereof shall for the said purposes be subject to and shall act on his instructions. [370]

(4) In Northern Ireland, the county borough of Belfast and each county shall be a registration area, and the town clerk of Belfast or the secretary to the county council, as the case may be, shall be the registration officer for any constituency or part of a constituency in that area; and for the purposes of this subsection the county borough of Londonderry shall be deemed to be included in the county of Londonderry. [371]

This section replaces with modifications s. 12 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 555). It should be read in conjunction with s. 66, post, as to the discharge of registration duties, and with S.I. 1949 No. 327, reg. 21, as to the delegation of certain registration duties.
Commencement of section.—See note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.
County constituency; borough constituency.—Cf. s. 1 (1), ante.
Coterminous.—This means having the same area.
County.—For definition, see s. 77 (1), post.
Borough.—This includes a metropolitan borough and the City of London (s. 77 (1), (4), post).
Clerk of the authority.—This means, in relation to a borough (including a metropolitan borough), the town clerk, and, in relation to the City of London, the secondary (s. 77, post).

5. Registers of electors.—(1) It shall be the duty of every registration officer to prepare and publish in each year, for each constituency or part of a constituency in the area for which he acts, the following registers of parliamentary electors:—

(a) a spring register which, except in Northern Ireland, shall be published not later than the fifteenth day of March and used for elections at which the date fixed for the poll is between that day and the second day of the following October; and

(b) an autumn register which, except in Northern Ireland, shall be published not later than the first day of October and used for elections at which the date fixed for the poll is between that day and the sixteenth day of the following March. [372]

(2) In Northern Ireland—

(a) the spring register shall be published not later than the first day of April and used for elections at which the date fixed for the poll is between that day and the second day of the following October; and

(b) the autumn register shall be published not later than the first day of October and shall be used for elections at which the date fixed for the poll is between that day and the second day of the following April:

Provided that the interval in Northern Ireland between the qualifying date and the date of publication of the register may be altered by regulations by changing either date, and any such regulations may make such consequential provisions (including the modification of any enactment contained in this or any other Act) as may appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary. [373]

(3) If any part of a register is not published within the time required by this section, then until the day following that on which it is published the corresponding part of the previous register (whether prepared under this Act or not) shall continue in use, and where any part of the register used at an election is a part continued in force by this subsection, this Act shall have effect in relation to the election and the area to which that part relates as if the qualifying date by reference to which that part was prepared were the qualifying date for the election. [374]

(4) Subject to any enactment imposing any disqualification for registration as a parliamentary elector, all persons who may be entitled to vote as electors at elections for which any register is to be used shall be entitled to be registered therein:

Provided that a person who on the qualifying date has a service qualification shall not be entitled to be registered except in pursuance of a service declaration made in accordance with the next following section and in force on that date. [375]

(5) With a view to the preparation of the register, the registration officer shall—

(a) have a house to house or other sufficient inquiry made as to the persons entitled to be registered (excluding persons entitled to be registered in pursuance of a service declaration);

(b) have prepared and published electors lists showing the persons appearing to him to be entitled to be registered together with their qualifying addresses;

(c) except in Northern Ireland, determine all claims for registration duly made by any person, and all objections to any person's registration duly made by another person appearing from the electors lists to be himself entitled to be registered. [376]

(6) In Northern Ireland all such claims and objections as aforesaid shall be determined by a revising officer, who shall be, for any area, the person having the like duty for the purpose of elections of members to serve in the House of Commons of Northern Ireland, and in relation to the determination of claims and objections in Northern Ireland references in this Act to the registration officer shall be construed as references to the revising officer. [377]

This section, together with s. 23, post, replaces with modifications ss. 11 and 13 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 555, 556), and parts of Sched. I thereto (7 Halsbury's Statutes 572). By s. 9 of the Representation of the People (Economy Provisions) Act, 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 649), only one register for each year was to be prepared, and by s. 2 of the Local Elections and Register of Electors (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1232), the operation of which was extended to March 31, 1945, the obligation to prepare registers of electors was suspended. Special provision for war-time parliamentary elections was made by the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Acts, 1943 and 1944 (see note to s. 1, supra), and further temporary provisions as to registration were enacted by Part III of the Representation of the People Act, 1945, as amended by the Elections and Jurors Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 78), and by the last-mentioned Act (38 Halsbury's Statutes 105) itself.

The present section is supplemented by rr. 1 et seq. of S.I. 1949 No. 327.

Commencement of section.—See the note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.

Registration officer.—See s. 4, ante, and s. 66, post.

Shall be published not later than, etc.—As to the date of publication of the first register prepared under the Act, see s. 80 (9) (a), post, and S.I. 1949 No. 327, reg. 72.

(2) A service declaration shall be made only by a person who has a service qualification or, subject to any prescribed conditions, by a person about to leave the United Kingdom in such circumstances as to acquire a service qualification. [379]

(3) A service declaration may be made by such a person notwithstanding the fact that by reason of his age he is not yet entitled to be registered or to vote. [380]

(4) A service declaration shall state—

(6) Where a service declaration appearing to be properly made out and attested is transmitted to the registration officer in the proper manner, the declarant shall, until the contrary is proved, be treated for the purposes of registration as having had from the date of the declaration or such later date if any as appears therefrom, and as continuing to have, a service qualification. [383]

(7) If a person makes a service declaration declaring to more than one address, or makes more than one service declaration bearing the same date and declaring to different addresses, the declaration or declarations shall be void. [384]

(8) A service declaration may at any time be cancelled by the declarant and, subject to the last foregoing subsection, a service declaration bearing a later date shall, without any express cancellation, cancel a declaration bearing an earlier date. [385]

(9) A service declaration, if not cancelled, shall continue in force so long as the declarant has a service qualification, except in so far as regulations provide that it shall cease to be in force on a change in the circumstances giving the service qualification. [386]

(10) Any person who—

Place and manner of voting at parliamentary elections

7. Polling districts and polling places.—(1) Every constituency shall be divided into polling districts and, subject to the provisions of this section, there shall be a polling place designated for each polling district. [388]

(2) It shall be the duty, in England and Wales, of the local authority whose clerk is registration officer and, in Scotland, of the returning officer to make the division into polling districts and to designate the polling places, and to keep the polling districts and polling places under review, in accordance with the following rules, that is to say :—

(a) the local authority or returning officer shall exercise the powers conferred by this section with a view to giving all electors in the constituency such reasonable facilities for voting as are practicable in the circumstances ;

(b) in the case of a county constituency, each parish or, in Scotland, each electoral division shall in the absence of special circumstances be a separate polling district or districts ;

(c) the polling place for any polling district shall be an area in that district, except where special circumstances make it desirable to designate an area wholly or partly outside the polling district, and shall be small enough to indicate to electors in different parts of the polling district how they will be able to reach the polling station ;

(d) a polling place need not be designated for any polling district, if the size and other circumstances of the district are such that the situation of the polling stations does not materially affect the convenience of the electors or any body of them ;

(e) before deciding on any scheme relating to the division into polling districts of a constituency wholly or partly in the county of London, the local authority shall send a draft of the scheme to the London County Council and take into consideration any representations made to them by that council. [389]

(3) In the case of a polling district for which no polling place is designated, the polling district shall be taken to be the polling place for the purpose of the enactments relating to parliamentary elections. [390]

(4) If any interested authority or not less than thirty electors in a constituency make a representation to the Secretary of State that the powers conferred by this section have not been exercised so as to meet the reasonable requirements of the electors in the constituency or any body of those electors, the Secretary of State shall consider the representation and may, if he thinks fit,—

(a) direct the local authority or, in Scotland, returning officer by whom the powers are exercisable to make any alterations which the Secretary of State thinks necessary in the circumstances ; and

(b) if the local authority or returning officer fails to make those alterations within a month after the direction is given, himself make the alterations ; and any alterations made by the Secretary of State under this subsection shall have effect as if they had been made by the local authority or returning officer.

In this subsection the expression " interested authority " means a local authority within whose area the constituency is wholly or partly situated, and for the purposes of this definition the expression " local authority " means as respects England and Wales any county, borough, district or parish council (or, where there is no parish council, parish meeting), and as respects Scotland any county, town or district council. [391]

(5) On the exercise of any power given by this section the local authority or returning officer shall publish in the constituency a notice showing the boundaries of any polling districts or polling places constituted as a result of the exercise of the power and, unless the power was exercised by the Secretary of State, shall also send him a report giving the same information. [392]

(6) Subsections (2) to (5) of this section shall not apply to Northern Ireland, and in Northern Ireland the polling districts and polling places shall be those for the time being established under the law relating to the election of members to serve in the House of Commons of Northern Ireland. [393]

(7) Regulations may provide for adapting the register in force for the time being to any alteration of polling districts, and may make special provision for cases where any alteration of polling districts is made between the publication of any electors lists and the coming into force of the register prepared from those lists, but except in cases for which provision is so made by regulations an alteration of polling districts shall not be effective until the coming into force of the first register prepared from electors lists published after the alteration is made. [394]

(8) An election shall not be questioned by reason of any non-compliance with the provisions of this section or any informality relative to polling districts or polling places. [395]

This section substantially re-enacts, with minor modifications, s. 31 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 566).

(a) of the general nature of his occupation, service or employment; or

(4) Any of the persons mentioned in paragraphs (a) to (e) of subsection (1) of this section may vote by post if he applies to be treated as an absent voter and furnishes an address in the United Kingdom to which a ballot paper is to be sent for the purpose:

Provided that—

(5) At an election for which a person's application to be treated as an absent voter is allowed, he shall not be entitled to vote in person. [400]

[401]

(7) For the purposes of subsection (4) of this section, two addresses shall be deemed to be in the same area if they satisfy one of the following conditions, but not otherwise, that is to say—

(a) both are within the area of the same borough or urban district;

(b) both are within the area of the same parish in England or Wales, or of the same electoral division in Scotland, or of the same rural district in Northern Ireland. [402]

(b) that the proxy is capable of being and willing to be appointed. [411]

(5) The appointment may be cancelled by the elector by giving notice to the registration officer and shall cease to be in force on the issue of a proxy paper appointing a different person to vote for him, whether in respect of the same registration or elsewhere, but, subject to that, shall remain in force—

(a) whether or not a person's right to vote is exercisable by post ;
(b) whether or not there is in force an appointment of a proxy to vote for any person, and (if so) who is appointed. [426]

(3) A person registered as a parliamentary elector, or entered in the list of proxies, shall not be excluded from voting on the ground that he is not a British subject or is not of full age or is otherwise subject to any legal incapacity to vote, or that on the qualifying date or the date of his appointment, as the case may be, he was not a British subject or was not of full age or was otherwise subject to any legal incapacity to vote ; but this provision shall not prevent the rejection of the vote on a scrutiny or affect his liability to any penalty for voting. [427]

(4) No misnomer or inaccurate description of any person or place named in the register of parliamentary electors or in any list, record, proxy paper, nomination paper, ballot paper, notice or other document required for the purposes of the Ballot Act, 1872, or this Part of this Act shall affect the full operation of the document with respect to that person or place, in any case where the description of the person or place is such as to be commonly understood. Sub-s. (4).—A total omission of a description is not within this subsection (R. v. Tugwell (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 704), nor is the accurate description of the wrong person or place (R. v. Coward (1851), 16 Q. B. 819; cf. R. v. Deighton (1844), 5 Q. B. 896, and R. v. Hammond (1852), 17 Q. B. 772).

14. Decision by lot in event of tie.—(1) Where, after the counting of the votes by the returning officer (including any re-count) is completed, an equality of votes is found to exist between any candidates at a parliamentary election in any constituency, and the addition of a vote would entitle any of those candidates to be declared elected, the returning officer shall not be entitled to a casting vote but shall forthwith decide between those candidates by lot, and proceed as if the candidate on whom the lot falls had received an additional vote. [429]

(2) Where, on an election petition, it appears that there is an equality of votes between any candidates at a parliamentary election, and that the addition of a vote would entitle any of those candidates to be declared elected, then—

(a) any decision under the foregoing subsection shall, in so far as it determines the question between those candidates, be effective also for the purposes of the petition; and

(b) in so far as that question is not determined by such a decision, the court shall decide between them by lot and proceed as if the one on whom the lot then falls had received an additional vote. [430]

15. Return or forfeiture of candidate's deposit.—(1) The deposit made under the Third Schedule to this Act by or on behalf of a candidate in connection with his nomination shall either be returned to the person making it or his personal representatives or be forfeited to His Majesty. [431]

(2) Except in the cases hereafter mentioned in this section, the deposit shall be returned as soon as practicable after the result of the election is declared. [432]

(3) If the candidate is not shown as standing nominated in the statement of persons nominated, or if the poll is countermanded by reason of his death, the deposit shall be returned as soon as practicable after publication of the statement or after his death, as the case may be. [433]

(4) Subject to the last foregoing subsection, the deposit shall be forfeited if a poll is taken and, after the counting of the votes by the returning officer (including any re-count) is completed, the candidate is found not to have polled more than one-eighth of the total number of votes polled by all the candidates. [434]

(5) Notwithstanding anything in the three last foregoing subsections, if at a general election a candidate is shown as standing nominated in more than one constituency in the statements of persons nominated, not more than one of the deposits shall be returned and, if necessary, the Treasury shall direct which it is to be. [435]

This section replaces, with variations, ss. 26 (3) and 27 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 564).

Returning officer.—See ss. 16 and 17, post.

16. Returning officers.—(1) In England and Wales, the returning officer for a parliamentary election shall be—

(a) in the case of a county constituency which is coterminous with or wholly contained in one county, or of a borough constituency which is coterminous with or wholly contained in a county of a city or town having a sheriff, the sheriff of the county or of the city or town ;

(b) in the case of any other borough constituency which is coterminous with or wholly contained in a borough or urban district, the mayor or chairman of the urban district council ;

(c) in any other case, such sheriff, mayor or chairman of an urban district council as may be designated by the Secretary of State. [436]

(2) In Scotland, the returning officer for a parliamentary election shall be—

(a) in the case of a constituency wholly situated in one sheriffdom, the sheriff of that sheriffdom ; and

(b) in the case of a constituency situated in more than one sheriffdom, the sheriff of such one of those sheriffdoms as the Secretary of State may by order direct. [437]

(3) In Northern Ireland, the returning officer for a parliamentary election shall be—

(a) in the case of a constituency wholly contained in the county borough of Belfast or any county, the under-sheriff of that county borough or county ; and

(b) in any other case, such under-sheriff as the Secretary of State may by order direct ;

and for the purposes of this subsection the county borough of Londonderry shall be deemed to be included in the county of Londonderry. [438]

(4) The execution of the writ for a parliamentary election shall belong to the returning officer as such and the writ shall be directed to him by the title of his office as returning officer, and that office shall be a distinct office from that by virtue of which he becomes returning officer. [439]

(5) Where a person enters on any office by virtue of which he becomes returning officer, it shall belong to him and not to the outgoing holder of that office to complete the execution of any writ for a parliamentary election previously issued and not yet returned. [440]

This section, so far as England and Wales are concerned, takes the place of s. 28 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 564). It may be compared with s. 4, ante, as to registration officers, and is supplemented by s. 17, post, as to the discharge of the functions of returning officers.

Commencement of section.—See the note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.
Parliamentary election.—See the notes to s. 1, ante.
County constituency ; Borough constituency.—Cf. s. 1 (1), ante.
Borough.—This includes a metropolitan borough (s. 77 (1), post).
Coterminous.—This means having the same area.
Execution of writ.—The writ is addressed to the returning officer as such (see Sched. IX, Part I, post). It seems clear that sub-s. (5), supra, applies also where the returning officer dies ; and it is obviously the intention of the Legislature that the provisions of s. 25 of the Sheriffs Act, 1887 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 1116) which, in conjunction with s. 36 (4) of that Act (17 Halsbury's Statutes 1122), make provision for the exercise of the duties of a sheriff by the under-sheriff in the case of the death of the sheriff, should no longer apply to the execution of the writ for a parliamentary election (cf. s. 74 (1), post, in conjunction with Sched. X, Part II, para. 4, post ; and see s. 74 (2), post).

17. Discharge of functions of returning officer.—(1) In England and Wales, the duties of the returning officer for parliamentary elections except –

(a) any duty imposed on a returning officer under Part II of the Parliament (Elections and Meeting) Act, 1943 (which deals with the delivery of parliamentary writs and matters connected therewith); and

(b) any other duties which the person (if any) who for the time being holds the office of returning officer reserves to himself and undertakes to perform in person; shall be discharged by the registration officer (or the person authorised to act as registration officer if the registration officer himself is incapable of acting or there is a vacancy) as acting returning officer; and so shall any such duties as are mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection, if for the time being the returning officer is for any reason incapable of discharging his duties as such, or is under any enactment discharged from personally performing the office by virtue of which he is returning officer. [441]

(2) The returning officer shall give to the acting returning officer written notice of any duties which he reserves to himself under paragraph (b) of the foregoing subsection, and that paragraph shall, in the case of any election, apply to the duties (if any) of which notice is so given not later than the day following that on which the writ is received, and to no others. [442]

(3) An acting returning officer, in the discharge of the duties imposed on him by subsection (1) of this section shall have all the powers, obligations, rights and liabilities of the returning officer under any enactment relating to parliamentary elections, and those enactments (including this Act) shall have effect accordingly. [443]

(4) An acting returning officer shall have power to appoint deputies to discharge all or any of the said duties, but the appointment shall require the approval of the Secretary of State, where the powers of the deputy extend—

(a) to matters other than the receipt of nomination papers and matters connected therewith; or

(b) to the taking or deciding of objections to nomination papers. [444]

(5) A returning officer at a parliamentary election in England or Wales shall not be disqualified by reason of being returning officer for being a candidate at the election, unless he has reserved to himself any duties at the election which would otherwise be imposed by subsection (1) of this section on the acting returning officer. [445]

(6) In Scotland, the power of appointing deputies conferred by section eight of the Ballot Act, 1872, on certain sheriffs shall be exercisable by any sheriff who—

(a) is returning officer for more than one constituency; or

(b) by reason of sickness or unavoidable absence is incapacitated from performing any of the duties devolving upon him as returning officer;

and in the event of no such appointment being made by a sheriff so incapacitated, or in the event of any vacancy in the office of sheriff at the time when any of such duties require to be performed, the senior sheriff substitute of the sheriffdom the sheriff of which is returning officer for the constituency shall act as returning officer, and shall perform all the duties and have all the powers (including the power of appointing deputies) of such returning officer. [446]

(7) In Northern Ireland, the power of appointing deputies conferred by the said section eight shall be exercisable by any under-sheriff who—

(a) is returning officer for more than one constituency; or,

(b) by reason of sickness or unavoidable absence is incapacitated from performing any of the duties devolving upon him as returning officer;

and in the event of no such appointment being made by an under-sheriff so incapacitated, or in the event of any vacancy in the office of any under-sheriff at the time when any of such duties require to be performed, such person as the Secretary of State may appoint shall act as returning officer and shall perform all the duties and have all the powers (including the power of appointing deputies) of such returning officer. [447]

(8) No person shall be subject to any incapacity to vote at a parliamentary election by reason of his being or acting as returning officer thereat, and section twenty-one of the Sheriff Courts (Scotland) Act, 1907, in so far as it enacts that no sheriff or salaried sheriff substitute shall be entitled to vote at a parliamentary election held within his sheriffdom shall cease to have effect. [448]

(9) Section thirty-six of the Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1832, in so far as it prohibits a sheriff clerk or deputy sheriff clerk from voting at parliamentary elections shall cease to have effect. [449]

This section replaces in different form s. 30 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 566), as amended by s. 33 (1) of, and Sched. VI to, the Parliament (Elections and Meeting) Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 110, 115), and as restricted in its application by s. 28 of the same Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 109).

18. Payments by and to returning officer.—(1) No consideration shall be given by or to a returning officer for the making out, receipt, delivery or return of the writ for a parliamentary election or, subject to the following provisions of this section, otherwise in connection with the execution thereof:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall be taken as applying to any inclusive salary payable to a returning officer in respect of the office by virtue of which he becomes returning officer. [450]

(2) The Treasury shall by statutory instrument prescribe a scale of maximum charges in respect of services rendered and expenses incurred by a returning officer for the purposes of or in connection with parliamentary elections, and may revise the scale as and when they think fit. [451]

(3) A returning officer shall be entitled to his reasonable charges, not exceeding the sums specified in the said scale, in respect of services and expenses of the several kinds so specified which have been properly rendered or incurred by him for the purposes of or in connection with a parliamentary election. [452]

(4) The amount of any such charges shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom or the growing produce thereof on an account being submitted to the Treasury:

Provided that the Treasury may if they think fit, before payment, apply for the account to be taxed under the following provisions of this section. [453]

(5) On the request of the returning officer for an advance on account of his charges, the Treasury may, if they think fit, and on such terms as they think fit, make such an advance. [454]

(6) The Treasury may make regulations as to the time when and manner and form in which accounts are to be rendered to them for the purpose of the payment of a returning officer's charges. [455]

(7) An application for a returning officer's account to be taxed shall be made—

(a) where the account relates to an election in a constituency in England, in Wales or in Northern Ireland, to the county court;

(b) where the account relates to an election in a constituency in Scotland, to the Auditor of the Court of Session; and in the following provisions of this section the expression "the court" means the said court or Auditor. [456]

(8) On any such application the court shall have jurisdiction to tax the account in such manner and at such time and place as the court thinks fit, and finally to determine the amount payable to the returning officer. [457]

(9) On any such application the returning officer may apply to the court to examine any claim made by any person against him in respect of matters charged in the account; and the court, after notice given to the claimant and after giving him an opportunity to be heard and to tender any evidence, may allow or disallow or reduce the claim objected to with or without costs; and the determination of the court shall be final for all purposes and as against all persons. [458]

(10) Any reference in this section to the county court shall be taken, in relation to Northern Ireland, as a reference to the county court having jurisdiction at the place for the delivery of nomination papers at the election in question. [459]

This section replaces, with modifications, s. 2 of 7 & 8 Will. 3, c. 25 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 433), and s. 29 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918, as amended by the Representation of the People (Returning Officers' Expenses) Act, 1919 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 565). But there are no provisions corresponding to those of s. 6 of the Parliamentary Elections (Returning Officers) Act, 1875 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 457), which required returning officers as far as practicable to make use of ballot boxes, fittings and compartments, provided for municipal or school board elections, and required the court, upon taxation, to have regard to these provisions.

No consideration.—This is not confined to a money consideration.

Returning officer.—See ss. 16 and 17 (3), ante.

Inclusive salary payable.—This refers to a salary not as returning officer but as sheriff, mayor or chairman by virtue of which office the person concerned has become returning officer.

Statutory instrument.—See the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 784), which came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3).

Supplementary

19. Infringements of secrecy and tampering with postal votes.—(1) Section four of the Ballot Act, 1872 (which penalises infringements of the secrecy of voting) shall apply to a candidate or a candidate's election agent attending at a polling station in the exercise of the rights conferred on them respectively by that Act and this Act, and to all persons attending at the counting of the votes, as it applies to an officer or clerk so attending; and, when that section is read to a person to whom it applies by virtue of this subsection on his making a declaration of secrecy under the said Act, it shall be read with such modifications as are necessary to show how it applies to him. [460]

(2) Every person attending the proceedings in connection with the issue or the receipt of ballot papers for persons voting by post at parliamentary elections shall maintain and aid in maintaining the secrecy of the voting and shall not—

(a) except for some purpose authorised by law, communicate, before the poll is closed, to any person any information obtained at those proceedings as to the official mark; nor

(b) except for some purpose authorised by law, communicate to any person at any time any information obtained at those proceedings

as to the number on the back of the ballot paper sent to any person; nor

(c) except for some purpose authorised by law, attempt to ascertain at the proceedings in connection with the receipt of the ballot papers the number on the back of any ballot paper; nor

(d) attempt to ascertain at the proceedings in connection with the receipt of the ballot papers the candidate for whom any vote is given in any particular ballot paper or communicate any information with respect thereto obtained at those proceedings;

(3) Where any person fraudulently defaces, or fraudulently destroys, or attempts so to deface or destroy, any declaration of identity or official envelope used in connection with voting by post at a parliamentary election, section three of the Ballot Act, 1872 (which penalises the like offences in relation to ballot papers) shall apply as if the declaration or envelope were a ballot paper. [462]

(4) The reference in the said section three to a clerk in attendance at a polling station shall include a reference to a clerk in attendance at the proceedings in connection with the issue or receipt of ballot papers for persons voting by post at a parliamentary election. [463]

PART II

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO LOCAL GOVERNMENT FRANCHISE AND ITS EXERCISE

Operation of this Part of the Act.—Except where otherwise expressly provided, this Part of the Act is to come into force so as to enable the first register of electors prepared hereunder to be the autumn register of 1949, and is to have effect with respect to that register and subsequent registers under the Act and the elections for which they are used (s. 80 (1), post).

There is, however, a qualification to this general provision: the provisions of this Part relating to voting by post or by proxy at local government elections or amending the local elections rules are to come into force on the appointed day (s. 80 (3), post), that is to say, such day as the Secretary of State may by statutory instrument appoint for the purpose (s. 80 (10) (a), post), and none of the provisions of this Part is to apply in relation to any election begun before the provision in question comes into force (s. 80 (8), post), the beginning of an election for this purpose being the day on which notice of the election is given (s. 80 (10) (b), post). As to the appointed day, see S.I. 1949 No. 327, reg. 75 (1).

Local government franchise

21. Electors.—(1) The persons entitled to vote as electors at a local government election in any electoral area shall be those who—

(a) on the qualifying date either—

(i) are resident in the area; or

(ii) under the following provisions of this section have a non-resident qualification therein; and

(b) are in either case on that date and on the date of the poll, British subjects of full age and not subject to any legal incapacity to vote:

Provided that a person shall not be entitled to vote as an elector in any electoral area, unless registered there in the register of local government electors to be used at the election nor, at an ordinary election for any local government area which is not a single electoral area, to vote as an elector in more than one electoral area. [468]

(2) In England and Wales, a person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have a non-resident qualification in an area if he is occupying as owner or tenant any rateable land or premises therein of the yearly value of not less than ten pounds. [469]

(3) In Scotland, a person shall be deemed to have a non-resident qualification in an area if he is the owner, or occupier as tenant, of any lands and heritages within the area which are of the yearly value of not less than ten pounds and in respect of which rates are payable. [470]

(4) The qualifying date for a local government election shall be determined by reference to the date fixed for the poll in the same way as if it were a parliamentary election. [471]

British subjects of full age.—See the notes to s. 1, ante. See, further, as to a presumption in the case of persons with a service declaration in force, s. 6 (5) (b), ante, in conjunction with s. 23 (7), post.

Not subject to any legal incapacity to vote.—For definition of "legal incapacity", see s. 76 (1), post. See, further, as to a presumption in the case of persons with a service declaration in force, s. 6 (5) (b), ante, in conjunction with s. 23 (7), post.

The disqualifications at common law are the same as in the case of parliamentary elections (see the notes to s. 1, ante), except that there is no disqualification on the ground of peerage (cf. ss. 23 (5) (a) and 27 (2), post). The disqualification under s. 2 of the Forfeiture Act, 1870 (5 Halsbury's Statutes (2nd Edn.) 841) (see the notes to s. 1, ante) also extends to local government elections. Moreover, as respects such elections, too, numerous disqualifications from voting are imposed by enactments relating to corrupt and illegal practices (see the notes to s. 23 ("Enactments imposing any disqualification, etc."), post).

Registered in the register of local government electors.—See s. 23, post.

Owner or tenant, etc.—This must be read in conjunction with s. 22, post.

Determination of qualifying date.—See s. 1 (3), ante. For special provisions where the register is not published in time, see s. 5 (3), ante, in conjunction with s. 23 (7), ante, and as to the qualifying date in connection with the first register prepared under the Act, see s. 80 (9) (a), post, and the Representation of the People Regulations, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 327), reg. 72.

22. Residence, occupation, etc.—(1) For the purposes of the last foregoing section—

(a) section two of this Act shall apply as it applies for the purposes of the parliamentary franchise; and

(b) the following provisions of this section shall have effect in relation to the non-resident qualification. [472]

(2) A person's occupation of a dwelling house shall not be deemed to be interrupted by reason only of permission being given by letting or otherwise for its occupation furnished by some other person, if the first mentioned person intends to resume actual occupation within nine weeks of giving it up and will not be prevented by the permission given as aforesaid. [473]

(3) In England and Wales,—

(a) the expression "tenant"—

(i) shall not include a tenant of a dwelling house let to him furnished for a term of less than nine weeks, or of any room or rooms let to him furnished and occupied by him as a lodger; but

(ii) shall include a tenant of a dwelling house holding over after notice to quit has been given and possession has been demanded by the landlord;

(b) the expression "rateable" means liable for the time being to be rated to the general rate or to any rate expressed by the Act creating it to be in the nature of a general rate, except that in relation to the City of London it means liable for the time being to be rated to the poor rate; and

(c) the yearly value of any land or premises shall be determined in accordance with section eighty of the Local Government Act, 1929 (which provides for determining it for the purposes of the Representation of the People Act, 1918). [474]

(4) In the case of a joint occupation of any land or premises in an electoral area in England or Wales, each of the joint occupiers shall be treated as occupying land or premises therein of the yearly value of not less than ten pounds, if the aggregate yearly value of the land or premises is not less than the amount produced by multiplying ten pounds by the number of joint occupiers. [475]

(5) Where, in Scotland, any lands and heritages are owned or occupied by two or more persons jointly and the aggregate yearly value of such lands and heritages is not less than the amount produced by multiplying ten pounds by the number of owners or occupiers as the case may be, each of them shall be treated as owning or occupying, as the case may be, lands and heritages of the yearly value of ten pounds. [476]

(6) In the application of this and the last foregoing section to Scotland,—

(a) the expression " owner "—

(i) shall include heir of entail in possession, life-renter and beneficiary entitled under any trust to the rents and profits of lands and heritages ; and

(ii) shall not include the fiar of lands and heritages subject to a liferent, or tutor, curator, judicial factor, or commissioners ; and the expression " own " shall be construed accordingly ;

(b) the expression " tenant " shall not include a tenant—

(i) of a dwelling house let to him furnished for a term of less than nine weeks ; or

(ii) of any room or rooms let to him furnished and occupied by him as a lodger ;

(c) the expression " lands and heritages " shall have the like meaning as in the Lands Valuation (Scotland) Act, 1854 ; and

(d) the expression " yearly value " in relation to any lands and heritages shall mean in the case where the lands and heritages are separately entered in the valuation roll the gross annual value appearing therein, and in any other case the gross annual value which would in the opinion of the registration officer be entered in the valuation roll, if the lands and heritages were separately entered therein. [477]

Commencement of section.—See the note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.

Application of s. 2.—The effect of sub-s. (1) (a), supra, is that questions as to a person's residence on the qualifying date are to be decided for the purposes of the local government franchise in accordance with the same principles as for the purposes of the parliamentary franchise.

Dwelling house.—For meaning, see s. 76 (1), post.

Tenant.—There can be no doubt that sub-s. (3) (a) (ii), supra, must a fortiori apply if the tenant of a dwelling house holds over after notice to quit has been given, but possession has not been demanded by the landlord, and it also seems clear that the expression must be taken to include a tenant of a dwelling house holding over after the determination of his tenancy otherwise than by notice to quit.

Local Government Act, 1929, s. 80.—10 Halsbury's Statutes 934.

Representation of the People Act, 1918.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 548.

Electoral area.—For meaning, see s. 77 (1), post.

23. Registration.—(1) It shall be the duty of a registration officer to prepare for the local government areas or parts of local government areas included in the area for which he acts a register of local government electors whenever he prepares a register of parliamentary electors. [478]

(2) The two registers shall so far as practicable be combined, the names of persons registered only as local government electors being marked to indicate that fact. [479]

(3) The elections for which any register of local government electors is to be used shall be determined by reference to the date fixed for the poll in the same way as in the case of the register of parliamentary electors. [480]

(4) Subject to any enactment imposing any disqualification for registration as a local government elector, all persons who may be entitled to vote as electors at elections for which any register is to be used shall be entitled to be registered therein :

Provided that—

(a) a person shall not be entitled to be registered more than once in any local government area ; and

(b) a person who on the qualifying date has a service qualification shall not be entitled to be registered as resident in any local government area, except in pursuance of a service declaration such as is mentioned in the next following subsection and in force on that date. [481]

(5) The service declaration in pursuance of which a person having a service qualification may be registered as a local government elector shall—

(a) except in the case of a person who is as a peer subject to a legal incapacity to vote at parliamentary elections, be the service declaration (if any) made by him for the purpose of parliamentary elections; and

(b) in the case of such a person as aforesaid, be a declaration marked to show that it is available for local government elections only, but in all other respects the same as other service declarations. [482]

(6) A person entitled as a resident to be registered as a local government elector in any local government area shall not be entitled to be so registered as a non-resident. [483]

(7) Subsections (3) and (5) of section five and section six of this Act shall apply for the purposes of this Part thereof as they apply for the purposes of Part I thereof. [484]

Place and manner of voting at local government elections

24. Situation of polling stations at local government elections.—At any local government election the polling station allotted to electors from any parliamentary polling district wholly or partly within the electoral area shall, in the absence of special circumstances, be in the parliamentary polling place for that district, unless the polling place is outside the electoral area; and any power to constitute polling districts for the purpose of local government elections shall be exercised with that in view. [485]

Local government election; Electoral area.—For meanings, see s. 77 (1), post.
Any power to constitute polling districts, etc.—See the Local Government Act, 1933, ss. 13 and 27 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 312, 319), and the London Government Act, 1939, ss. 13 and 27 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 271, 275).

25. Place and manner of voting as elector.—(1) All persons voting as electors at a local government election shall do so in person at the polling station allotted to them under the local elections rules, except in so far as this section makes exceptions for—

(a) those registered as service voters ;

(b) those unable or likely to be unable to go in person to the polling station for one of the following reasons :—

(i) the general nature of the occupation, service or employment of the person in question ;

(ii) that person's service as a member of His Majesty's reserve or auxiliary forces ;

(iii) the particular circumstances of that person's employment on the date of the poll either as a constable or, for a purpose connected with the election, by the returning officer ;

(iv) at an ordinary election, the fact that that person is acting as returning officer at an ordinary election of councillors for some other electoral area ;

(v) at an ordinary election, the particular circumstances of that person's employment on the date of the poll by the returning officer at an ordinary election of councillors for some other electoral area for a purpose connected with the election in that area ;

(c) those unable or likely to be unable, by reason either of blindness or any other physical incapacity, to go in person to the polling station or, if able to go, to vote unaided ;

(d) those unable or likely to be unable to go in person from their qualifying address to the polling station without making a journey by air or sea. [486]

(2) A person registered as a service voter may at any local government election vote by proxy unless he applies for a ballot paper to vote in person before a ballot paper has been issued for him to vote by proxy, but (where there is in force an appointment of a proxy to vote for him) shall not be entitled to vote in person unless he does so apply. [487]

(3) Where—

(a) a person is registered at the same qualifying address both as a parliamentary and as a local government elector, and is not so registered as a service voter ; and

(b) there is in force an appointment of a proxy to vote for him at parliamentary elections in respect of that registration, being an appointment based on the general nature of his occupation, service or employment ;

then, in respect of that registration, at local government elections at which postal voting is allowed, he shall be treated as an absent voter and may vote by proxy and not otherwise. [488]

(4) Subject to the last foregoing subsection, any of the persons mentioned in paragraphs (b) to (d) of subsection (1) of this section who is not registered as a service voter, may vote by post at any local government election at which postal voting is allowed, if he applies to be treated as an absent voter and furnishes an address in the United Kingdom to which a ballot paper is to be sent for the purpose. [489]

(5) At an election for which a person's application to be treated as an absent voter is allowed, he shall not be entitled to vote in person. [490]

(6) A person not registered as a service voter, if he is entitled to vote in person, but unable or likely to be unable to go in person to the polling station allotted to him by reason of the particular circumstances of his employment on the date of the poll either as a constable or, for a purpose connected with the election, by the returning officer, may vote at any polling station of the electoral area. [491]

(7) Postal voting shall be allowed at all local government elections except, in England and Wales, elections of rural district or parish councillors. [492]

(8) Nothing in this section shall be taken as conferring a right to vote on a person not having the right apart from this section. [493]

(9) In this and the next following section, references to employment by a returning officer shall be taken as including, in relation to elections in a borough in England or Wales other than a metropolitan borough, references to employment by the mayor or any person acting in place of the mayor by virtue of paragraph 10 of Part I of the local elections rules. [494]

Commencement of section.—See the note at the head of this Part of the Act, ante.

26. [495]

(2) The application shall be for a particular election only, if it is based on—

(a) the applicant's service as a member of any of His Majesty's reserve or auxiliary forces; or

(b) the fact that the applicant is acting as returning officer in some other electoral area; or

(c) the particular circumstances of the applicant's employment on the date of the poll either as a constable or by a returning officer. [496]

(3) An application not based on one of the grounds mentioned in the last foregoing subsection shall be for an indefinite period but, where such an application is allowed, the applicant shall cease to be entitled to be treated as an absent voter in pursuance thereof if—

(a) he applies to the registration officer to be no longer so treated; or

(b) he ceases to be registered at the same qualifying address, or becomes so registered as a resident instead of a non-resident or vice versa, or as a service voter; or

(2) Subject to the next following subsection, in the case of a service voter who is as a peer subject to a legal incapacity to vote at parliamentary elections, any person shall be capable of being appointed proxy to vote at local government elections for him and may vote in pursuance of the appointment:

Provided that not more than one person at a time shall be appointed on behalf of any service voter. [500]

(3) A person shall not be capable of being appointed under the last foregoing subsection to vote, or of voting, as proxy at a local government election unless he is a British subject of full age and not subject to any legal incapacity to vote thereat as an elector. [501]

(2) The candidate's consent to nomination required in England and Wales by paragraph 3 of Part I of the local elections rules shall contain a statement that he is qualified as required by law to be elected to and hold the office in question, and the statement shall give particulars of his qualification. (3) In the event of an equality of votes at a local government election, section fourteen of this Act shall apply, in place of paragraph 37 of Part III of the local elections rules, as it applies in the case of a parliamentary election. [507]

(4) No election under the local elections Act shall be declared invalid by reason of any act or omission of the returning officer or any other person in breach of his official duty in connection with the election or otherwise of the local elections rules if it appears to the tribunal having cognizance of the question that the election was so conducted as to be substantially in accordance with the law as to elections and that the act or omission did not affect its result. [508]

(b) whether or not that address is in any local government area or any particular part of a local government area ;

(c) whether or not a person registered therein as a resident is registered as a service voter ;

(a) whether or not a person's right to vote is exercisable by post ;

(b) whether or not there is in force an appointment of a proxy to vote for any person, and (if so) who is appointed. [510]

(3) A person registered as a local government elector, or entered in the list of proxies, shall not be excluded from voting on the ground that he is not a British subject or is not of full age or is otherwise subject to any legal incapacity to vote, or that on the qualifying date or the date of his appointment, as the case may be, he was not a British subject or was not of full age or was otherwise subject to any legal incapacity to vote ; but this provision shall not prevent the rejection of the vote on a scrutiny or affect his liability to any penalty for voting. [511]

(4) Subsection (2) of section seventy of the local elections Act (which provides for disregarding misnomers and inaccurate descriptions in the register and other documents), shall apply to any special list, record, proxy paper, notice or other document required for the purposes of this Part of this Act. [512]

General note.—This section is the counterpart of s. 13, ante, and may be regarded as a corollary to the proviso to s. 21 (1), ante.

Local government elections

38. Appointment of election agent.—(1) In relation to local government elections, sections twenty-four and twenty-six to thirty-five of the parliamentary corrupt practices Act (which deal with the appointment and functions of an election agent, and the payment of and making of returns as to expenses, at parliamentary elections), shall apply as if those sections had been enacted in the local corrupt practices Act as they apply to a parliamentary election in the part of Great Britain in question, but with the modifications mentioned in the next following subsection. [550]

(2) The said modifications are as follows :—

(a) there shall be omitted any reference to a sub-agent, any limit on the amount of the candidate's personal expenses which may be paid by him and subsection (1) of section thirty-five (which requires a summary of the return of election expenses to be published in two newspapers) ;

(b) for references to the constituency, to the returning officer and to sitting or voting in the House of Commons as a member for the constituency there shall respectively be substituted references to the local government area, to the town clerk or, in Scotland, the prescribed officer, and to sitting or voting in the council, and, in relation to Scotland, for any reference to the High Court there shall be substituted a reference to the sheriff ;

(c) the penalty recoverable by the Crown in civil proceedings for a contravention of subsection (5) of section thirty-three (which penalises a person sitting or voting when the return and declaration as to his election expenses have not been sent in in time) shall be fifty, and not a hundred, pounds and, instead of civil proceedings for a penalty, proceedings may be instituted in a court of summary jurisdiction and the person charged shall be liable, on conviction, to a fine of an amount not exceeding the amount of the penalty which would be recoverable in civil proceedings. [551]

(3) The following amendments (being amendments consequential on the foregoing provisions of this section) shall be made in the local corrupt practices Act and in the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1911, as they apply in relation to elections at which a candidate is required to appoint an election agent :—

(a) the words of the corresponding provisions of the parliamentary corrupt practices Act and of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1895, shall be respectively substituted for those of subsection (3) of section six, section fourteen, subsection (2) of section seventeen, paragraphs (a) and (b) of section nineteen and subsection (1) of section twenty-six of the local corrupt practices Act and for those of subsection (4) of section one of the said Act of 1911, except that in relation to Scotland for any reference to the High Court there shall be substituted a reference to the sheriff;

(b) in section twenty-five of the local corrupt practices Act—

(i) in subsection (1) after the words " candidate to whose election the petition relates " there shall be inserted the words " and his election agent ", and for the words following the word " relates " there shall be substituted the words of subsection (4) of section forty of the parliamentary corrupt practices Act with the appropriate modification of the reference to the returning officer; and

(ii) in subsection (2) after the words " with the privity of the candidate " there shall be inserted the words " or his election agent ";

(c) where two or more candidates at an election appoint the same election agent, subsection (4) of section five of the local corrupt practices Act (which deals with the cases in which candidates are to be treated as joint candidates for the purpose of determining the permitted amount of election expenses) shall apply as it applies where two or more candidates employ the same polling agent, except that proviso (a) (which deals with the case where the employment is accidental or casual) shall not apply;

(d) the said section five shall not apply to sums paid or expenses incurred otherwise than by the candidate or his election agent. [552]

(4) This section shall apply in relation to the first ordinary election of councillors held after the passing of this Act and to any subsequent election. [553]

(5) In the application of this section to Scotland, for the reference in subsection (2) to proceedings in a court of summary jurisdiction there shall be substituted a reference to summary proceedings in the sheriff court. [554]

Commencement of section.—By sub-s. (4), supra, this section is to apply in relation to the first ordinary election of councillors held after the passing of the Act (July 30, 1948), and to any subsequent election. But see also s. 80 (4), post, in conjunction with s. 56 (3), post.

General note.—This section applies, with modifications, in relation to local government elections, most of the provisions of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 465), as to election expenses, requiring thereby for the first time the appointment of election agents for local government elections, and makes consequential amendments to the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Acts, 1884 and 1911, i.e., the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 511), and the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1911 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 546).

The section must be read in conjunction with s. 39, post, from the proviso to sub-s. (1) of which it is clear, on the one hand, that the provisions of the Act of 1883 mentioned in sub-s. (1), supra, are substituted for s. 21 of the Act of 1884 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 519), and, on the other hand, that the present section does not apply in relation to parish elections (cf. also Sched. [564]

(2) Where a person incurs any expenses required by this section to be authorised by the election agent, that person shall within fourteen days after the date of publication of the result of the election send to the appropriate officer a return of the amount of those expenses, stating the election at which and the candidate in whose support they were incurred, and the return shall be accompanied by a declaration made by the said person (or in the case of an association or body of persons, by a director, general manager, secretary or other similar officer thereof) verifying the return and giving particulars of the matters for which the expenses were incurred :

(2) The additional alderman required, in consequence of the increase by virtue of this Act in the number of the said county councillors, to maintain the proportion between the number of aldermen and the number of councillors shall be elected at the first ordinary election of county aldermen after the coming into force of the foregoing subsection. [653]

Local Government Act, 1933.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 295. For the provisions thereof referred to in this section, see s. 51 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 331).

This section in effect amends ss. 40 (1) and 54 (1) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 325, 332), and is now incorporated in r. 3 of Sched. II to the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 480), as added by the Local Government (Hours of Poll) Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 411), and by para. 3 of Part II of Sched. FIRST SCHEDULE

PARLIAMENTARY CONSTITUENCIES

[NOTE.—The constituencies are described by reference to circumstances as they existed immediately before the end of the year 1947, except as otherwise stated and except that any subsequent accretion from the sea, whether natural or artificial and whether occurring before or after the passing of this Act, shall be taken to be included in the constituency or constituencies which it adjoins, in proportion to the extent of the common boundary.] [732]

PART II

PROCEDURE UP TO THE POLL

Notice of Election

1. The returning officer shall publish notice of the election stating—

(a) the place and times at which nomination papers are to be delivered; and

(b) the date of the poll in the event of a contest; and the notice shall state that forms of nomination paper may be obtained at the place and times aforesaid.

Nomination of Candidates

2.—(1) Each candidate shall be nominated by a separate nomination paper delivered by the candidate himself, or his proposer or seconder, to the returning officer at the place fixed for the purpose.

(2) The nomination paper shall state the full names, place of residence and description of the candidate and the surname shall be placed first in the list of his names.

(3) The description shall not refer to the candidate's political activities, and need not refer to his rank, profession or calling so long as, with the other particulars of the candidate, it is sufficient to identify him.

(4) If the description is unduly long, the returning officer after consultation (if possible) with the candidate or his election agent, proposer or seconder, may shorten it or substitute another.

3.—(1) The nomination paper shall be subscribed by two electors as proposer and seconder, and by eight other electors as assenting to the nomination.

(2) Where a nomination paper bears the signatures of more than the required number of persons as proposing, seconding or assenting to the nomination of a candidate, the signature or signatures (up to the required number) appearing first on the paper in each category shall be taken into account to the exclusion of any others in that category.

(3) The nomination paper shall give the electoral number of each person subscribing it.

(4) The returning officer shall supply any elector with a form of nomination paper at the place and during the time for delivery of nomination papers and shall at the request of any elector prepare a nomination paper for signature; but it shall not be necessary for a nomination to be on a form supplied by the returning officer.

4. No person shall subscribe more than one nomination paper at the same election and, if he does, his signature shall be inoperative on any paper other than the one first delivered:

Provided that a person shall not be prevented from subscribing a nomination paper by reason only of his having subscribed that of a candidate who has died or withdrawn before delivery of the first mentioned paper.

Consent to Nomination

5. A person shall not be validly nominated unless his consent to nomination, given in writing on or within one month before the day fixed as the last day for the delivery of nomination papers, and attested by one witness, is delivered at the place and within the time for the delivery of nomination papers:

Provided that if the returning officer is satisfied that owing to the absence of a person from the United Kingdom it has not been reasonably practicable for his consent in writing to be given as aforesaid, a telegram consenting to his nomination and purporting to have been sent by him shall be deemed, for the purpose of this paragraph, to be consent in writing given by him on the day on which it purports to have been sent, and attestation of his consent shall not be required.

Deposit

6.—(1) A person shall not be validly nominated unless the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds is deposited by him or on his behalf with the returning officer at the place and during the time for delivery of nomination papers.

(2) The deposit may be made either by the deposit of any legal tender, or by means of a banker's draft, or with the consent of the returning officer in any other manner:

Provided that the returning officer may refuse to accept a deposit sought to be made by means of a banker's draft if he does not know that the drawer carries on business as a banker in the United Kingdom.

Place for Delivery of Nomination Papers

7.—(1) The returning officer shall fix the place at which nomination papers are to be delivered to him, and shall attend there during the time for the delivery thereof and for the making of objections thereto.

(2) The place shall be in the constituency or in the registration area (if any) which includes the constituency or, unless the constituency is a borough constituency, in a borough adjoining the constituency or registration area.

Right to Attend Nomination

8.—(1) Except for the purpose of delivering a nomination paper or of assisting the returning officer, no person shall be entitled to attend the proceedings during the time for delivery of nomination papers or making objections thereto unless he is a person standing nominated as a candidate or is the election agent, proposer or seconder of such a person :

Provided that where a candidate acts as his own election agent, he may name one other person who shall be entitled to attend in place of his election agent.

(2) Where a person stands nominated by more than one nomination paper, only the persons subscribing, as proposer and seconder, such one of them as he may select or, in default of any such selection, that one of them which is first delivered, shall be entitled to attend as his proposer and seconder.

(3) The right to attend conferred by this paragraph shall include the right to inspect, and to object to the validity of, any nomination paper.

Decisions as to the Validity of Nomination Papers

9.—(1) Where a nomination paper and the candidate's consent thereto is delivered and a deposit is made in accordance with this Act, the candidate shall be deemed to stand nominated unless and until the returning officer decides that the nomination paper is invalid, or proof is given to the satisfaction of the returning officer of the candidate's death, or the candidate withdraws.

(2) The returning officer shall be entitled to hold a nomination paper invalid only on one of the following grounds, that is to say,—

(a) that the particulars of the candidate or the persons subscribing the paper are not as required by law ; and

(b) that the paper is not subscribed as so required.

(3) The returning officer shall give his decision on any objection to a nomination paper as soon as practicable after it is made.

(4) Where he decides that a nomination paper is invalid, he shall endorse and sign on the paper the fact and the reasons for his decision.

(5) The decision of the returning officer that a nomination paper is valid shall be final and shall not be questioned in any proceeding whatsoever.

(6) Subject to the last foregoing sub-paragraph, nothing in this paragraph shall prevent the validity of a nomination being questioned on a petition questioning the election or return.

Withdrawal of Candidates

10.—(1) A candidate may withdraw his candidature by notice of withdrawal signed by him and attested by one witness and delivered to the returning officer at the place and during the time for delivery of nomination papers.

(2) In the case of a candidate who is outside the United Kingdom, a notice of withdrawal signed by his proposer and accompanied by a written declaration also so signed of the candidate's absence from the United Kingdom shall be of the same effect as a notice of withdrawal signed by the candidate :

Provided that where the candidate stands nominated by more than one nomination paper a notice of withdrawal under this sub-paragraph shall be effective if, but only if,—

(a) it and the accompanying declaration are signed by all the proposers except any who is, and is stated in the said declaration to be, outside the United Kingdom ; or

(b) it is accompanied, in addition to the said declaration, by a written statement signed by the candidate that the proposer giving the notice is authorised to do so on the candidate's behalf during his absence from the United Kingdom.

Publication of Nominations

11.—(1) The returning officer shall prepare and publish a statement showing the persons who have been and stand nominated and any other persons who have been nominated, with the reason why they no longer stand nominated.

(2) The statement shall show the names, addresses and descriptions of the persons nominated as given in their nomination papers, together with the names of the persons subscribing those papers.

(3) The statement shall show the persons standing nominated arranged alphabetically in the order of their surnames, and, if there are two or more of them with the same surname, of their other names.

(4) In the case of a person nominated by more than one nomination paper, the returning officer shall take the particulars required by the foregoing sub-paragraphs from such one of the papers as the candidate or the returning officer in default of the candidate may select, but if the election is contested a candidate standing nominated may require the returning officer to include in the statement the names of the persons subscribing a second and third nomination paper.

Declaration of Result of Uncontested Election

12. If the statement of persons nominated shows only one person standing nominated, the statement shall also declare that person elected, and the returning officer shall forthwith return his name to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery.

Proceedings preliminary to Poll if Election Contested

13. If the statement of persons nominated shows more than one person standing nominated, then—

(a) a poll shall be taken in accordance with the Ballot Act, 1872 ;

(b) the statement shall include a notice of the poll, stating the day on which and hours during which the poll will be taken ;

(c) the persons shown in the statement as standing nominated, and no others, shall be entitled to have their names inserted in the ballot papers ;

(d) the order of the names in the statement and the particulars therein of the candidates shall be the order of the names and the particulars of the candidates inserted in the ballot papers ;

(e) the statement may be combined with the notice as to polling stations and mode of voting which is required by rule 19 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872.

14.—(1) If a poll is to be taken in a county constituency, the returning officer shall, on publication of the statement of persons nominated and notice of the poll, deliver to the postmaster of the principal post office where the place for the delivery of nomination papers is situated a paper signed by himself, giving the names of the candidates standing nominated, as the names will appear in the ballot paper, and the day and hours of the poll.

(2) The postmaster shall forward the information contained in the paper by telegraph, free of charge, to all postal telegraph offices situated in the constituency, and the information shall be published forthwith at each office in the manner in which post office notices are usually published.

Absent voters list, list of proxies, etc.

15.—(1) If a poll is to be taken, the registration officer shall as soon as practicable prepare the following special lists for the purposes of the election, namely,—

(a) a list (in this Act referred to as " the absent voters list ") giving the name and number on the register of every person entitled to vote at the election as an absent voter ;

(b) a list (in this Act referred to as " the list of proxies ") giving—

(i) the names and numbers on the register of the electors for whom proxies have been appointed (omitting any of those electors who are registered as service voters and entitled to vote by post) ; and

(ii) the names and addresses of the persons appointed ;

(c) a list of any persons entitled to vote by post as proxy at the election.

(2) The duty of the returning officer under Rule 20 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872, to provide each polling station with copies of the register of electors or such part thereof as contains the names of the electors allotted to vote at the station shall include a duty to provide the corresponding parts of any special lists prepared for the election.

Issue of Official Poll Cards

16.—(1) If a poll is to be taken, the returning officer shall as soon as practicable send to electors and their proxies an official poll card :

Provided that an official poll card need not be sent to any person as an elector if he is placed on the absent voters list for the election, or to any person as a proxy if his application to vote as such by post is allowed for the election.

(2) An elector's official poll card shall be sent or delivered to his qualifying address, a proxy's to his address as shown in the list of proxies.

(3) The official poll card shall be in the prescribed form and shall set out—

(c) the date and hours of the poll and the situation of the elector's polling station.

Issue and receipt of postal ballot papers

17.—(1) If a poll is to be taken, the returning officer shall as soon as practicable send to those entitled to vote by post, at the addresses furnished by them for the purpose, a ballot paper and a declaration of identity in the prescribed form, together with an envelope for their return.

(2) Before the returning officer proceeds to count the votes he shall count such of the said ballot papers as have been duly returned and record the number counted, and the papers counted under this provision shall be included with the ballot papers of those voting in person when they are mixed before the count as required by Rule 34 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872.

(3) A ballot paper sent to a person for the purpose of voting by post shall not be deemed to be duly returned, unless it is returned in the proper envelope so as to reach the returning officer before the close of the poll and is accompanied by the declaration of identity duly signed and authenticated.

The persons entitled to be present in the polling station under Rule 21 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872, shall include the election agents of the candidates, but a candidate attending at a polling station and an election agent attending by virtue of this paragraph shall make the same declaration of secrecy in the presence of a justice of the peace or the returning officer as a candidate's polling agent.

Cases in which ballot paper may be refused

4.—(1) No person shall be admitted to vote in person elsewhere than at his own polling station under the provisions of this Act relating to constables and persons employed by the returning officer, except on production and surrender of a certificate as to his employment, which shall be in the prescribed form and signed by the prescribed officer of police or by the returning officer, as the case may be.

(2) Any certificate surrendered under this paragraph shall forthwith be cancelled and thereafter dealt with in the same way as the counterfoils to ballot papers are directed by law to be dealt with.

5.—(1) The presiding officer may, and if required by a candidate or his election or polling agent shall, put to any person applying for a ballot paper at the time of his application, but not afterwards, the following questions, or either of them, that is to say—

(a) in the case of a person applying as an elector—

(i) are you the person registered in the register of parliamentary electors for this election as follows [read the whole entry from the register] ?

(ii) have you already voted, here or elsewhere, at this bye-election [general election], otherwise than as proxy for some other person ?

(b) in the case of a person applying as proxy—

(i) are you the person whose name appears as A.B. in the list of proxies for this election as entitled to vote as proxy on behalf of C.D.?

(ii) have you already voted here or elsewhere at this bye-election [general election] as proxy on behalf of C.D. ?

(2) In the case of a person applying as proxy, the presiding officer may, and if required as aforesaid shall, put the following additional question :—

" Are you the husband [wife], parent, grandparent, brother [sister], child or grandchild of C.D. ? " and if that question is not answered in the affirmative the following question :—

" Have you at this election already voted in this constituency on behalf of two persons of whom you are not the husband [wife], parent, grandparent, brother [sister], child or grandchild ? "

(3) A ballot paper shall not be delivered to any person required to answer the above questions or any of them unless he has answered the questions or question satisfactorily.

(4) Save as by this paragraph authorised, no inquiry shall be permitted as to the right of any person to vote, and no person applying for a ballot paper shall be required to take or make any oath or affirmation.

Challenge of elector or proxy at polling station

6.—(1) Sections eighty-six to ninety of the Parliamentary Voters Registration Act, 1843, and sections ninety-three to ninety-seven of the Representation of the People (Ireland) Act, 1850 (which make provision for the challenge of electors suspected of personation and matters connected therewith), shall cease to have effect.

(2) If at the time a person applies for a ballot paper for the purpose of voting in person (whether as elector or as proxy), or after he has applied for a ballot paper for that purpose and before he has left the polling station, a candidate or his election or polling agent declares to the presiding officer that he has reasonable cause to believe that the applicant has committed an offence of personation, and undertakes to substantiate the charge in a court of law, the presiding officer may order a police officer to arrest the applicant, and the order of the presiding officer shall be sufficient authority for the police officer so to do.

(3) A person against whom a declaration is made under this paragraph shall not, by reason thereof, be prevented from voting.

(4) A person arrested under the provisions of this paragraph shall be dealt with as a person taken into custody by a police officer for an offence without a warrant.

Abolition of declaration of inability to read

7. So much of Rule 26 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872, as requires a person who is unable to read to make a declaration of his inability before a ballot paper can be marked in the manner directed by him shall cease to have effect, and in that rule for the words " who makes such a declaration as hereinafter mentioned that he is unable to read " there shall be substituted the words " who declares orally that he is unable to read ".

Sealed packets of register and counterfoils

8. Notwithstanding anything in the Ballot Act, 1872, the marked copies of the register of electors and the counterfoils of the used ballot papers shall be sealed up in separate packets after the close of the poll, and not in the same packet.

Adaptations, in relation to voting by proxy, of Ballot Act, 1872

9.—(1) Part I of the Ballot Act, 1872, and Part I of the First Schedule and the Second Schedule to that Act shall be modified in accordance with the following provisions of this paragraph.

(2) The word " voter ", except in the phrase " register of voters ", shall mean a person voting whether as an elector or as proxy for an elector, and the word " vote " (whether noun or verb) shall be construed accordingly :

Provided that, in rules 15, 16, 20, 41 and 43 of the First Schedule and in the phrase " entitled to vote " where used in rule 26A thereof to describe the qualification of the companion of a blind voter, the word " vote " shall refer only to voting as an elector, but shall include voting otherwise than in person, and accordingly in the form of declaration to be made by the companion of a blind voter after the words " entitled to vote " there shall be inserted the words " as an elector ".

(3) In the said rule 20 for the word " voters " where it last occurs there shall be substituted the word " electors " and in section nine and in rules 19, 21 and 25 of the First Schedule and in the first place where the word occurs in rule 24 thereof for the word " elector " there shall be substituted the word " voter ".

(4) In section four after the word " elector " there shall be inserted the words " or proxy for an elector ", and when that section is read as required by the said Second Schedule to a person making a declaration of secrecy it shall be read with the words hereby inserted.

(5) Any reference to a voter's number on the register shall, in relation to a person voting as proxy for an elector, be taken as a reference to the elector's number on the register.

(6) Rule 24 of the First Schedule shall, in the case of a person applying for a ballot paper as proxy, be taken to require a mark to be placed against his name in the list of proxies as well as against the number of the elector in the register, and the marked copies of the list of proxies shall after the close of the poll be sealed up in the same packet as the marked copies of the register.

(7) In rule 27 of the First Schedule for the words " If a person, representing himself to be a particular elector named on the register, applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted as such elector " there shall be substituted the following words :—

" If a person, representing himself to be—

(a) a particular elector named on the register and not named in the absent voters list ; or

(b) a particular person named in the list of proxies as proxy for an elector and not named in the list of persons entitled to vote by post as proxy ;

applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted in person either as the elector or as his proxy ". [736]

PART IV

THE COUNT

Right to attend

1.—(1) A candidate's wife or husband and a candidate's election agent may be present at the counting of the votes, notwithstanding anything in rule 33 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872.

(2) The following persons attending the counting of the votes, that is to say—

(a) any candidate;

(b) any person attending by virtue of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph;

(c) any person permitted by the returning officer to attend though not entitled to do so;

shall make the same declaration of secrecy in the presence of a justice of the peace or of the returning officer as a candidate's counting agent:

Provided that a declaration required by this sub-paragraph need not be made before the opening of the poll, but shall be made before the person in question is permitted to attend the counting.

Appointment of and facilities for counting agents

2.—(1) The counting agents to attend on behalf of a candidate at the counting of the votes may be appointed, and notice of the appointment given to the returning officer, by the candidate's election agent, instead of by the candidate.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872, the returning officer may limit the number of counting agents who may attend on behalf of the candidates, so, however, that the number of those who may attend shall be the same in the case of each candidate and the number allowed to a candidate shall not (except in special circumstances) be less than the number obtained by dividing the number of clerks employed on the counting by the number of candidates.

(3) The counting agents attending on behalf of the candidates shall be given by the returning officer all such reasonable facilities for overseeing the proceedings, and all such information with respect thereto, as he can give them consistently with the orderly conduct of the proceedings and the discharge of his duties in connection therewith.

(4) In particular, where the votes are counted by sorting the ballot papers according to the candidate for whom the vote is given and then counting the number of ballot papers for each candidate, the counting agents shall be entitled to satisfy themselves that the ballot papers are sorted rightly.

Adjournments

3.—(1) So far as practicable, the counting of the votes shall (unless otherwise agreed) proceed continuously by night as by day, allowing only time for refreshment, and accordingly in rule 35 of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872 (which excludes the hours between seven o'clock at night and nine o'clock on the succeeding morning, except so far as the returning officer and the candidates' agents otherwise agree), for the words "except so far as he and the agents otherwise agree" there shall be substituted the words "in so far as he and the agents agree."

(2) For the purposes of the said rule 35 the agreement of a candidate or his election agent shall be as effective as the agreement of his counting agents.

Re-counts

4.—(1) A candidate or his election agent may, if present when the counting or any re-count of the votes is completed, require the returning officer to have the votes re-counted or again re-counted but the returning officer may refuse to do so if in his opinion the request is unreasonable.

(2) No step shall be taken on the completion of the counting or any re-count of the votes until the candidates and election agents present at the completion thereof have been given a reasonable opportunity to exercise the right conferred by this paragraph.

Rejection of ballot papers

5. A ballot paper on which the vote is marked—

(a) elsewhere than in the proper place ; or
(b) otherwise than by means of a cross ; or
(c) by more than one mark ;

shall not by reason thereof be rejected if an intention that the vote shall be for one or other of the candidates clearly appears, and the way the paper is marked does not of itself identify the voter and it is not shown that he can be identified thereby. [737]

PART V

SPECIAL CASES, AND COMPUTATION OF TIME

Telegraphic information of writ

1.—(1) Official telegraphic information of the writ having been issued for a parliamentary election may be given in such cases and by such persons as may be directed by His Majesty in Council.

(2) Any steps for holding an election which may be taken on or after the receipt of the writ may be taken on or after the receipt of an official telegraphic intimation of the writ having been issued.

Death of candidate

2.—(1) If a poll is to be taken in a constituency, and after publication of the statement of persons nominated and before the poll is commenced proof is given to the satisfaction of the returning officer of the death of one of the persons shown as standing nominated, the returning officer shall countermand notice of the poll, and all proceedings with reference to the election shall be commenced afresh in all respects as if the writ had been received on the day on which proof was given to the returning officer of the death :

Provided that no fresh nomination shall be necessary in the case of a person shown in the statement as standing nominated.

(2) Where by reason of the death of a candidate proceedings at an election are commenced afresh under this paragraph, then in the case of a general election, as in the case of a bye-election, the time for delivery of nomination papers and the time for polling shall be determined in accordance with the third column in Part I of this Schedule (with the modification required by the foregoing sub-paragraph of any reference to the date on which the writ is received).

Adjournment in case of riot

3. Where the proceedings for or in connection with nomination are on any day interrupted or obstructed by riot or open violence, the proceedings shall be abandoned for that day, and if that day is the last day for the delivery of nomination papers, the proceedings shall be continued on the next day as if that were the last day for the delivery thereof, and that day shall be treated for the purposes of this Schedule as being the said last day (subject however to any further application of this paragraph in the event of interruption or obstruction on that day) :

Provided that where proceedings are abandoned by virtue of this paragraph—

(a) nothing may be done after they are continued, if the time for doing it had passed at the time of the abandonment, nor shall anything done before the abandonment be invalidated by reason thereof ;

(b) subject to the foregoing sub-paragraph, if the day on which the proceedings are continued is a Saturday and is (or is to be treated as) the said last day, the proviso to the entry in Part I of this Schedule relating to the making of objections shall not apply.

4.—(1) Where the proceedings at any polling station are interrupted or obstructed by riot or open violence, the presiding officer shall adjourn the proceedings till the following day and, if he is not the returning officer, shall forthwith give notice to the returning officer.

(2) Where the poll is adjourned at any polling station,—

(a) the hours of polling on the day to which it is adjourned shall be those laid down by Part I of this Schedule for the original day ; and

(b) references in any enactment to the close of the poll shall be construed accordingly.

Computation of time

5.—(1) In computing any period of time for the purposes of this Schedule or of the First Schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872, a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, bank holiday or day appointed for public thanksgiving or mourning shall be disregarded, and any such day shall not be treated as a day for the purpose of any proceedings mentioned in Part I or II of this Schedule nor shall the returning officer be obliged to proceed with the counting of the votes thereon.

(2) In this paragraph the expression " bank holiday " means—

(a) in relation to a general election, a day which is a bank holiday under the Bank Holidays Act, 1871, in any part of the United Kingdom ; and

(b) in relation to a bye-election, a day which is a bank holiday under the said Act in that part of the United Kingdom in which the constituency in question is situated :

Provided that at a general election paragraph (b) and not paragraph (a) of this sub-paragraph shall apply—

(i) in relation to any proceedings commenced afresh by reason of the death of a candidate ; and

(ii) in relation to any proceedings extending, by reason of riot or open violence, beyond the time laid down by Part I of this Schedule. [738]

Section 28 FOURTH SCHEDULE

AMENDMENTS OF LOCAL ELECTIONS RULES

General note.—This Schedule takes effect by virtue of s. 28 (1), ante, which is in Part II of the Act. It must, therefore, on account of its subject-matter, be taken as coming into force on the appointed day (see s. 80 (3) and the notes to s. 80, ante), that is to say, such day as the Secretary of State may by statutory instrument appoint for the purpose (s. 80 (10) (a), ante). But none of the provisions of this Schedule is to apply in relation to any election begun before the provision in question comes into force (s. 80 (8), ante), the beginning of an election for this purpose being the day on which notice of the election is given (s. 80 (10) (b), ante). As to the appointed day, see S.I. 1949 No. 327, reg. 75 (1).

PART I

ADAPTATIONS TO VOTING BY POST AND BY PROXY

Absent voters list, list of proxies, etc.

1.—(1) At every contested election, the registration officer shall as soon as practicable prepare the following special lists for the purposes of the election, namely,—

(a) a list (in this Act referred to as " the absent voters list ") giving the name and number on the register of every person entitled to vote at the election as an absent voter ;

(b) a list (in this Act referred to as " the list of proxies ") giving—

(i) the names and numbers on the register of the electors for whom proxies have been appointed ; and

(ii) the names and addresses of the persons appointed ;

(c) a list of any persons entitled to vote by post as proxy at the election.

(2) The duty of the returning officer or mayor under paragraph 7 of Part III of the local elections rules to provide each polling station with copies of the register of electors or such part thereof as contains the names of the electors allotted to vote at the station shall include a duty to provide the corresponding parts of any special lists prepared for the election.

Issue and receipt of ballot papers for voting by post

2.—(1) At every contested election, the returning officer or mayor shall as soon as practicable send to those entitled to vote by post, at the addresses furnished by them for the purpose, a ballot paper and a declaration of identity in the prescribed form, together with an envelope for their return.

(2) Before the returning officer proceeds to count the votes he shall count such of the said ballot papers as have been duly returned and record the number counted, and the papers counted under this provision shall be included with the ballot papers of those voting in person when they are mixed before the count as required by paragraph 31 of Part III of the local elections rules.

(3) A ballot paper sent to a person for the purpose of voting by post shall not be deemed to be duly returned, unless it is returned in the proper envelope so as to reach the returning officer before the close of the poll and is accompanied by the declaration of identity duly signed and authenticated.

(4) Nothing in sub-paragraph (1) of the foregoing paragraph or in this paragraph shall require or authorise any steps to be taken on a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, Bank Holiday or day appointed for public thanksgiving or mourning, or in Scotland on a public holiday.

Adaptations in relation to persons voting as proxy

3.—(1) Subject to the following provisions of this paragraph, in Parts III and IV of the local elections rules—

(a) the word " voter " shall be substituted for the word " elector ", wherever it occurs except in the phrases " register of electors " and " register of local government electors " ; and

(b) the word " voter " shall mean a person voting whether as an elector or as proxy for an elector, and the word " vote " (whether noun or verb) shall be construed accordingly.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sub-paragraph—

(a) in sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph 7 of the said Part III and in the last place in sub-paragraph (e) of that paragraph, the word " electors " shall remain and shall be taken as meaning electors entitled to vote in person or by proxy, and the word " vote " shall be construed accordingly in those sub-paragraphs ;

(b) in sub-paragraphs (a) to (d) of paragraph 18 of the said Part III the word " elector " shall remain but a mark shall be placed against the name of the proxy in the list of proxies as well as against the number of the elector in the register, and the marked copies of the list of proxies shall after the close of the poll be sealed up in the same packet as the marked copies of the register ;

(c) in any other provision a reference to a voter's number on the register of electors shall, in relation to a person voting as proxy for an elector, be taken as a reference to the elector's number on the register ;

(d) in sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 21 of the said Part III, and in the said Part IV in the form of declaration to be made by the companion of a blind voter after the words " entitled to vote " there shall be inserted the words " as an elector " ;

(e) in paragraph 23 of the said Part III, for the words " If a person, representing himself to be a particular elector named on the register, applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted as such elector," there shall be substituted the following words—

" If a person, representing himself to be—

(a) a particular elector named on the register and not named in the absent voters list ; or

(b) a particular person named in the list of proxies as proxy for an elector and not named in the list of persons entitled to vote by post as proxy ;

applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted in person either as the elector or as his proxy " ;

(f) in sub-paragraph (4) of paragraph 41 of the said Part III, the word " elector " shall remain, and the word " vote " shall refer only to voting as an elector but shall include voting otherwise than in person ;

(g) in paragraph 54 of the said Part III, the word " elector " shall remain in the first place where it is there used and the words " or proxy for an elector " shall be inserted after it in that place.

(3) In the said Part IV in the form of declaration of secrecy for the words " read by me " there shall be substituted the words " read to me ", and when the provisions referred to in that form are read to a person making a declaration of secrecy they shall be read as amended by this paragraph.

4.—(1) In paragraph 16 of the said Part III, at the end of the second of the questions which may be asked of a person applying for a ballot paper, there shall in the case of a person applying as an elector be added the words " otherwise than as proxy for some other person ".

(2) In the case of a person applying for a ballot paper as proxy there shall be substituted for the questions set out in the said paragraph 16 the following questions, that is to say—

(a) are you the person whose name appears as A.B. in the list of proxies for this election as entitled to vote as proxy on behalf of C.D.?

(b) have you already voted here or elsewhere at the present election as proxy on behalf of C.D.?

and any reference to the questions set out in that paragraph shall be construed accordingly.

Infringement of secrecy

5. Every person attending the proceedings in connection with the issue or the receipt of ballot papers for persons voting by post at local government elections shall maintain and aid in maintaining the secrecy of the voting and shall not—

(a) except for some purpose authorised by law communicate, before the poll is closed, to any person any information obtained at those proceedings as to the official mark ; nor

(c) except for some purpose authorised by law, attempt to ascertain at the proceedings in connection with the receipt of the ballot papers the number on the back of any ballot paper ; nor

and any person who acts in contravention of this paragraph shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

Supplementary

6. Where the expression " returning officer or mayor," is used in this Schedule, the reference to the mayor shall apply, and shall only apply, in the case of an election of borough councillors under the Local Government Act, 1933, and in the case of any such election paragraph 10 of Part I of the Second Schedule to that Act (which provides for the case where there is no mayor or the mayor is unable to act) shall apply for the purpose of this Schedule as it applies for the purpose of that Schedule. PART II

AMENDMENTS TO SECURE CONFORMITY WITH RULES AS TO PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS

Nomination and matters connected therewith

1.—(1) In the list of a candidate's names in a nomination paper, his surname shall be placed first.

(2) The description of a candidate in his nomination paper shall not refer to his political activities, and need not refer to his rank, profession or calling so long as, with the other particulars of the candidate, it is sufficient to identify him.

(3) If the description is unduly long, the returning officer or mayor after consultation (if possible) with the candidate or his election agent, proposer or seconder, may shorten it or substitute another.

(4) Where a nomination paper bears the signatures of more than the required number of persons as proposing, seconding or assenting to the nomination of a candidate, the signature or signatures (up to the required number) appearing first on the paper in each category shall be taken into account to the exclusion of any others in that category.

(5) In determining whether a person's signature on a nomination paper is inoperative on the ground that he has signed more papers than is allowed, a paper previously signed by him shall be disregarded if the candidate thereby nominated has died or withdrawn before delivery of the first mentioned paper.

(6) The returning officer or mayor shall not in England or Wales be entitled to hold a nomination paper invalid except on one of the following grounds, that is to say—

(a) that the particulars of the candidate or the persons subscribing the paper are not as required by law ; and

(b) that the paper is not subscribed as so required ;

or, where a nomination paper and the candidate's consent is delivered in accordance with paragraphs 3 and 4 of Part I of the local elections rules, be entitled to hold the nomination invalid except on the ground of the invalidity of the nomination paper.

(7) The statement of persons nominated shall show all persons who have been nominated, including those who have withdrawn or died, and in the case of those not remaining nominated shall give the reason why they do not remain nominated.

(8) The said statement shall show the persons standing nominated arranged alphabetically in the order of their surnames, and if there are two or more of them with the same surname, of their other names, and shall take the particulars of all persons nominated from their nomination papers or, in the case of a person nominated by more than one nomination paper, from such one of the papers as the candidate or the returning officer or mayor in default of the candidate may select.

(9) In the case of a candidate nominated by more than one nomination paper, the paper selected under the last foregoing sub-paragraph shall be deemed to be his nomination paper for the purpose of any reference in Part III of the local elections rules.

Withdrawal of Candidates

2. In the case of a candidate who is outside the United Kingdom, a notice of withdrawal signed by his proposer and accompanied by a written declaration also so signed of the candidate's absence from the United Kingdom shall be of the same effect for the purpose of paragraph 7 of Part I of the local elections rules as a notice of withdrawal signed by the candidate :

Provided that where the candidate stands nominated by more than one nomination paper a notice of withdrawal under this paragraph shall be effective if, but only if,—

(a) it and the accompanying declaration are signed by all the proposers except any who is, and is stated in the said declaration to be, outside the United Kingdom ; or

(b) it is accompanied, in addition to the said declaration, by a written statement signed by the candidate that the proposer giving the notice is authorised to do so on the candidate's behalf during his absence from the United Kingdom.

Notice of poll

3.—(1) The order of the names of the candidates, and the particulars of the candidates, in the notice of poll shall be the same as in the statement as to the persons nominated.

(2) The notice of poll shall give the names of all persons signing a candidate's nomination paper, and not only those of the proposer and seconder, and in the case of a candidate nominated by more than one nomination paper, the candidate may require the returning officer or mayor to include in the notice the names of the persons signing a second and third nomination paper.

Death of candidate

4. If before the commencement of the poll proof is given to the satisfaction of the returning officer that a candidate shown in the statement as to the persons nominated as remaining nominated had in fact died before the latest time for delivery of nomination papers, the returning officer shall countermand the poll and the local elections Act shall apply as if the candidate had died after the latest time for delivery of nomination papers.

Form of directions for the guidance of voters

5. The directions for the guidance of voters which are to be exhibited outside every polling station and in the compartments of polling stations shall include a direction in the following terms—

" The voter should see that the ballot paper, before it is handed to him, is stamped with the official mark."

Form of ballot paper

6. So far as practicable, the same arrangements shall be observed in the printing of the ballot papers as in the case of a parliamentary election.

Proceedings at polling station

7.—(1) In paragraph 16 of Part III of the local elections rules for England and Wales (which enables two electors to require the questions there set out to be put to an applicant for a ballot paper) the reference to two electors shall cease to have effect.

(2) So much of paragraph 17 of Part III of the local elections rules as requires the words " protested against for personation " to be placed in the register where an elector is challenged by a polling agent shall cease to have effect, and any reference in the said paragraph 17 to a polling agent shall include a reference to a candidate or his election agent.

(3) So much of paragraph 20 of Part III of the local elections rules as requires a person who is unable to read to make a declaration of his inability before a ballot paper can be marked in the manner directed by him shall cease to have effect, and in that paragraph for the words " makes a declaration " there shall be substituted the words " declares orally ".

(4) No person shall be admitted to vote in person elsewhere than at his own polling station under the provisions of this Act relating to constables and persons employed by the returning officer or mayor, except on production and surrender of a certificate as to his employment, which shall be in the prescribed form and signed by the prescribed officer of police or by the returning officer or mayor, as the case may be ; and any certificate surrendered under this paragraph shall forthwith be cancelled and thereafter dealt with in the same way as the counterfoils to ballot papers are directed by law to be dealt with.

(5) Notwithstanding anything in the local elections rules, the marked copies of the register of electors and the counterfoils of the used ballot papers shall be sealed up in separate packets after the close of the poll, and not in the same packet.

The count

8.—(1) In paragraph 33 of Part III of the local elections rules for England and Wales (which excludes from the time during which the counting of the votes is to proceed the hours between eight o'clock in the evening and nine o'clock on the succeeding morning, except so far as the returning officer with the concurrence of the counting agents, if any, otherwise determines), the word " except " and the word " otherwise " where it first occurs shall be omitted ; and accordingly, so far as practicable, the counting of the votes under those rules shall (unless otherwise determined) proceed continuously by night as by day, allowing only time for refreshment.

(2) For the purposes of the said paragraph 33, the concurrence of a candidate or his election agent shall be as effective as that of his counting agents :

Provided that where at an election in a metropolitan borough counting agents have been appointed to attend on behalf of more than one candidate jointly, the concurrence of those agents shall be required unless each of those candidates or his election agent concurs.

(3) A candidate or his election agent may, if present when the counting or any re-count of the votes is completed, require the returning officer to have the votes re-counted or again re-counted, but the returning officer may refuse to do so if in his opinion the request is unreasonable.

(4) No steps shall be taken on the completion of the counting or any re-count of the votes until the candidates and election agents present at the completion thereof have been given a reasonable opportunity to exercise the right conferred by the last foregoing sub-paragraph.

(5) The provisions of section two hundred and ninety-five of the local elections Act and, in England and Wales, paragraph 12 of Part I of the local elections rules (which provide for excluding Sundays and other days therein mentioned) shall not apply in relation to the counting of the votes and the other proceedings of the returning officer after the close of the poll or to things done by other persons in the course of those proceedings, but the returning officer shall not be obliged to proceed with the counting on any day to which those provisions apply.

Rejection of ballot papers

9. A ballot paper on which a vote is marked—

(a) elsewhere than in the proper place ; or
(b) otherwise than by means of a cross ; or
(c) by more than one mark ;

shall not by reason thereof be rejected (either wholly or as respects that vote), if an intention that the vote shall be for one or other of the candidates clearly appears, and the way the paper is marked does not of itself identify the voter and it is not shown that he can be identified thereby.

Right to attend at polling station and counting of votes

10.—(1) A candidate's election agent shall have the same right to attend at a polling station or at the counting of the votes as the candidate, and a candidate's wife or husband shall also have the right to attend at the counting of the votes.

(2) Any candidate attending at a polling station or the counting of the votes, and any person so attending by virtue of this paragraph, and any person permitted by the returning officer to attend at the counting of the votes though not entitled to do so, shall be subject to paragraph 54 of Part III of the local elections rules in the same way as a candidate's polling agent or counting agent, but a declaration of secrecy required to be made by a candidate attending the counting or, by virtue of this paragraph, by any other person so attending need not be made before the opening of the poll, but shall be made before the person in question is permitted to attend the counting.

(3) Where the relevant sub-paragraphs of the said paragraph 54 are read to a person making a declaration of secrecy by virtue of this paragraph they shall be read with such modifications as are necessary to show how they apply to that person.

(4) An election agent attending at a polling station shall have the same right as the candidate to require the presiding officer to put the questions permitted by law to a person applying for a ballot paper.

11.—(1) The counting agents to attend on behalf of a candidate at the counting of the votes may be appointed, and notice of the appointment given to the returning officer, by the candidate's election agent, instead of by the candidate.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the local elections rules, the returning officer may (except at an election in a metropolitan borough) limit the number of counting agents who may attend on behalf of the candidates, so, however, that the number of those who may attend shall be the same in the case of each candidate and the number allowed to a candidate shall not (except in special circumstances) be less than the number obtained by dividing by the number of candidates the number of persons appointed to assist the returning officer.

(3) In the case of an election for a metropolitan borough, sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph shall apply to joint, as well as to separate, appointments and sub-paragraph (4) of paragraph 28 of Part II of the Second Schedule to the London Government Act, 1939, shall be construed accordingly.

(4) The counting agents attending on behalf of the candidates shall be given by the returning officer all such reasonable facilities for overseeing the proceedings, and all such information with respect thereto, as he can give them consistently with the orderly conduct of the proceedings and the discharge of his duties in connection therewith.

(5) In particular, where the votes are counted by sorting the ballot papers according to the candidate for whom the vote is given and then counting the number of ballot papers for each candidate, the counting agents shall be entitled to satisfy themselves that the ballot papers are sorted rightly.

1.—(1) In the year nineteen hundred and forty-nine and every subsequent year of election—

(a) the ordinary day of retirement of county councillors shall be the fourth day after the day of election, and the newly elected councillors shall come into office on the said fourth day; and

(b) the date of the annual meeting shall be the eighth day after the day of retirement, or such other day within twenty-one days after the day of retirement as the county council may fix.

(2) So much of paragraph 1 of Part I of the Third Schedule to the Local Government Act, 1933, as directs the three meetings required to be held in addition to the annual meeting by a county council (other than the London County Council) to be held before the eighth day of March next following shall cease to have effect.

Borough Councils

2.—(1) The ordinary elections of borough councillors, and retirement of borough councillors, due (apart from this Act) to take place in November in the year nineteen hundred and forty-eight and subsequent years shall in each case be postponed so as to take place on the day provided by this Act in the following year:

Provided that in the case of metropolitan boroughs the postponement shall, except in the first instance, be to the next following year which is not a year of election of county councillors, and the ordinary election and retirement of metropolitan borough councillors shall accordingly take place in the year nineteen hundred and forty-nine, the year nineteen hundred and fifty-three and every third year after the year nineteen hundred and fifty-three.

(2) In the year nineteen hundred and forty-nine and subsequent years—

(a) the ordinary retirement of borough councillors shall take place on the fourth day after the day of election, and the newly elected councillors shall come into office on the said fourth day; and

(b) the date of the annual meeting shall be the eleventh day after the day of election of borough councillors, or such other day within the following seven days as the borough council may fix.

For the purpose of determining the date for the annual meeting of a metropolitan borough council in a year which is not a year of election, the reference in this sub-paragraph to the day of election shall be taken as a reference to the day of election in that year in boroughs other than metropolitan boroughs.

(3) The ordinary election of a mayor due to take place at the annual meeting in the year nineteen hundred and forty-eight, and the ordinary election and retirement of aldermen of a borough due to take place at that meeting, shall be postponed till the annual meeting in the following year and the first mentioned meeting shall be treated as not being an annual meeting for the purpose of determining the date of retirement of any deputy mayor of a metropolitan borough.

(4) So much of paragraph 1 of Part II of the Third Schedule to the Local Government Act, 1933, as directs the three meetings required to be held in addition to the annual meeting by a borough council (other than a metropolitan borough council) to be held before the first day of November next following shall cease to have effect; and for the purposes of that requirement the period between the annual meetings mentioned in the last foregoing sub-paragraph shall be treated as a year but so that only one meeting shall be required during that period instead of three.

(2) If at the passing of this Act there is a vacancy in the office of a borough councillor who would (apart from this Act) regularly have retired in November, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, it shall be filled under the said section of the local elections Act as if it had occurred on the date of the passing of this Act.

6.—(1) Where it appears to the Secretary of State that by reason of special circumstances affecting any local authority the provisions of this Schedule are, in relation to that authority or some part of the members thereof, inapplicable or inadequate without some addition or modification, he may by order make such provision as appears to him to accord with the principles of this Schedule and to be necessary or expedient in consequence of the change effected by this Act in the date of the ordinary election of councillors.

GENERAL PROVISIONS FOR ADAPTATION AND INTERPRETATION OF LAW

Matters arising out of redistribution

1.—(1) The constituencies for the time being established by this Act and any Order in Council under the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, shall take the place of parliamentary counties and boroughs, and writs for parliamentary elections shall, notwithstanding anything in this Act, continue to be sealed and issued in accordance with the rules applying at the passing of this Act in the case of elections in parliamentary counties and boroughs.

(2) Subject to the following sub-paragraph—

(a) any reference in any Act passed before this Act to parliamentary counties and boroughs shall be construed as a reference to constituencies ;

(b) references in any Act passed before this Act to a parliamentary county shall be construed as references to a county constituency, and those to a parliamentary borough as references to a borough constituency, and references to a county election or a borough election shall be construed accordingly ;

Register, electors, etc.

2. Any reference in any Act (whenever passed) to the register of parliamentary and local government electors, or to the register of parliamentary electors, or to the register of local government electors, or to the electors lists for any such register, shall be taken as a reference to the register kept under this Act, or to that register so far as it relates to parliamentary electors, or to that register so far as it relates to local government electors, or to the electors lists therefor, as the case may be, and references in any Act to a parliamentary or local government elector shall be construed accordingly; and local government electors registered under this Act shall for all purposes, whether statutory or not, be in the same position as local government electors registered under the Representation of the People Act, 1918.

3. ELECTORAL REGISTRATION REGULATIONS, 1948

April 28, 1948

In pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Acts, 1943 and 1944, the Representation of the People Act, 1945, and the Elections and Jurors Act, 1945, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following regulations :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the Electoral Registration Regulations, 1948.

(2) These regulations shall come into force on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-eight. [753]

2. In sub-paragraph (i) of paragraph (b) of Regulation 24 of the Electoral Registration Regulations, 1946 (which prescribes the date of publication of the civilian residence and service electors lists), for the words " in England and Wales on the twelfth day of August " there shall be substituted the words " in England and Wales on the ninth day of August ". [754]

CASES

Election—Municipal election—Ballot papers—Validity—Papers insufficiently marked with official stamp—Initials written on papers—Mark near name of candidate—Local Government Act, 1933 (c. 51), s. 29, Sched. II, Part III, paras. 18, 34 (a), (c), (d).

By the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 29 : " Subject to the provisions of this Act, an election of councillors of a borough shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Sched. II to this Act." By Sched. II, Part III, para. 18 : " A ballot paper shall be delivered to an elector who applies therefor, and immediately before delivery—(a) the ballot paper shall be marked with the official mark, either embossed or perforated. . . ." By Sched. II, Part III, para. 34 : " Any ballot paper—(a) which does not bear the official mark ; or . . . (c) on which anything is written or marked by which the elector can be identified except the printed number on the back ; or (d) which is . . . void for uncertainty ; shall not be counted. . . ."

At a municipal election, the official mark for the ballot paper was ten perforated holes. A paper was rejected on which there was only one perforated hole and in two places marks where the holes should have been, but the perforation had not gone through the paper. A ballot paper on which the official mark was visible, but the stamp had failed to perforate the paper, was allowed :—

Held : where a voter, who had expressed his intention of voting for a particular candidate, was in no way to blame and the only defect in the ballot paper was on the part of the official machinery by which the election was conducted, special consideration should be given so that the voter should not be disfranchised ; the intention to apply the official mark was clearly indicated ; and the fact that the official stamp had been imperfectly applied did not invalidate the votes.

Some ballot papers had initials written underneath the cross against the name of the candidate chosen :—

Held : ballot papers on which initials had been written were void under the Local Government Act, 1933, Sched. II, Part III, r. 34 (c), as the voters could be identified, and they should, therefore, have been rejected.

A ballot paper which was counted had some pencil marks over the cross against the name of one of the candidates :—

Held : there was nothing appearing on the ballot paper to invalidate the vote, and it was properly counted.—Re SOUTH NEWINGTON (KINGSTON-UPON-HULL) MUNICIPAL ELECTION PETITION, LEWIS v. SHEPPERDSON, [1948] 2 All E. R. 503 ; 206 L. T. Jo. 104 ; 112 J. P. 357 ; 92 Sol. Jo. 457. [755]

PRELIMINARY NOTE

One section of the Local Government Act, 1948—s. 138—relates exclusively to the functional relations between local authorities and the new bodies responsible for the supply of electricity and gas under the nationalisation schemes recently implemented. The section enables local authorities which previously exercised electricity or gas functions to exercise certain powers and duties by agreement with the new bodies concerned, subject to the limitations prescribed. It is submitted that agreements under the section should be under seal.

Other provisions of the Act appear in the titles FINANCE ; HIGHWAYS ; MEMORIALS, WAR AND OTHER ; MUNICIPAL HOSPITALITY ; and RATES AND RATING, post. [756]

PART VII

* * * * *

138. Power to assist in performance of transferred functions.—(1) Where, by or under the Electricity Act, 1947, or any Act passed during the present Session providing for the establishing of public ownership of the gas industry, any undertaking theretofore carried on by a local authority is transferred to any other body, the authority may enter into an agreement with the body for the performance by the authority, as agent for the body, for such period as may be specified in the agreement, of such of the functions of the body as may be so specified. [758]

(2) No agreement shall be made for the performance of functions by a local authority under this section for a period ending later than twelve months after the transfer of the undertaking in question except with the approval—

(a) in the case of an undertaking in the North of Scotland District transferred by or under the Electricity Act, 1947, of the Secretary of State; or

(b) in any other case, of both the Minister or, as the case may be, the Secretary of State and the Minister of Fuel and Power. [759]

General note.—A local authority whose electricity or gas undertaking is transferred under nationalisation to another body may agree with that body to carry on functions of that body as its agent for a limited period. This period may not exceed twelve months from the date of transfer except with the consent, in England and Wales, of both the Minister of Fuel and Power and the Minister of Health. This section came into force on the passing of the Act on March 24, 1948.

For many years consumers in different parts of the country have been accustomed to pay their electricity and gas accounts at the offices of the local authority, and it may be that the power of collection will be one of the functions the subject of agreements under the present section, at any rate during the stage of transition.

Electricity Act, 1947.—40 Halsbury's Statutes 409. The vesting date under the Act was April 1, 1948 (see ss. 14 and 15 thereof; and the Electricity (Vesting Date) Order, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 217, post).

Act . . . providing for . . . public ownership of the gas industry.—See the Gas Act, 1948, title GAS, post. The vesting date under the Act is May 1, 1949 (see s. 17 thereof and the Gas (Vesting Date) Order, 1949, S.I. 1949 No. 392).

Local authority.—Defined in s. 144 (1), post, but here confined to local authorities (a) specified in the Electricity Act, 1947, supra, or (b) referred to in the Gas Act, 1948, supra, where the term is defined as meaning a county borough, county district or metropolitan borough council, the Common Council of the City of London, and a joint board of local authorities having functions as statutory undertakers and also other functions (see s. 74 (1) thereof).

Body.—I.e., the British Electricity Authority, Area Electricity Boards or the North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board, under the Electricity Act, 1947, supra (see s. 14 thereof); and Area Gas Boards or the Gas Council under the Gas Act, 1948, supra.

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

PART VIII

* * * * *

144. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act, except so far as the contrary is expressly provided or the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say—

"Minister" means the Minister of Health;

"local authority" means the council of a county, county borough, metropolitan borough or county district, or the Common Council of the City of London; . . . [760]

* * * * *

(7) In this Act, the expression "the North of Scotland District" means, as respects any period up to and including the vesting date within the meaning of the Electricity Act, 1947, the North of Scotland District as existing on that date for the purposes of that Act, and, as respects any subsequent period, means that District as for the time being existing for the purposes of that Act. [761]

* * * * *

(10) Except so far as the context otherwise requires, any reference in this Act to any other enactment shall be construed as a reference to that enactment as amended, extended or applied by or under any other enactment, including this Act. [762]

Local authority.—This definition, as stated earlier in the section, applies only so far as the contrary is not expressly provided or the context does not otherwise require. In s. 138, ante, the meaning of the term is obviously not that as here defined (see the notes to that section, ante).

* * * * *

148. Short title and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Local Government Act, 1948. [763]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [764]

(4) Any question arising between the authority and the Board, whether as to the vesting of any property to which any such notice as aforesaid refers, or as to the granting of any such interest or right as aforesaid, or as to the terms on which the property, interest or right shall vest or be granted, as the case may be, may be referred at the instance of either of them for determination by the Minister of Health.

(5) All property to which any such agreement or determination as aforesaid relates shall vest in the Board by virtue of the Act, or shall not so vest, in accordance therewith; and every interest in, or right over or attaching to, or right in respect of the user of, any such property, which by the terms of any such agreement or determination as aforesaid should be granted, shall be granted in accordance therewith by the Board or by the authority in whom that property is vested. [782]

3. Post-war refunds in respect of excess profits tax.—(1) The last preceding Regulation shall not apply:—

(a) to any sums held by a local authority which represent the whole or any part of a post-war refund (within the meaning of Part IV of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1945) paid to the authority in respect of excess profits tax in respect of profits earned by them partly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and partly in other capacities; or

(b) to any right to receive any such post-war refund or any part thereof; and the following provisions of this Regulation shall apply thereto, so however that in the case of any local authority whose undertaking is wholly or mainly carried on in the North of Scotland District there shall be substituted for references in those provisions to the British Electricity Authority references to the North of Scotland Board.

(2) Where any sum representing the whole or a part of a post-war refund has been paid to a local authority before the vesting date and has not been used, or appropriated for use, before the vesting date for the purposes of the electricity undertaking of the authority, such part of that sum as may be agreed between the local authority and the British Electricity Authority, or, in default of such agreement, be determined by the Minister of Health, to be attributable to the excess profits tax paid by the local authority in respect of profits earned by them in their capacity as authorised undertakers shall, subject to such reduction (if any) as may be just having regard to the provisions of section forty-six of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1945, vest in the British Electricity Authority, and the remainder thereof shall not so vest.

4. Agreements of a local authority made partly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and partly in other capacities.—(1) This Regulation shall apply to agreements entered into by a local authority partly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and partly in other capacities, including agreements which relate to the employment of officers by the local authority partly for the purposes of their electricity undertaking and partly for other purposes:

Provided that this Regulation shall not apply in any case where the only matters outstanding under the agreement will be disposed of in accordance with section twenty-two of the Act.

(2) In this Regulation the expression "the Board" means, in relation to any such agreement, the Electricity Board in whom rights and liabilities under the agreement would vest by virtue of the Act if the agreement had been entered into by the local authority wholly in their capacity as authorised undertakers:

Provided that, if the agreement relates partly to matters which concern another Electricity Board, the said expression shall include that Board also.

(3) Where any agreement to which this Regulation applies remains to be performed, in whole or in part, after the vesting date, that agreement shall, subject to the provisions of the following paragraphs of this Regulation, have effect, as from the vesting date, as if there were substituted therefor separate agreements—

(a) securing for the Board the benefits that would, but for the Act, have been secured for the electricity undertaking of the local authority under the original agreement, either directly or in accordance with arrangements made by the local authority for making benefits under the agreement available to the undertaking, and imposing on the Board the liabilities and obligations, so far as properly attributable to those benefits, that would have been imposed on the local authority by the original agreement; and

(b) securing for the local authority all other benefits that would have accrued to them under the original agreement and imposing on them the liabilities and obligations, so far as properly attributable to those benefits, that would have been imposed on them by the original agreement:

Provided that, in the case of an agreement relating to the employment by the local authority of any officer in a capacity which entitled him to pension rights, that officer shall, while the agreement has effect under this paragraph, be deemed, for the purposes of his pension rights, to be employed whole-time by the body (whether the Board or the local authority) to whom his services are mainly rendered.

(4) The authority and the Board may, with respect to any agreement to which this Regulation applies, on such terms (which may include the payment of money) as may be then specified agree either temporarily or permanently that all rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder shall vest in the Board by virtue of the Act, or that none of them shall so vest; and those terms may include provision that the Board or the authority, as the case may be, in whom the said rights, liabilities and obligations are to vest shall make available to the other of them any such benefits in relation to the agreement as are respectively mentioned in sub-paragraph (b) or sub-paragraph (a) of the last preceding paragraph.

(5) Any question arising in relation to any agreement to which this Regulation applies either as to the effect of paragraph (3) or, in pursuance of paragraph (4), as to the vesting of the rights, liabilities and obligations, or the terms on which they shall vest, or shall not vest, may be referred at the instance of any party to the question for determination:—

(a) if it is a question between the authority and the Board after they have agreed under paragraph (4) of this Regulation that the rights, liabilities and obligations shall vest, or shall not vest, by such method as may have been agreed, or be agreed, between them; so however that any party to that agreement may, if not a party to the question, make representations thereon before the said determination.

(b) in any other case, by the Minister of Health;

(6) During the currency of any agreement or determination in pursuance of paragraph (4) that all rights, liabilities and obligations under an agreement shall vest in the Board by virtue of the Act, or that none of them shall so vest, whether or not any benefits are to be made available as there mentioned, paragraph (3) of this Regulation shall not apply to that agreement, but the said agreement shall have effect, and any such benefits be made available, as has been so agreed or determined. [784]

Easements, etc., to be granted over certain land.—(1) If any Electricity Board in whom land of any local authority is vested are of opinion that any easement or other right over or attaching to other land of that authority is required to enable the land which is so vested to be used for the purposes of the Board, that Board may, before the expiry of twelve months from the date of the vesting of that land, give notice in writing to the authority and to every other person concerned specifying the easement or right which in the opinion of the Board is so required.

(2) There shall be delivered with every such notice as aforesaid such maps or plans as are requisite to identify clearly the location of any land to which the specified easement or right relates.

(3) Any question arising as to whether, or to what extent, any easement or right is required by the Board for the purpose aforesaid, or as to the terms on which it shall be conferred, shall in default of agreement be determined by arbitration under the Act; and any such easement or right as may be agreed or determined to be required as aforesaid shall vest in the Board on such terms (which may include the payment of money) as may be so agreed or determined. [785]

6. Severance of leases.—(1) Where any local authority were lessees of land of which part only was used by them in their capacity as authorised undertakers, the interest of the authority in the lease shall, in so far as the land vests in any Electricity Board by virtue of the Act, be severed as from the date of that vesting; and the provisions of this Regulation shall have effect in relation thereto.

(2) If the lease does not reserve separate rents for the several parts of the land, the rent reserved by the lease shall be apportioned, and the amounts thereof to be apportioned respectively to those parts of the land which have, and which have not, vested in that Board shall, in default of agreement between the lessor, the Board and the authority, be determined by arbitration under the Act.

(3) As from the date of the severance, no liability (whether to the lessor or to any other person) shall attach respectively to the Board and to the authority, or to their respective successors in title, in respect of any apportioned rent, or the breach of any covenant, agreement, or condition in the said lease, relating respectively to land which has not, and which has, vested in the Board.

(4) The authority shall be deemed to have given to the Board an acknowledgment in writing of the right of the Board to production of the lease and of all relevant documents, and to delivery of copies thereof; and section sixty-four of the Law of Property Act, 1925, shall apply on the basis that that acknowledgment did not contain any such expression of contrary intention as is mentioned in that section.

(5) The authority shall, not later than the date of vesting of the land (or such other date as the Board may permit), deliver to the Board a statement setting out full particulars of the ownership of the land, of the date of the lease and every relevant document, of the names, addresses and descriptions of the parties thereto, and of the effect thereof; and shall, in such manner and within such time as the Board may reasonably require, furnish all such supplementary information in relation to the interest vested in the Board as the Board may reasonably require.

(6) Any expenses reasonably incurred by the authority in complying with the last preceding paragraph, or with any requirement made thereunder, shall be paid by the Board; and the High Court shall have power on the application of the authority, being aggrieved by a refusal by the Board to pay any expenses, to give such directions as to the matter in question as appear to the Court to be just. [786]

Apportionments and indemnities.—(1) In the case of an agreement to which sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (3) of Regulation four applies, or, where a lease is severed in pursuance of the last preceding Regulation, of that part of the lease which relates to land vesting in an Electricity Board, the provisions of this Regulation shall have effect.

(2) If any periodical payment, being a fixed or certain periodical payment, was accruing at the date of substitution of separate agreements or of severence of the original lease, as the case may be, (in this Regulation referred to as "the relevant date") that payment shall be deemed to have accrued from day to day and shall be apportioned as at the relevant date accordingly.

(3) If any periodical payment, being a payment calculated on a quantitative basis, was accruing at the relevant date, that payment shall be calculated on the relevant basis up to that date and shall (subject to the provisions of the next following paragraph) be the amount apportioned to that date.

(4) If, in relation to any such payment as is mentioned in the last preceding paragraph, provision was also made for a minimum periodical amount being paid in respect thereof, the amount accruing at the relevant date shall be calculated on a day to day basis to that date; and the amount of that payment apportioned to that date shall be whichever of the amounts calculated respectively in accordance with the last preceding paragraph and with this paragraph is the greater.

(5) Where any periodical payment (whether or not a minimum payment) has been made in advance in respect of the period in which the relevant date occurs, that payment shall be apportioned as between that part of the period which ended and that part which began on that date.

(6) Any sum apportioned in pursuance of the last preceding paragraph in respect of that part of the said period which began on the relevant date shall, if it was not before the relevant date debited or credited by the local authority concerned in the accounts of that authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers, be deemed to have been paid by or to the authority, as the case may be, on behalf of the Electricity Board concerned.

(7) Any question which may arise in giving effect to this Regulation, or as to the giving of any requisite and reasonable indemnity in relation to the severance of any lease or the substitution of any agreement, shall in default of agreement between all the parties concerned, be determined by arbitration under the Act. [787]

8. Form of notice under section 15 (4) of the Act.—Any notice given by a local authority or Electricity Board in pursuance of subsection (4) of section fifteen of the Act shall be in the form set out in the Schedule to these Regulations; and shall show all requisite information in relation to any matters mentioned in that Schedule; and shall be signed by a person authorised in that behalf. ELECTRICITY (CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL) (AREAS) REGULATIONS, 1948

The Minister of Fuel and Power, in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by section seven of the Electricity Act, 1947, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Regulations :—

1. Appointment and tenure of office of members, chairman and deputy chairman.—(1) The appointment of a member of the Consultative Council for any area (in these Regulations referred to as " a council ") shall be for such term not exceeding five years as may before his appointment be determined by the Minister; and shall be subject to the provisions of the next following Regulation, and to any conditions notified to him in writing by the Minister.

(2) Any member of a council may, on the expiry of his term of office, if eligible, be reappointed.

(3) The Minister will appoint a member of each council to be chairman, and another member to be deputy-chairman, of that council. [814]

2. Vacation of office.—(1) A member of a council appointed in pursuance of paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of section seven of the Act, shall remain a member of that council only so long as he is a member of a local authority in the area.

(2) Where any member of a council :—

(a) is absent, unless for a reason approved by the Minister, from every meeting of that council during six consecutive months ; or

(b) becomes in the opinion of the Minister unfit to continue as a member or incapable of performing his duties ;

the Minister may declare the office of that member to be vacant ; whereupon he shall cease to be a member of that council.

(3) The chairman, deputy-chairman and any member of a council may resign their respective appointments by one month's notice in writing given to the Minister. [815]

3. Frequency and constitution of meetings.—(1) Each council shall meet as often as may be necessary for the proper discharge of their duties ; and the period between any two consecutive meetings shall not be longer than three months.

(2) Where members of a council numbering one half or more of the total number for the time being deliver to the secretary of the council a requisition in writing for a meeting, the chairman, or if the chairman is not available, the deputy-chairman, shall ensure that a meeting is held before the expiry of ten days from the delivery of the requisition.

(3) No meetings of a council shall be held unless either the chairman or the deputy-chairman is present:

Provided that if:—

(a) by reason of vacancy in the office, or of serious illness, neither of them is available; or

(b) a meeting is not held before the expiry of ten days from the delivery of a requisition;

the council may meet and pass provisional resolutions which shall have effect until the duly constituted meeting next after they were passed, and which may be ratified at that meeting.

(4) At any meeting of a council, one half of the total number for the time being of the members shall be a quorum.

(5) All acts done at any meeting of a council shall, notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of a person purporting to be a member of the council, be valid as if that defect had not existed. [816]

4. Voting.—Every resolution of a council shall be passed by the votes of the members of the council present and voting, or, in case of difference between them, of the majority of those members; and in the event of an equality of votes, the proposal in question shall be held to have been rejected. [817]

5. Minutes.—(1) Every council shall keep, or cause to be kept, minutes of their proceedings; and a record in any such minutes specifying the terms of a resolution passed at any meeting, and, in the case of a resolution that a representation be made to the Central Authority or the Minister, the number of votes cast for and against it, shall, if signed by the person purporting to be acting as chairman of the meeting to which the minutes relate, or of a meeting at which they were read, be evidence of those proceedings.

(2) A copy of any part of the minutes of the proceedings of any council shall, if purporting to be certified by the secretary of that council to be a true copy of that part of those minutes, be evidence of the proceedings of the council to which that part of the minutes relates.

(3) A meeting to which any such minutes as aforesaid relate shall, unless the contrary be proved, be deemed to have been regularly convened and constituted. [818]

6. Representations and references.—Where any representation is made to a council by a consumer or other person requiring a supply of electricity in the area, or where any matter is referred to a council by the Area Board of the area, that council shall consider the matter in question as soon as practicable and, in any event, before the expiry of three months after the representation is made, or the matter referred, as the case may be. [819]

7. Execution of documents.—Any document requiring to be executed by or on behalf of any council shall be signed by the chairman and secretary of that council, or by such one or more of the members and officers of the council as the council may in any particular case determine. [820]

8. Interpretation.—(1) In these Regulations the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them respectively, that is to say:—

"the Act" means the Electricity Act, 1947;

" a council " has the meaning assigned to it by paragraph (1) of Regulation one ;

" the Minister " means the Minister of Fuel and Power.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [821]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of these Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations regulate the chairmanship, terms of membership and proceedings of Consultative Councils in the areas for which Area Boards are established under the Electricity Act, 1947.

CASES

Electricity—Supply—Conversion from direct to alternating current—No contract between occupiers and undertakers—Right to supply of direct current—Expense of changing consumers' installation—Strand District Electric Lighting Order, 1895, art. 27—Electricity Supply Regulations, 1937, reg. 34 (a), (b).

On June 30, 1947, the plaintiffs acquired from S. A., Ltd., certain premises which were let off in flats to separate tenants, the plaintiffs being responsible for the electric lighting on the stairs and for the lifts which were run by electricity. The electric current for the lifts had hitherto been at the rate of 100 volts direct current, but the defendants, the electricity undertakers for the district, had been for some time past in the process of changing over to 230 volts alternating current. S. A., Ltd., on taking over the premises, had been asked by the defendants to enter into a contract and were notified that the current was to be changed. In view of the fact that the S. A., Ltd.'s, appliances on the property were adapted for 100 volts direct current, a special agreement was entered into between S. A., Ltd., and the defendants that direct current would continue to be supplied for the purpose of the appliances for three months from June 2, 1946, and thereafter at the will of the defendants.

The defendants were not informed of the fact that the plaintiffs had taken over the premises until August 11, 1947, and on September 3, 1947, they wrote to the plaintiffs enclosing a form of contract and informing them that the supply would be alternating current and that the plaintiffs' appliances on the premises would have to be altered to suit it. By art. 27 of the Strand District Electric Lighting Order, 1895, undertakers, on being required to do so by the owner or occupier of premises situated within a prescribed distance from the undertakers' distributing mains, were to " give and continue to give a supply of energy for such premises " in accordance with the provisions of the Order, subject to the following conditions (inter alia) : (a) that the owner or occupier should serve a notice on the undertakers specifying certain particulars, and (b) that, if required by the undertakers to do so, he was to enter into a written contract with them in regard to the receipt of and payment for the supply. By a proviso to the article, the undertakers were not to be compelled to supply any premises unless satisfied that the apparatus therein was in good order and not calculated to affect injuriously the use of energy by the undertakers or other persons.

By the Electricity Supply Regulations, 1937, a " consumer " is defined as " any body or person supplied or entitled to be supplied with energy by the undertakers." By reg. 34 the undertakers are required to declare the type of current, frequency and voltage at supply terminals " before commencing to give a supply of energy to any consumer " and they are not to alter these, except within certain permissible variations, without the consent of the Electricity Commissioners. By reg. 35, the undertakers are required to maintain a constant supply without change of the neutral conductor unless otherwise allowed by the Electricity Commissioners.

The consent of the Electricity Commissioners to the change over from direct to alternating current had been given on January 19, 1937, on the conditions (inter alia) that a notice of their intention to carry out the change over be affected and that the defendants were to be responsible for the cost of the necessary alterations to consumers' installations. It was contended by the plaintiffs that the defendants were under a statutory duty to continue to supply to them the 100 volts direct current, the fact that they themselves had not entered into a contract being immaterial because the provision in regard to a written contract applied only to the first owner or occupier who required undertakers to supply current to the premises. It was further contended that, under the conditions attached to the consent of the Electricity Commissioners to the change over, the expense of any necessary alterations to their installations was to be borne by the defendants :—

Held : (i) under art. 27 of the Strand Order, every occupier of premises was required to enter into a written contract if requested to do so by the electricity company and the fact that a previous occupier had entered into a contract did not entitle a subsequent occupier as of right to a supply. Accordingly, until the plaintiffs had entered into a contract with the defendants, they were not entitled to demand a supply, and when they did enter into a contract, they would be entitled only to the type of current declared by the defendants in accordance with reg. 34 (a) of the regulations of 1937. If the type of current which the defendants proposed to supply did not fit the plaintiffs' installation, the plaintiffs would have to alter their installation to fit the supply.

(ii) the condition imposed by the Electricity Commissioners requiring the defendants to pay for the cost of any necessary alterations to consumers' installations applied only in the case of consumers who had already entered into contracts with the defendants and to whom a declaration in regard to the type of current, voltage and frequency, had been made in accordance with reg. 34 (a) of the regulations of 1937.

STATUTES

PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1947

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 13)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

S. 1 of this Act makes provision similar to that made by previous Public Works Loans Acts for the issuing to the Public Works Loan Commissioners of sums, in this case up to £250 millions, for the purpose of local loans until the next Act for that purpose. Ss. 3 and 4 together with the Schedule, which are also customary form in Public Works Loans Acts, provide for writing off the principal of, and interest on, certain existing loans.

Under the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946, s. 2 (1) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 320), the Loan Commissioners were empowered to enter into undertakings to make further loans, including undertakings under which the loan or any instalment thereof might fall to be advanced after the expiration of the issue period current at the time the undertaking was entered into. By s. 2 (2) of that Act the aggregate of their outstanding commitments together with advances during the last issue period were limited to £500 millions. S. 2 of the present Act provides that the limit for the current issue period is to be £400 millions, this representing a greater reduction than prima facie appears.

In relation to ss. 1 and 2, see, further, ss. 1 and 2 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1948, post. [826]

An Act to grant money for the purpose of certain local loans out of the Local Loans Fund and for other purposes relating to local loans. [827]

[18th December, 1947.]

1. Grants for public works.—(1) There may be issued by the National Debt Commissioners for the purpose of local loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners any sum or sums not exceeding in the whole the sum of two hundred and fifty million pounds. [828]

(2) The sums so issued shall be issued during a period beginning with the passing of this Act and ending on the day on which a further Act granting money for the purposes of those loans comes into operation, and in accordance with the provisions of the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887. [829]

General note.—This section is in identical terms with s. 1 of the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 320); see also s. 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1948, post.

National Debt Commissioners.—For the constitution of the Commissioners, see s. 14 of the National Debt Reduction Act, 1786 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 27).
National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 282.

2. Limit on commitments by Public Works Loan Commissioners.—The period aforesaid shall be an "issue period" within the meaning of section two of the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946 (which makes provision as to undertakings by the Public Works Loan Commissioners to grant loans), and the aggregate of—

(a) the commitments of the said Commissioners outstanding at any time during the said issue period in respect of undertakings entered into by them (whether during or before the beginning of that period) to grant local loans, and shall not exceed the sum of four hundred million pounds. [830]

General note.—S. 2 (4) of the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 321), provides that in that Act the expression "issue period" is to mean a period beginning with the coming into operation of that Act and ending on the day on which a further Act granting money for the purposes of local loans comes into operation, and in any such further Act that expression is to have a corresponding meaning unless the contrary intention appears.
See, further, s. 2 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1948, post.

3. Certain debts not to be reckoned as assets of Local Loans Fund.—Whereas it is expedient that the principal of the several local loans specified in the table contained in Part I of the Schedule to this Act should, to the extent specified in the last column of that table, not be reckoned as assets of the Local Loans Fund established under the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887:

Now, therefore, the principal of the said loans to the extent aforesaid shall be written off from the assets of the Local Loans Fund, and the provisions of section fifteen of the said Act shall, so far as applicable, apply thereto. [831]

General note.—This section is in almost identical terms with s. 3 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 312).
National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 282. The Local Loans Fund was established by s. 7 of that Act, s. 15 of which provides for the writing off of losses.

4. Remission of interest of local loan.—Whereas the principal of the local loan specified in the table contained in Part II of the Schedule to this Act has been repaid, and arrears of interest, of the amount specified in the last column of that table, are irrecoverable:

Now, therefore, the said arrears of interest shall be remitted. [832]

Shall be remitted.—This provision is comparable with s. 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 312).

5. Short title.—This Act may be cited as the Public Works Loans Act, 1947. [833]

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 26)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

Part I of the Local Government Act, 1948, which received the Royal Assent on March 24, 1948, provides for the termination, as from April 1, 1948, of the Exchequer Grants payable to local authorities under the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 883 ; 30 Halsbury's Statutes ; 34 Halsbury's Statutes 175 ; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 239), and for their replacement as from that date by new Exchequer Equalisation Grants, supplemented, for the first five years thereafter, by Exchequer Transitional Grants. In addition, this Part of the Act contains a number of miscellaneous provisions, including special provision as to the payment of grants in certain cases for the transitional period before Part II of the National Health Service Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 523), came into force on July 5, 1948, and the discontinuance of burden payments on changes of boundary.

The Local Government Act, 1929, s. 86 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 938), provided for the annual payment of general exchequer contributions, or block grants, towards the expenses of local authorities in counties and county boroughs. These grants were to be paid during " fixed grant periods," the first period being for three years from the commencement of the Act (1930–1933) and the second for the four succeeding years (1933–1937), while the third and subsequent periods were each to be of five years' duration. The amount of the grant was to be revised for each new period. The third fixed grant period, which would normally have terminated on March 31, 1942, was extended by the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 175), until such date after the expiration of the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 930), as Parliament should determine. At the same time the amount of the grant for the extended period was stabilised at £46,172,000 which was the amount fixed by the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 377), for each year in the third fixed grant period 1937–1942.

The Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 239), provided for the payment towards local government expenses in counties and county boroughs of " Interim Supplementary Exchequer Contributions " in respect of the years beginning on April 1, 1945, 1946 and 1947, respectively. These contributions, which were additional to the stabilised block grants of £46,172,000, were fixed for those years respectively at £10,000,000, £11,000,000 and £12,000,000. In addition to the General and Interim Supplementary Exchequer Contributions, grants were payable during the third fixed grant period under the Midwives Act, 1936, s. 4 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 268), and the Cancer Act, 1939, s. 2 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 254), to off-set the additional expenditure imposed on local authorities by those Acts.

The present Act terminates the third fixed grant period for the purposes of all enactments as from March 31, 1948, and provides that no Exchequer Grants are to be payable under the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946, supra, for the year 1948–49 or any subsequent year. This provision for termination of Exchequer Grants is, however, subject to two exceptions covering the transitional period between March 31, 1948, and the coming into force of Part II of the National Health Service Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 523), on July 5, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 112, title NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE, post). First, Exchequer Grants under the Midwives Act, 1936, s. 4, supra, and the Cancer Act, 1939, s. 2, supra, and certain other financial payments connected with maternity and child welfare and other health services were continued until July 4, 1948 (s. 12); and, secondly, special grants equal to a "relevant fraction" of the Exchequer Grants payable to local authorities under the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946, supra, for the year 1947–48, less certain deductions, were payable in respect of this period (s. 13). The special grant is deducted for the purpose of computing the Exchequer Equalisation Grant, infra, but is left out of account in computing the Exchequer Transitional Grant, infra (s. 13 (6), (7)).

New grants, known as Exchequer Equalisation Grants, are to be paid for the year 1948–49 and for each subsequent year to the council of every county or county borough whose rateable value for the year is less than the standard rateable value for that county or county borough for that year, the amount by which the rateable value falls short of the standard rateable value being known as the rateable value credited to that county or county borough (s. 2).

The standard rateable value of a county or county borough for any year, which is a proportion of the rateable value for England and Wales for that year, is arrived at by the following formula :—

$$\text{Standard Rateable Value} = \frac{\text{Rateable value for England and Wales} \times \text{Weighted population of the county or county borough}}{\text{Weighted population of England and Wales}}$$

The weighted population of a county or county borough is the population of the county or county borough plus the number of children under fifteen and, in the case of a county whose population divided by the road-mileage is less than seventy, plus also one-third of the additional population needed in order that the population divided by the road mileage should be seventy.

The amount of an Exchequer Equalisation Grant is to be a fraction, known as "the relevant fraction," of the excess of the standard rateable value of an area over its rateable value (s. 2), this fraction being arrived at by dividing the relevant local expenditure, as defined in s. 4 (2), by the sum of the rateable value credited and the product of a rate of 20*s.* in the pound (s. 4).

The total amounts of the new grants will be revised annually and will not be known until local government expenditure for the year has been ascertained, but it has been officially estimated that after allowing for the transfer of functions under the National Health Service Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 515) and the National Assistance Act, 1948, title PUBLIC ASSISTANCE, post, they will show a considerable net saving to the rates.

Additional grants, called Exchequer Transitional Grants, are to be paid in certain cases to the councils of counties and county boroughs during the first five years. The object of these grants is to assure to each county as a whole and to each county borough an initial gain equivalent to a rate of 6*d.* in the pound in the year 1948–49 after allowing for reductions in local authority expenditure as a result of the coming into force of Part II of the National Health Service Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 523), and the National Assistance Act, 1948, title PUBLIC ASSISTANCE, post, and the introduction of the new education grants (see the Education (Local Education Authorities) Grant Regulations, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 334). An Exchequer Transitional Grant will be paid to a local authority whose income from grants, after the allowances have been made, is either reduced or is increased by less than the product of a rate of 6*d.* in the pound. The amount of the grant in 1948–49 will be the sum required to provide a gain of 6*d.*, and in the subsequent four years will be that amount reduced by one-fifth each year (s. 5).

The Act contains provisions similar to those of the Local Government Act, 1929, ss. 104, 106 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 948, 949), enabling the Minister of Health to reduce the amount of a grant (s. 6) and empowering him to pay a council's contribution to voluntary associations out of sums payable as grants when so requested by a council (s. 8).

A county council must pay every year to each district council in the county an amount, estimated by the Minister of Health, equal to a fraction of the aggregate of the Exchequer Equalisation Grants payable for that year to county councils in England and Wales outside London. The fraction in question is one-half of the population of a borough or urban district and one-quarter of the population of a rural district divided in each case by the aggregate of the population of all counties in England and Wales outside London. If the councils concerned agree, payment may be effected, in whole or in part, by deduction from the amount due under a precept (s. 9). Corresponding provision is made in the case of London for payments by the London County Council to the metropolitan boroughs, the amount of such payments being left to be determined by a scheme made by the Minister (s. 10).

Grants payable to local health authorities under the National Health Service Act, 1946, s. 53 (1) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 559), instead of being determined by regulations, are now fixed at one-half of the expenditure in respect of which the grant is made, subject to reduction by the Minister under like circumstances as apply to Exchequer Equalisation Grants (s. 7).

Investigations are to be made into the working of the provisions as to the amount of payments to local authorities under Part I of the Act at five-yearly intervals beginning with the year (either 1952 or 1953) in which the new valuation lists under Part III of the Act, title RATES AND RATING, post, come into force (s. 14).

No provision is to be made for burden payments under the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 152 (1) (b) (26 Halsbury's Statutes 390), in respect of alterations of local government boundaries or other changes taking place after March 31, 1948 (s. 11).

Part VI of the Act substantially implements the recommendations made in the Report (Cmd. 7126) of the Committee of which Lord Lindsay was chairman, appointed jointly by the Minister of Health and the Secretary of State for Scotland, to consider the question of the expenses of members of local authorities.

Provision is made for the payment of allowances to members of the local government and other bodies specified in s. 111 or regulations made under it (see the Local Government (Allowances to Members) (Prescribed Bodies) Regulations, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 1643, post). These allowances are of three kinds: (1) financial loss allowance; (2) travelling allowance; and (3) subsistence allowance.

A financial loss allowance will be payable in respect of (a) loss of earnings which the member would otherwise have made; and (b) additional expense to which he would not otherwise have been subject (other than expense on travelling or subsistence). This allowance is not to exceed certain specified amounts and will not be payable to parish councillors in respect of duties performed within their parishes (s. 2).

A travelling or subsistence allowance will be payable, as the name implies, in respect of expenditure incurred on travelling or subsistence, except in certain cases where expenditure is likely to be small (e.g. where the duty is performed within three miles of the member's residence). Rates of travelling and subsistence allowances are to be determined by the body responsible (generally the body of which the claimant is a member) but may not exceed those prescribed (s. 113) (see the Local Government (Members' Allowances) Regulations, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 1784, post).

In the case of all three allowances, the loss of earnings or expense must have been necessarily suffered or incurred by the member for the purpose of enabling him to perform an approved duty, as defined in s. 115, as a member of his body (ss. 112 (1), 113 (1)). The body responsible for paying the allowances is specified in s. 114, and is generally the body as a member of which the applicant performs the duty. Subject to application being made in the prescribed form (see S.I. 1948 No. 1784, supra) the payment of an allowance is obligatory on the said body.

Certain existing powers of paying travelling expenses are consequentially repealed, subject to a saving with regard to conference expenses for educational purposes (see now the Local Government (Conferences) Regulations, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 1932, post); and any power under any other Act of paying expenses, other than travelling expenses, must now be exercised in accordance with this Part of this Act (s. 114 (2), (3)).

Expenditure on allowances will not be taken into account for the purpose of determining any sums payable to a body out of moneys provided by Parliament other than Exchequer Equalisation Grants (s. 114 (4)).

In addition, Part VI of the Act authorises the payment of a reasonable allowance to the chairman of a district council to enable him to meet the expenses of his office (s. 116).

Part VII of the Act contains miscellaneous amendments of local government law of which a number come within the scope of this title. The Minister is empowered to make regulations providing that stock issued by a local authority whether before or after the Act shall be transferable in law only by instrument in writing (s. 125). A county council is authorised with the Minister's consent to contribute a sum to defray the whole or any part of a district council's expenses (s. 126). By s. 128 the maximum liability which may be incurred by a county council, including the London County Council, or by a metropolitan borough without a resolution passed on an estimate submitted by the finance committee is raised from £50 to £100. Local authorities are authorised to pay subscriptions to local government associations (s. 129), to insure their members against accidents (s. 130), and to assist local bodies engaged in certain activities such as the development of local trade and activities beneficial to the area or its residents (s. 136). The law relating to the disability of members of local authorities for voting on questions concerning contracts in which they have a pecuniary interest is modified by s. 131.

Part VIII, the final Part of the Act, is of general application. It provides for compensating persons suffering loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments attributable to the operation of the Act (s. 140), and the section following deals with the application of sums received by local authorities under Part I. In addition, Part VIII contains terms as to regulations (s. 142), expenses (s. 143), and interpretation (s. 144).

Other provisions of this Act are included in the titles ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante; and HIGHWAYS; MEMORIALS, WAR AND OTHER; MUNICIPAL HOSPITALITY; and RATES AND RATING, post. [836]

(b) the third fixed grant period shall for the purposes of all enactments be terminated at the end of March, nineteen hundred and forty-eight. [838]

Save as otherwise provided.—See ss. 12 and 13, post.

Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946.—The Local Government Act, 1929 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 883), the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 377), the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 175), and the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 239). The relevant parts of the 1929 Act and the whole of the other Acts are repealed by s. 147 and Sched. I, Part I, post, for the year 1948–49 and subsequent years.

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

Third fixed grant period.—This grant period began on April 1, 1937, and should have lasted five years but was continued by the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 175), until a date to be determined by Parliament after the expiration of the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 930).

The termination of the third fixed grant of the period made necessary the making of the Local Government (Special and Parish Rates) (Third Fixed Grant Period) Regulations, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 613), post.

Exchequer Grants to Counties and County Boroughs

2. Exchequer Equalisation Grants to counties and county boroughs.—(1) Where for the year 1948–49 or any subsequent year the rateable value for a county or county borough is less than the standard rateable value for that county or county borough (as defined by the subsequent provisions of this Part of this Act), there shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament to the council of the county or county borough a grant equal to the relevant fraction (as so defined) of the amount of the difference. [839]

(2) The said difference is in the subsequent provisions of this Part of this Act referred to as the rateable value credited to the county or county borough. [840]

(3) Grants under this section are in the subsequent provisions of this Part of this Act referred to as "Exchequer Equalisation Grants." [841]

General note.—Grants known as Exchequer Equalisation Grants are to be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament to each county council and county borough council whose rateable value in 1948–49 or any subsequent year is less than the standard rateable value for the county or county borough. The difference between the rateable value and the standard rateable value is known as "the rateable value credited to the county or county borough", and the grant will be a fraction, known as "the relevant fraction", of the difference between these values.

Exchequer Equalisation Grants.—The provisions relating to these grants are contained in the present section and in ss. 3 and 4, post, but payments under s. 13, post, are also ranked as Equalisation Grants. Grants are treated as receipts for general county purposes in a county and for the benefit of the whole of a county borough (s. 144 (1), post).

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning on April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

Standard rateable value.—For definition, see s. 3, infra.

Relevant fraction.—For definition, see s. 4, post.

3. Meaning of "standard rateable value."—(1) The standard rateable value for a county or county borough for the purposes of the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act is the amount which bears to the weighted population of that county or county borough for the year in question the same proportion as the sum which is to be taken for the purposes of this subsection as the rateable value for England and Wales for that year bears to the aggregate of the weighted populations of all the counties and county boroughs in England and Wales for that year. [842]

(2) In this section, the expression "the weighted population" in relation to a county or county borough means the population thereof plus the number of children under fifteen years of age therein and, in the case of a county the population whereof divided by the road-mileage thereof is less than seventy, plus also one-third of the additional population needed in order that the population thereof divided by the road-mileage thereof should be seventy. [843]

(3) The sum which is to be taken for the purposes of subsection (1) of this section as the rateable value for England and Wales for any year is the rateable value for England and Wales for that year, increased, in the case of any year subsequent to the year 1948–49, to such extent, if any, as the Minister may direct in relation to that subsequent year. [844]

(4) The power conferred on the Minister by the last preceding subsection to direct such increases as are therein referred to shall, as respects any year, be used for the purpose and only for the purpose of securing that the proportion which the aggregate of the rateable values credited to all the counties and county boroughs in England and Wales bears to the rateable value for England and Wales shall be as nearly as may be the same for that year as for the year 1948–49; but the Minister shall not use the said power as respects any year unless the effect of the use thereof would be to increase the aggregate of the rateable values credited to all counties and county boroughs in England and Wales for that year by at least one per cent. [845]

General note.—This section lays down the basic principle by which the amounts of Exchequer Equalisation Grants are to be determined, i.e. the rateable value per head of weighted population.

The standard rateable value for a county or county borough in any year is a proportion of the rateable value for England and Wales in that year, and is arrived at by the following proportion sum:

Aggregate of the weighted populations of all the counties and county boroughs in England and Wales : Rateable value for England and Wales : : Weighted population of the county or county borough : Standard rateable value for the county or county borough.

The values and populations are in each case those for the year in question. Weighted population means the population increased by the number of children under fifteen years of age and by one-third of the additional population needed to bring the population divided by the road-mileage up to seventy. The rateable value for England and Wales for this purpose may be increased by the Minister in any year after 1948–49 in order to secure that the aggregate of the rateable values credited to all the counties and county boroughs bears the same proportion to the rateable value for England and Wales as in 1948–49. This power of the Minister may only be exercised where its effect will be to increase the aggregate of the rateable values credited by at least 1 per cent.

Standard rateable value.—The standard rateable value for a county or county borough ascertained under this section is required in order to arrive at the rateable value credited to the county or county borough under s. 2, ante. It has to be calculated separately for each year.

Weighted population.—Defined in sub-s. (2), supra. The method of arriving at the population is laid down in s. 15 (2), post.

Rateable value for England and Wales.—This is the aggregate of the totals of rateable values shown in the valuation list for all the rating areas in England and Wales on April 1 (April 6 in London) until the year after the coming into force of the first new valuation lists under Part III of the Act, title RATES AND RATING, post. These totals have to be adapted to take into account any alterations made under Part V of the Act, title RATES AND RATING, post, having retrospective effect (s. 144 (2), post).

Children under fifteen.—As to ascertaining the number of children under fifteen years of age in an area, see s. 15 (2), post.

Road mileage.—As to calculating road mileage, see s. 15 (2), post. Under the Local Government Act, 1929 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 888), in the weighting of the population the factor of road mileage operated in favour of a county with a population of less than 300 per mile of road and this was increased to 900 under the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 877).

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

4. Meaning of "the relevant fraction."—(1) The relevant fraction for a county or county borough for the purposes of the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act is the fraction arrived at by dividing the relevant local expenditure for the year in question by the sum of the following amounts, that is to say, the rateable value credited to the county or county borough for that year and the product of a rate of one pound in the pound for the county or county borough for that year. [846]

(2) In this section, the expression "the relevant local expenditure" means so much of the total expenditure for the year—

(a) in the case of a county, of the council of the county and of the other local authorities in the county; and

(b) in the case of a county borough, of the council of the county borough, as would have to be met out of rates levied within the county or county borough if no Exchequer Grants under this Part of this Act and (so far as any such Grant is relevant to the year in question) no Exchequer Grants payable for any previous year under the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946, were payable, and if no grants had been made out of moneys provided by Parliament to local authorities by the Minister by way of special assistance in respect of their financial difficulties arising out of the war. [847]

(3) Where, by virtue of a precept or other instrument, not being a precept or instrument issued by a county council, any sum falls to be paid by a local authority to any other authority, the amount payable shall be treated for the purposes of subsection (2) of this section as expenditure of the first-mentioned authority. [848]

(4) The provisions of subsection (2) of this section shall, as respects the year 1948–49, have effect subject to the special provisions relating to Exchequer Grants for that year contained hereafter in this Part of this Act. [849]

General note.—The relevant fraction of the rateable value credited to a county or county borough to arrive at the grant payable is obtained by adding together the rateable value so credited and the product of a rate of 20*s*. in the £ for the county or county borough, and by dividing the result into the relevant local expenditure. The figures are for the year in each case. The relevant local expenditure is the total expenditure of a county borough council, and in the case of a county of the county council and other local authorities in the county. It is the total expenditure which would have to be met out of rates in the county or county borough if no Exchequer Grants at all were payable and if the Minister had made no grants by way of special assistance for financial difficulties arising out of the war (this is subject to modification for 1948–1949). A local authority's expenditure will include payments under precept to another authority except to a county council.

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning on April 1 (s. 144 (1)).

Rateable value credited.—This is the excess of the standard rateable value for the county or county borough over its actual rateable value in the year in question (s. 2, ante).

Rate.—For the definition of this term, see s. 144 (1), post.

Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946.—As to the Acts comprised in this collective title, see note to s. 1, ante.

Local authority.—"Local authority" is defined in s. 144 (1), post, as meaning a county, county borough, metropolitan borough or county district council or the Common Council of the City of London, but in this case the county council and county borough council must be excluded and in the present context "local authority" therefore means a metropolitan borough council, district council or the Common Council of the City of London (see Local Government Act, 1933, s. 1 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 306), and the London Government Act, 1939, s. 1 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 267)). Local authorities in the county are those whose areas form a part of the county (s. 144 (8), post).

Exchequer Grants.—These include Exchequer Equalisation Grants under s. 2, ante; Exchequer Transitional Grants under s. 5, post; grants under s. 12, post, for the extension of the third fixed grant period; and the special grants under s. 13, post. In addition, any payments in respect of grants due for any year before 1948–1949 are covered.

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

5. Exchequer Transitional Grants for first five years.—(1) The Minister shall estimate in relation to each county and county borough in England and Wales the sums specified in subsections (2) and (3) of this section, being, in every case, sums estimated for the year 1947–48. [850]

(2) The Minister shall first estimate—

(a) the aggregate of all Exchequer Grants payable under the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946, to the council of the county or county borough or in the case of a county, to any other local authority in the county, less any contributions payable by the council of the county or county borough under section three of the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937, section sixteen of the Old Age and Widows' Pensions Act, 1940, or section three of the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1946;

(b) the aggregate of the grants payable to the local education authority for the county or county borough by virtue of regulations under section one hundred or section one hundred and one of the Education Act, 1944, or, where a joint education board has been constituted for the county or county borough, of the proper proportion of any such grants payable to that board; and

(c) the product of a rate of sixpence in the pound for the county or county borough. [851]

(3) The Minister shall then estimate—

(a) the aggregate of so much of the expenditure incurred by the council of the county or county borough or, in the case of a county, by any other local authority in the county, in—

(i) providing services which it will be the duty of the Minister to provide under Part II of the National Health Service Act, 1946; and

(ii) performing any functions falling to be discontinued by virtue of any Act of the present Session terminating the existing poor law, as would have had to be met out of rates levied in the county or county borough if no Exchequer Grants under the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946, and no contributions under section three of the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937, section sixteen of the Old Age and Widows' Pensions Act, 1940, or section three of the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1946, had been payable;

(b) the sum which would have been the aggregate mentioned in paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of this section if for the regulations under the enactments mentioned in that paragraph there had been substituted the provisions of such regulations made thereunder as determined the grants payable for the year 1948–49;

(c) the Exchequer Equalisation Grant, if any, which would have been payable to the council of the county or county borough if—

(i) this Part of this Act had applied to the year 1947–48 as it applies to the year 1948–49 and the third fixed grant period had been terminated thereby at the end of March nineteen hundred and forty-seven; and

(ii) the sum estimated under paragraph (b) of this subsection had been payable under section one hundred and section one hundred and one of the Education Act, 1944, in lieu of the sums mentioned in paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of this section; and

(iii) the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-seven had been both the appointed day for the purposes of Part II of the National Health Service Act, 1946, and the day appointed for the discontinuance of the functions falling to be discontinued by virtue of any Act of the present Session terminating the existing poor law, and the expenditure of the council of the county or county borough and, in the case of a county, of all other local authorities in the county, had been diminished accordingly.

Where, by virtue of a precept or other instrument, not being a precept or instrument issued by a county council, any sum falls to be paid by a local authority to any other authority in respect of the expenditure of that other authority in providing any services or performing any functions, the amount payable shall be treated for the purposes of this subsection as expenditure of the first-mentioned authority incurred by them in providing those services or performing those functions. [852]

(4) If for any county or county borough the total of the sums estimated by the Minister under subsection (2) of this section exceeds the total of the sums so estimated under subsection (3) thereof, there shall be payable out of moneys provided by Parliament to the council of the county or county borough grants for the year 1948–49 and each of the four following years. [853]

(5) The amount of the grant for the year 1948–49 shall be the amount of the said excess and the amounts of the grants for the four following years shall be respectively four-fifths, three-fifths, two-fifths and one-fifth of the amount of the said excess. [854]

(6) Grants under this section are in the subsequent provisions of this Part of this Act referred to as "Exchequer Transitional Grants." [855]

General note.—Transitional grants of diminishing amount are to be paid to county and county borough councils in certain circumstances in 1948–1949 and the four following years, the intention being to ease the transition from the old system to the new.

Calculating Transitional Grants.—The provisions relating to Transitional Grants are contained almost wholly in this section. But the method of calculating Transitional Grants is affected by s. 13 (7), post, which requires grants under that section to be left out of account in making the computation. Under s. 141 (1), post, Transitional Grants are receipts for general county purposes and in a county borough are receipts for the benefit of the whole of the borough.

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

This Act, together with the Act of 1937, supra, and s. 16 of the Act of 1940, supra, are repealed for the year 1948–1949 and subsequent years by s. 147 (2) and Sched. II, Part I, post.

6. Power to reduce Exchequer grants.—(1) The Minister may, subject to the provisions of this section, reduce any Exchequer Equalisation Grant or Exchequer Transitional Grant payable to a council by such amount as he thinks just, if—

(a) he is satisfied, either upon representations made to him or without any such representations, that the council have failed to achieve or maintain a reasonable standard of efficiency and progress in the discharge of their functions, regard being had to the standards maintained in other areas; or

(b) he is satisfied that the expenditure of the council has been excessive and unreasonable, regard being had to the financial resources and other relevant circumstances of the area. [856]

(2) Before reducing any grant by virtue of this section, the Minister shall make and cause to be laid before Parliament a report stating the amount of the reduction, and the reasons therefor, and he shall not make the reduction until the said report is approved by a resolution of the Commons House of Parliament. [857]

Reduction of Exchequer Grants.—The power of reduction conferred by this section is similar to that in s. 104 of the Local Government Act, 1929 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 948), which allowed the reduction of grants in much the same circumstances as those envisaged in the present section. In one sense at least the powers of the present section are subject to more stringent safeguards than the earlier provisions: for under the Act of 1929 the Minister had power to make the reduction and was required to report to Parliament only when such power was exercised, whilst under the present section the Minister must report to Parliament any proposal to reduce a grant and is not to make the actual reduction until that proposal has been endorsed by resolution of the House of Commons.

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

Exchequer Equalisation Grant.—See ss. 2, 3 and 4, ante, and s. 13, post.

Exchequer Transitional Grant.—See s. 5, ante.

7. Provisions as to Health Service Exchequer Grants.—(1) The amount of any grant payable out of moneys provided by Parliament under subsection (1) of section fifty-three of the National Health Service Act, 1946, to a local health authority shall, in lieu of being determined by regulations under the said subsection (1), be one-half of the expenditure in respect of which the grant is made. [858]

(2) The provisions of the last preceding section shall apply in relation to grants payable under the said section fifty-three as they apply in relation to Exchequer Equalisation Grants and Exchequer Transitional Grants, subject to the following modifications, that is to say—

(a) the reference in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of that section to the discharge of their functions by the council shall be construed as a reference to the discharge of their functions under the National Health Service Act, 1946, by the local health authority; and

(b) the reference in paragraph (b) of the said subsection (1) to the expenditure of the council shall be construed as a reference to the expenditure of the local health authority under the said Act. [859]

General note.—The grant payable to a local health authority under s. 53 (1) of the National Health Service Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 559), is now to be one half of the expenditure in respect of which it is made instead of being determined by regulations. This grant may be reduced by the Minister subject to the same conditions as apply to Exchequer Equalisation Grants or Transitional Grants under s. 6, ante, with appropriate modifications.

National Health Service Act, 1946, s. 53 (1).—39 Halsbury's Statutes 559.

Exchequer Equalisation Grants.—See ss. 2, 3 and 4, ante, and s. 13, post.

Exchequer Transitional Grants.—See s. 5, ante.

8. Power to pay council's contributions to voluntary associations out of sums payable as Exchequer grants.—Upon application being made to the Minister by the council of any county or county borough requesting that the contributions of the council towards the expenses of any voluntary association having as its object the promotion of public health services should be paid directly to the association out of an Exchequer Equalisation Grant or an Exchequer Transitional Grant to the council, the Minister may pay such contributions accordingly, and any payment so made by him shall be deemed to be a payment to the council on account of the Grant. [860]

General note.—A county council or county borough council may apply to the Minister to pay the council's contributions towards the expenses of a voluntary association for promoting public health services direct to that association out of an Exchequer Equalisation Grant or Transitional Grant, and such payment has effect as if on account of the Grant.

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

Exchequer Equalisation Grants.—See ss. 2, 3 and 4, ante, and s. 13, post.

Exchequer Transitional Grants.—See s. 5, ante.

Payments by county councils to local authorities in county

9. Payments to county districts.—(1) Before the beginning of the year 1948–49 and each subsequent year, the Minister shall estimate for the year in relation to every county district in England and Wales the amount following, that is to say, the amount which is equal to the fraction hereinafter specified of the aggregate of the Exchequer Equalisation Grants which will become payable for that year to the councils of counties in England and Wales outside London, and the council of each county shall pay to the council of each county district in the county the amount so estimated by the Minister in relation to that district. [861]

(2) The said fraction is—

(a) in the case of any county district other than a rural district, one-half of the population of the county district; and

(b) in the case of a rural district, one-quarter of the population of the rural district, divided, in any case, by the aggregate of the population of all counties in England and Wales outside London. [862]

(3) Any payment under this section may, if the councils concerned so agree, be effected in whole or in part by making the appropriate deduction from the amount due under a precept. [863]

General note.—A county council must pay to each district council in the county every year an amount estimated by the Minister as representing a fraction of the aggregate of the Exchequer Equalisation Grants payable for that year to county councils in England and Wales outside London. The fraction in question is one-half of the population of a borough or urban district and one-quarter of the population of a rural district divided by the aggregate of the populations of all counties in England and Wales outside London. This payment may be effected by means of a deduction from the amount due from the district council under precept.

Under the block grant system, non-county borough councils and urban district councils received, out of the county apportionments, in proportion to their populations, five times the amount given to rural district councils (Local Government Act, 1929, s. 91, and Sched. IV, Part IV; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 941, 948), while, in relation to the Interim Supplementary Contribution, the proportion was reduced to three times that amount (Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1946, s. 4; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 243).

These provisions for payments to county districts are repealed by s. 147 and Sched. II, Part I, post, and are replaced by those of the present section.

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning on April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

Exchequer Equalisation Grants.—See ss. 2, 3 and 4, ante, and s. 13, post.

Population.—Population is calculated by estimates of the Registrar General (s. 15 (2), post).

10. Payments to metropolitan boroughs.—(1) In the year 1948–49 and every subsequent year, the London County Council shall pay to the councils of the metropolitan boroughs mentioned in subsection (2) of this section such sums as may be prescribed in relation to those boroughs respectively by a scheme to be made by the Minister after consultation with the London County Council, the Common Council of the City of London and any association or committee which appears to the Minister to be representative of metropolitan borough councils. [864]

(2) The metropolitan boroughs to the councils of which payments are to be made under subsection (1) of this section are the boroughs the rateable values for which are less than the standard rateable value as defined by the scheme. [865]

(3) Any paym nt under a scheme made under this section shall, if the scheme so provides, be effected in whole or in part by making the appropriate deduction from the amount due under a precept. [866]

(4) Any scheme under this section may be revoked or varied by any subsequent scheme made in like manner as the original scheme. [867]

(5) No reduction or increase in the amount to be contributed by a separately rated area in London towards the amount required to be levied by rate for general county purposes shall be made for the year 1948–49 or any subsequent year by virtue of section one hundred of the Local Government Act, 1929, or of any scheme under section seven of the local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937. [868]

General note.—The present section is the provision for London corresponding to s. 9, ante, for the provinces. The payments are receipts for the whole of the metropolitan borough concerned, even where payment is made by means of a deduction from the amount due under a precept (s. 141, post). A scheme has been agreed between the representatives of the metropolitan boroughs and the London County Council for a redistribution inside London which will have roughly the same effect as the scheme for the country as a whole (see 444 H. of C. Official Report 997).

Any association or committee.—The purpose of enacting that the discussion should take place with a representative association of the metropolitan borough councils rather than with the councils themselves is to avoid the necessity for all the London councils to debate the discussion with the Minister (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., December 11, 1947, col. 134). Similar provision was made by s. 7 of the Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 380).

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

Rateable values.—The rateable value for a metropolitan borough for any year is the total of rateable values shown on April 6 in the valuation list in force for that area. In the year 1948–1949, however, account must be taken of any alteration made subsequently in the list under Part V of the Act, title RATES AND RATING, post, and having retrospective effect as if they had been made in the list as in force on April 6 (s. 144 (2), post).

Standard rateable value.—This standard rateable value must be distinguished from the standard rateable value of a county or county borough under ss. 2, 3 or 4, ante. In this case the standard rateable value is determined by the scheme.

Local Government Act, 1929, s. 100.—10 Halsbury's Statutes 945.

Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937, s. 7.—30 Halsbury's Statutes 380.

Miscellaneous

11. Discontinuance of burden payments on changes of boundary.—No provision shall be made for any payment to a local authority under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one hundred and fifty-two of the Local Government Act, 1933, either as originally enacted, or as applied by any subsequent enactment, in respect of any increase of burden due to an alteration of boundaries or other change taking place after the end of the year 1947–48. [869]

General note.—Burden payments as between local authorities due to alteration of boundaries or other changes taking place after 1947–1948 will not be provided for under s. 152 (1) (b) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 390).

Local authority.—For definition, see s. 144 (1), post.

Year.—This means the period of twelve months beginning on April 1 (s. 144 (1), post).

12. Continuation of third fixed grant period for certain purposes.—(1) This section shall have effect as respects the following enactments (which contain financial provisions relating to the third fixed grant period), that is to say—

(a) section ninety-three of the Local Government Act, 1929 (which provides for schemes for increasing the sum to be set aside out of a county apportionment in respect of a district the council of which has established a maternity and child welfare committee);

(b) sections one hundred and one and one hundred and two of the said Act (which provide for schemes for the payment of contributions by the councils of counties or county boroughs to voluntary associations or to the King Edward the Seventh Welsh National Memorial Association in respect of maternity and child welfare and other health services);

(c) section four of the Midwives Act, 1936, and section two of the Cancer Act, 1939 (under which Exchequer grants are payable in respect of expenditure imposed by those Acts). [870]

(2) Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act, the third fixed grant period shall not for the purposes of any of the said enactments be deemed to have terminated until immediately before the day which is the appointed day for the purposes of Part II of the National Health Service Act, 1946, and payments shall be made accordingly; and, without prejudice to the generality of the preceding words, payments shall be made under schemes made under section ninety-three of the Local Government Act, 1929, as if there had continued to be county apportionments:

Provided that any sum payable by the Minister by virtue of this section under any such scheme as is mentioned in paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section shall be paid by him out of the Exchequer Transitional Grant or Exchequer Equalisation Grant, if any, of the county or county borough council in question for the year 1948–49 and, in so far as it cannot be so paid, shall be paid out of moneys to be paid to the Minister by that council. [871]

(3) If the date on which any of the said enactments ceases to be in force (either by virtue of an Order in Council fixing an appointed day under the National Health Service Act, 1946, or of any Act of the present Session terminating the existing poor law) is a date before the end of the year 1948–49, the enactment in question and any relevant scheme made thereunder shall have effect so as to require the sum to be set aside or paid for the said year under that enactment or scheme to be the appropriate fraction of the estimated amount which would have been so set aside or paid if the said enactment had continued in force for the whole of the said year.

The appropriate fraction is the number of days in the period beginning with the first day of the said year and ending immediately before the date on which the enactment ceases to be in force divided by three hundred and sixty-five. [872]

(4) Any scheme made under any of the enactments mentioned in paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section which, by virtue of this section, continues in operation on or after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, may be altered or revoked by a subsequent scheme made at any time between that date and the date when the enactment in question ceases to be in force as aforesaid. [873] is necessarily suffered or incurred by him for the purpose of enabling him to perform any approved duty as a member of that body :

Provided that any payment made under this subsection in respect of any one period of twenty-four hours shall not exceed—

(i) where the period of time over which earnings are lost or additional expenses are incurred is not more than four hours, the sum of ten shillings ; or

(ii) where the said period of time is more than four hours, the sum of twenty shillings. [889]

(2) A member of a parish council shall not be entitled to any payment under this section in respect of any approved duty as a member of that council performed within the area of the parish. [890]

113. Travelling allowance and subsistence allowance.—(1) A member of a body to which this Part of this Act applies shall be entitled to receive payments, at rates which shall be determined by the body but which shall not exceed those prescribed, by way of travelling allowance or subsistence allowance where expenditure on travelling or, as the case may be, on subsistence is necessarily incurred by him for the purpose of enabling him to perform any approved duty as a member of that body :

Provided that—

(a) a member of the council of a borough (including a metropolitan borough), of an urban district or of a rural parish shall not be entitled to any payments under this section in respect of the performance of any approved duty within the area of that council ;

General note.—This section entitles members of bodies to which this Part applies to be paid allowances for expenditure on travelling and subsistence necessarily incurred to enable them to perform an approved duty. This is subject to the limitation that a borough, urban district or parish councillor may not receive payment when the duty is performed in the area of his council, even when acting as its representative on any other body, and no member of a body may receive payment for a duty performed within three miles of his residence. The rates of payment will be determined by the body or, in the case of a divisional executive for education or for health services by the local education authority, but may not exceed those prescribed.

114. Bodies by whom payments by way of allowances are to be made.—(1) Any amounts by way of allowances payable under this Part of this Act—body, or otherwise to relieve the members of the body from the burden of meeting those expenses, that statutory provision shall cease to have effect in relation to the members of the body, but subject as aforesaid nothing in this Part of this Act shall affect any such statutory provision:

Provided that where a local education authority in England and Wales or an education authority in Scotland incur expenditure under this Part of this Act in paying or contributing towards the expenses of a member thereof on account of travelling for the purpose of attending a conference, being a conference in respect of which the authority is authorised to incur expenditure by or under section eighty-three of the Education Act, 1944, or, as the case may be, section twenty-eight of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1946, the first-mentioned expenditure shall, for the purpose of determining the amount of any sum payable to the authority out of moneys provided by Parliament, or out of the Education (Scotland) Fund, be deemed to have been incurred under the Education Acts, 1944 and 1946, or, as the case may be, the Education (Scotland) Act, 1946. [895]

(3) Where a body to which this Part of this Act applies has power, otherwise than under this Part of this Act, to defray expenses (other than expenses on account of travelling) incurred by any person in respect of which that person is entitled to a payment by way of allowance under this Part of this Act, that power shall not be so exercised as to defray those expenses otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Part of this Act, but subject as aforesaid nothing in this Part of this Act shall affect any other power of the body to defray expenses. [896]

(4) Subject to the provisions of subsection (2) of this section, any expenditure under this Part of this Act by a body to which this Part of this Act applies shall not be taken into account for the purpose of determining the amounts of any sums payable to that body out of moneys provided by Parliament otherwise than by way of an Exchequer Equalisation Grant within the meaning of Part I or Part II of this Act:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall be construed as affecting the duty of the Minister to pay the expenses of local valuation panels. [897]

(5) Any expenditure under this Part of this Act by the council of a rural parish shall be left out of account for the purposes of subsection (3) of section one hundred and ninety-three of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which limits the sums which may be required to be raised in any financial year to meet the expenses of a parish council, other than expenses under the adoptive acts), and, accordingly, in the said subsection (3), after the words "other than expenses under the adoptive acts" there shall be inserted the words "or under Part VI of the Local Government Act, 1948". [898]

(6) In the application of this section to Scotland, any reference in subsection (2) to a statutory provision shall be construed as including a reference to a rule of the common law. [899]

General note.—This section specifies the bodies by whom payments by way of allowances are to be made.

Allowances payable under this Part.—See ss. 112, 113, ante.

Approved duly.—For definition of this expression, see s. 115, post.

National Health Service Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 515. A local health authority is a county or county borough council (see s. 19 of that Act).

Statutory provision.—For definition of this term, see s. 144 (1), post.

Exchequer Equalisation Grant.—See ss. 2–4, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Health (s. 144 (1), post).

Local valuation panels.—See ss. 45 and 46, title RATES AND RATING, post.

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 193 (3).—26 Halsbury's Statutes 411.

115. Meaning of "approved duty."—In this Part of this Act, the expression "approved duty", in relation to a member of a body, means any of the following duties, that is to say,—

(a) attendance at a meeting of the body, or of any committee or sub-committee thereof;

(b) the doing of any other thing approved by the body for the purpose of, or in connection with, the discharge of the functions of the body, or of any committee or sub-committee thereof;

(c) attendance as a representative of the body at a conference or meeting convened by one or more bodies to which this Part of this Act applies or by any association of such bodies, where the body has power, under any statutory provision other than this Act, to defray the expenses incurred in such attendance; or

(d) where, in pursuance of a duty imposed on or a power granted to the body by any statutory provision or Royal Charter, he has been appointed by or on the nomination of the body to be a member of any such other body as may be prescribed, not being a body to which this Part of this Act applies, the doing of anything as a member of that other body for the purpose of the discharge of the functions of that other body:

Provided that paragraph (d) of this section shall not apply where—

(i) the person who is the subject of the appointment is a member of a committee or sub-committee of the body to which this Part of this Act applies by or on whose nomination he was appointed; and

(ii) it is by reason only of his being a member of such a committee or sub-committee that he is deemed for the purposes of this Part of this Act to be a member of that body. [900]

Member.—This term includes a member of a committee or sub-committee (sec s. 111 (2), ante).

Bodies to which this Part applies.—See s. 111 (1), ante.

Statutory provision.—For definition of this term, see s. 144 (1), post.

Appointed.—It would seem that the statutory provision must impose a duty or grant a power to the body to appoint the member or to nominate him for appointment. It may be doubted whether a member of a local valuation court constituted under ss. 44 and 46, title RATES AND RATING, post, can be said to be appointed or nominated for appointment to the court by the local valuation panel.

116. Allowance to chairman of district council for expenses of office.—A district council in England and Wales may pay to the chairman of the council for the purpose of enabling him to meet the expenses of his office such allowance as the council may think reasonable. [901]

General note.—This provision may be compared with, but must be distinguished from, s. 18 (4) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 314), which authorises the payment of remuneration to the mayor of a borough. (2) Regulations made under this section may contain any incidental, supplementary or transitional provisions, and in particular—

(a) provisions as to the keeping of the registers relating to the holders of the stock and as to the matters to be entered therein, and provisions enabling those registers to be closed for such periods and in such circumstances as may be prescribed by the regulations;

(b) provision for striking the balance for a dividend on the stock;

(c) provisions as to the issue of documents of title relating to the stock and as to evidence of title thereto, and as to the manner in which a transfer of stock is to be completed;

(e) provision enabling the Minister by order to exempt from the operation of all or any of the provisions of the regulations such stock as may be specified in the order. [907]

(3) Regulations made under this section varying or revoking any regulations made under the said section two hundred and four may, so far as they relate to stock to which that section applies, be varied or revoked by further regulations made under that section. [908]

(4) The power to make regulations under this section shall be exercisable by statutory instrument, and a draft of any such instrument shall be laid before Parliament. [909]

(5) This section applies to any authority who—

(a) are, within the meaning of the Local Loans Act, 1875, an authority having power to levy a rate; or

(b) are a body which, under any enactment relating to harbours, are entitled to levy tolls or dues, being a body who are neither statutory undertakers carrying on business for profit nor a company within the meaning of the Companies Act, 1929. [910]

(b) for any reference to section two hundred and four of the Local Government Act, 1933, there shall be substituted a reference to section two hundred and seventy-one of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1947. [912]

General note.—This section empowers the Minister to make regulations providing that, with certain specified exceptions, stock issued by an authority shall be transferable in law only by instrument in writing. "Authority" means an authority with power to levy a rate within the meaning of the Local Loans Act, 1875 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 242), or a body entitled to levy tolls or dues under an enactment relating to harbours (excluding statutory undertakers and limited companies).

126. Contributions by county councils to expenses of county district councils.—(1) Without prejudice to any power conferred, or duty imposed, upon the council of a county by any other Act, if in the case of any county district in England or Wales it appears to the council of the county in which that district lies that it is reasonable so to do, having regard to the resources of the district and to the other circumstances of the case, the council of the county may, with the consent of the Minister given either generally or specially, agree to contribute a sum equal to the whole or any part of any expenses incurred by the council of that district. [913]

(2) For the purposes of the preceding subsection, contributions by the council of a county district towards the expenses of a joint board shall be deemed to be expenses incurred by the contributing council. [914]

(3) Where an amount equal to the expenses towards which any contribution is made under this section falls to be debited to the Housing Revenue Account of the council of the county district, the council of the county district shall carry to the credit of the account, in addition to the amounts which they are required to carry to the credit of that account under section one hundred and twenty-nine of the Housing Act, 1936, amounts equal to the contribution payable under this section, and any contribution in respect of those expenses by the council of the district required by paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of the said section one hundred and twenty-nine to be carried to the credit of that account shall be correspondingly reduced. (b) any undertaking given under the said subsection (2) or under subsection (4) of section one hundred and fifteen of the Housing Act, 1936 (which relates to the power of county councils to make contributions in respect of houses provided by rural district councils) shall be treated in respect of any period falling after the passing of this Act as if it were an agreement made with the consent of the Minister in pursuance of the power conferred by this section. [916]

General note.—By this section a county council is enabled, with the consent of the Minister, to contribute to a county district council in its area a sum up to the total of the expenses incurred by that council. Expenses of a district council for this purpose include contributions towards the expenses of a joint board. Contributions towards expenses debited to the Housing Revenue Account must be credited to that account, contributions credited by the district council being correspondingly reduced. The powers of county councils to contribute under two earlier Acts are repealed, contributions under them being deemed to be made under the present Act.

(2) Any sum received by the authority under any such contract shall, after deduction of any expenses incurred in the recovery thereof, be paid by them to, or to the personal representatives of, the member of the authority in respect of an accident to whom that sum is received. [920]

(3) The provisions of the Life Assurance Act, 1774, shall not apply to any such contract, but any such contract shall be deemed for the purposes of the Assurance Companies Acts, 1909 to 1946, to be a policy of insurance upon the happening of personal accidents. [921]

(4) In the application of this section to Scotland, the expression "local authority" means a county, town or district council. [922]

General note.—This section authorises local authorities to take out policies of insurance against personal accidents, fatal or otherwise, to members of the authority while engaged on its business. Any sums received under a policy after deduction of the expenses of recovery are to be paid to the member or his personal representatives.

(2) After subsection (2) of the said section seventy-six there shall be inserted the following subsection—

"(2A) Where a member of a local authority has indirectly a pecuniary interest in a contract or other matter and would not fall to be treated as having such an interest but for the fact that he has a beneficial interest in shares of a company or other body, then, if the total nominal value of those shares does not exceed two hundred pounds or one hundredth of the total nominal value of the issued share capital of the company or body, whichever is the less, so much of subsection (1) of this section as prohibits him from taking part in the consideration or discussion of, and from voting on any question with respect to, the contract or other matter shall not apply to him, without prejudice, however, to the duty of disclosure imposed by the said subsection (1):

Provided that where the share capital of the company or other body is of more than one class, this subsection shall not apply if the total nominal value of all the shares of any one class in which he has a beneficial interest exceeds one hundredth part of the total issued share capital of that class of the company or other body." [924]

(3) In the proviso to subsection (2) of section seventy-six the words "or stock" shall be omitted, and at the end of the said section there shall be inserted the following subsection—

(4) In the said section seventy-six and in section one hundred and twenty-three of the said Act of 1933 (which relates to the disclosure by officers of local authorities of interest in contracts), references to a local authority shall be construed as including references to a divisional executive constituted under the Education Acts, 1944 and 1946, or the National Health Service Act, 1946, and, for the purposes of the said section one hundred and twenty-three, an officer of a local authority who carries out any duties under the control of such an executive shall be deemed, in relation to those duties, to be an officer of that executive. [926]

(5) The preceding provisions of this section shall apply in relation to London as if for references to section seventy-six of the Local Government Act, 1933, there were substituted references to section fifty-two of the London Government Act, 1939. [927]

(6) The provisions of subsections (1) to (3) of this section shall apply to Scotland with the substitution for references to section seventy-six of the Local Government Act, 1933, of references to section seventy-three of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1947. [928]

General note.—This section modifies the disability of members of local authorities to vote on any matter in which they have a pecuniary interest. A member must still make disclosure, but he will not be debarred from taking part in the discussion and voting on a matter by reason only of an indirect pecuniary interest therein provided it does not exceed a certain amount. The section also covers divisional executives under the Education Acts, 1944 and 1946, and the National Health Service Act, 1946.

Provided that—

(a) where any alteration required to be made under Part V of this Act in the said lists is made after the date as from which, under the said Part V, it has effect, account shall be taken thereof for the purposes of this subsection as if it had been made in the lists as in force on that date;

Provided that—

(a) in the case of an area in London, the product of a penny rate for the area shall, as respects years as respects which the said subsection (2) does not extend to London, be taken to be the product of a penny rate for the area as ascertained or estimated by the district auditor in accordance with the principles for the time being applicable outside London to the ascertainment and estimation of the product of a penny rate for the purposes of the said section nine;

(b) nothing in this subsection detracts from the provisions of this Act enabling the Minister to make regulations as respects the way in which payments for the benefit of local authorities under Part V of this Act are to be treated. [943]

(5) Any reference in this Act to the aggregate gross charge to rates for any year for any area shall be construed as a reference to the total of the amounts required to be paid by virtue of all the rates made by all the authorities in the area for the year or any part thereof, calculated as if, in the case of each hereditament, the amount payable were that ascertained by applying the poundage of the rate to the rateable value of the hereditament, without any allowance or deduction. PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 48)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act which came into operation on receiving the Royal Assent on July 13, 1948, follows the lines of previous Public Works Loans Acts, with the omission of the provision usually made for writing off the principal and interest of specified loans. S. 1 of the Act provides for the issuing to the Public Works Loan Commissioners of sums up to £500 million for the purpose of local loans until the next Act for this purpose. S. 2 limits the aggregate of loans made during the period together with outstanding commitments as to future advances, which the Commissioners are empowered to make under the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946, s. 2 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 320), to £680 million.

The Act is generally comparable with the Public Works Loans Act, 1947, ante. [962]

An Act to grant money for the purpose of certain local loans out of the Local Loans Fund, and for other purposes relating to local loans. [963]

[13th July, 1948.]

1. Grants for public works.—(1) There may be issued by the National Debt Commissioners for the purposes of local loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners any sum or sums not exceeding in the whole the sum of five hundred million pounds. [964]

(2) The sums so issued shall be issued during a period beginning with the passing of this Act and ending on the day on which a further Act granting money for the purposes of those loans comes into operation, and in accordance with the provisions of the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887. [965]

General note.—See the Preliminary Note, ante. This section, except for the amount specified therein, is in almost identical terms with s. 1 of the Public Works Loan Acts, 1947, ante.

National Debt Commissioners.—For the constitution of the National Debt Commissioners, see s. 14 of the National Debt Reduction Act, 1786 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 27).

Public Works Loan Commissioners.—For the constitution of the Public Works Loan Commissioners, see the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, s. 4 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 255), as amended by the Public Works Loans Act, 1946, s. 5 (2), Sched. II (39 Halsbury's Statutes 313). As to their appointment, see s. 1 of the latter Act.

National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 282.

2. Limit on commitments by Public Works Loan Commissioners.—The period aforesaid shall be an issue period within the meaning of section two of the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946 (which enables the Public Works Loan Commissioners to undertake to grant loans, including loans falling to be advanced after the expiration of the current issue period), and the aggregate of—

(a) the commitments of the said Commissioners outstanding at any time during the said issue period in respect of undertakings entered into by them (whether during or before the beginning of that period) to grant local loans, and

(b) the advances in respect of local loans made by the said Commissioners during that period up to that time, shall not exceed six hundred and eighty million pounds. [966]

General note.—As to the effect of this section, see the Preliminary Note, ante, and compare s. 2 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1948, ante.

Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946, s. 2.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 320. "Issue period" is defined by that section to mean a period beginning with the coming into operation of that Act and ending on the day on which a further Act granting money for the purposes of local loans comes into operation, and that section further provides that in any such further Act that expression shall have a corresponding meaning unless the contrary intention appears.

3. Short title.—This Act may be cited as the Public Works Loans Act, 1948. [967]

FINANCE ACT, 1948

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 49)

GENERAL NOTE

Part IV comprising ss. 38 to 46, of this Act, which received the Royal Assent on July 30, 1948, relates to expenses allowances for purposes of income tax. The principal provision is that of s. 38, which enacts that sums paid in respect of expenses by bodies corporate to their directors or to any of their employees specified are to be treated for purposes of income tax as perquisites of their office or employment and accordingly are to be included in the emoluments assessable to tax, without prejudice, however, to the making of claims for deductions for "money expended wholly, exclusively and necessarily in performing the duties of the office or employment."

Sections 39 and 40 relate to the taking into account of expenditure in the providing for such directors or employees of living or other accommodation, entertainment, domestic or other services, or other benefits or facilities, and the mode of valuation of such benefits in kind. Provision is made for exemption in certain cases where no additional tax would be payable if the provisions of Part IV of the Act were applied (s. 42).

Nevertheless, it is provided by s. 44 of the Act that the provisions of Part IV are not to apply, inter alia, to any local authority as defined for the purposes of s. 21 of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 236), except in relation to " persons employed by it in an employment to which this Part of this Act applies wholly or mainly for the purposes of a trade carried on by it." In general, the authorities comprised in the definition referred to are bodies being, within the meaning of the Local Loans Act, 1875 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 242), authorities having power to levy a rate, and any joint board or joint committee all the constituent members of which are such authorities. In view of this exception it has not been thought necessary to include the text of Part IV in this volume. [968]

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

TREASURY MINUTE FIXING RATES OF INTEREST ON LOCAL LOANS

S.I. 1948 No. 15

January 2, 1948

My Lords read Section 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 51) which empowers the Treasury from time to time to fix the rates of interest at which loans may be made out of the Local Loans Fund on the security of local rates, and provides that the Treasury, in fixing the rates, shall have regard to the duration of the loans, and also that the rates shall be such as, in the opinion of the Treasury, are sufficient to enable the loans to be made without loss to the Fund.

They also read the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945 (8 & 9 Geo. 6, c. 18) which prohibits, with certain exceptions, all borrowing by a local authority otherwise than from the Public Works Loan Commissioners and also abolishes the statutory provisions which made it necessary to charge on certain loans for housing, small holdings and allotments, the minimum rate of interest allowed for the time being for loans out of the Local Loans Fund whatever the period.

The rates of interest on loans to Local Authorities as defined in Section 10 of the last mentioned Act which were fixed by the Treasury Minute of the 30th May, 1946, have been reviewed in the light of present monetary conditions.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer now recommends, and My Lords approve, the following scale to come into operation on the Third day of January, 1948, and to apply to all loans advanced to local authorities, as defined in Section 10 of the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945 from the Local Loans Fund on or after that date :—

	Per cent.
Loans for not more than five years	2
Loans for more than five years but not more than fifteen years	$2\frac{1}{2}$
Loans for more than fifteen years	3

TREASURY MINUTE FIXING RATES OF INTEREST ON LOCAL LOANS (OTHER THAN LOANS TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES)

S.I. 1948 No. 16

January 2, 1948

My Lords read Section 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1918 (8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 27), by which it is declared that the power of the Treasury under Section 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 51), as amended by Section 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1917 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 32) to fix rates of interest on loans made out of the Local Loans Fund otherwise than on the security of local rates includes (subject always to the provisions of the said Sections) a power to fix rates of interest differing from the rates fixed for loans made out of that Fund on the security of local rates, and a power to fix different rates of interest in respect of different loans and that in fixing the rate of interest the Treasury may take into account the nature and value of the security for the loan.

They also read Section 92 of the Housing Act, 1936 (26 Geo. 5 & 1 Edw. 8, c. 51) and Section 73 of the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. 5, c. 15) as amended by Sections 25 and 28 of the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1935 (25 & 26 Geo. 5, c. 41) which provide that loans may be granted to companies, societies, associations and persons as defined in those Sections in connection with the provision of houses for the working classes.

They further read Section 3 of the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1946 (9 & 10 Geo. 6, c. 75) which repeals the statutory minimum rate of interest of three pounds two shillings and sixpence per cent. per annum on loans advanced to borrowers other than local authorities, under the Housing Acts, from the Local Loans Fund.

The rates of interest on loans advanced otherwise than on the security of local rates which were fixed by Treasury Minute of 19th November, 1946, have been reviewed in the light of present monetary conditions.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer now recommends, and My Lords approve, the following rates to come into operation as from the Third day of January, 1948 and to apply to loans advanced otherwise than on the security of local rates from the Local Loans Fund, on or after that date :— [970]

	Per cent.
I
Loans to housing associations as defined by the Housing Act, 1936, and the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1935 :
For any period up to 50 years	3

[973]

3. In so far as the special rate compensation and parish rate compensation for the year ending on the appointed day for any rural district, and any amounts which under the provisions of the provisos to articles 3 and 4 of the 1937 Regulations are deemed to form part of such special rate compensation or parish rate compensation, have, by the appointed day, not been applied in accordance with the 1937 Regulations, they shall be applied to the credit of the general district account for the year ending on the appointed day. [974]

* * * * *

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The necessity for these Regulations arises from the termination of the Third Fixed Grant Period of the Local Government Acts, 1929 to 1946, by the Local Government Act, 1948.

The compensation received by the rural district councils under section 92 of the Local Government Act, 1929, for losses on account of special and parish rates is applied by such councils in accordance with regulations. The current regulations are the Local Government (Special and Parish Rates) (Third Fixed Grant Period) Regulations, 1937 (S. R. & O., 1937, No. 751). These have effect only in relation to the years of the Third Fixed Grant Period. The present Regulations make provision for the application in aid of rates, before the accounts of a rural district council for the year ending on March 31, 1948, are closed, of the compensation not already applied under the 1937 Regulations.

Now, therefore, the Minister of Health, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by sections 111 and 117 of the Local Government Act, 1948, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the Local Government (Allowances to Members) (Prescribed Bodies) Regulations, 1948 and shall come into operation on the first day of August, 1948.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [976]

2. The following bodies are hereby prescribed as bodies to which Part VI of the Local Government Act, 1948, shall apply, that is to say :—

(2) Where in any one period of twenty-four hours a person becomes entitled in respect of the performance of any duties to receive payments by way of, or in the nature of, financial loss allowance, travelling allowance or subsistence allowance both under Part VI of the Act and under any other enactment, the amount which he shall be entitled to receive under either of those enactments in respect of any of the heads aforementioned shall be reduced by any amount received by him in respect of that head under the other of those enactments, and any claim for any such payment as aforesaid shall contain particulars of any amount so received. TREASURY CHAMBERS,
GREAT GEORGE STREET,
LONDON, S.W.1.

31*st March*, 1948.

SIR,

I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury to inform you that they have been in consultation with the Public Works Loan Board and with representatives of the Standing Committees of Local Authorities with a view to ensuring that the forward commitments of the Board should be put on as realistic a basis as possible.

It was an integral feature of the arrangements for the operation of the Local Authorities Loans Act that the approval of the Public Works Loan Board should be obtained for any proposed local authority borrowing concurrently with the sanction of the appropriate Government Department and the consent of the Treasury. This arrangement has resulted in the position that at any given time the Board stands committed to lend very substantial amounts to local authorities, as and when they may be requested to do so.

As a result of legal rulings, specific provision is now made in successive Public Works Loans Acts to limit the extent to which, during the currency of the Act, the Board may enter into commitments to make future loans. Having regard to this limitation, it is, in the view of the Board and of Their Lordships, essential that outstanding approvals given by the Board should only remain valid to the extent that the loans in question are in fact likely to be required from the Board. For example, a local authority may have exercised a loan sanction without recourse to the Board, either by the use of internal funds or by borrowing under the Local Authorities Loans (Exemptions) Regulations. Again, a particular project for which a loan has been approved may have been postponed indefinitely. In such circumstances it is clearly desirable that the commitments represented by the Board's approval should be cancelled. It can of course be assumed that, if the local authority subsequently finds that it is after all necessary to apply to the Board for a loan, the Board will, unless in the meantime there has been a substantial change in circumstances, be prepared to reinstate their earlier approval.

I am to enclose herewith a form of return (in duplicate), one copy of which you are asked to complete and return to the P.W.L.B. not later than 30th April, 1948.

I am, Sir, etc.

Local Government—Audit—Surcharge—Powers of district auditor—Fraud by company—Surcharge on managing director—Local Government Act, 1933 (c. 51), s. 228 (1) (d).

A company overstated the time it had spent on work for a local authority, and, as a result, large overpayments were made by the authority. The district auditor estimated the amount of loss to the authority and purported to surcharge therewith, under the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 228 (1) (d), the company's managing director owing to whose misconduct the overstatement was alleged to have been made :—

Held : on the true construction of s. 228 (1) (d) the district auditor had no power to surcharge anyone who was not a member, officer, or servant of the authority whose accounts were being audited.

FIRE SERVICES (TRANSFER OF PROPERTY) REGULATIONS, 1948

S.I. 1948 No. 465

March 8, 1948

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by paragraphs 3, 7, 8 and 9 of the Fifth Schedule to the Fire Services Act, 1947, I [i.e., the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. Subject to the provisions of Regulation 6 of these Regulations, all land vested immediately before the appointed day on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service, and all rights and liabilities in relation to land enjoyed or incurred on behalf of His Majesty for the said purposes and existing immediately before the said day shall, on the said day, by virtue of this Regulation and without more, be transferred to the fire authority for the area in which is situated the land vested as aforesaid, or, as the case may be, in relation to which the said rights or liabilities exist:

Provided that nothing in this Regulation shall operate to transfer any land, or any rights or liabilities in relation to any land, as respects which notification has been given before the appointed day on behalf of the Secretary of State to the authority which will on the said day become the fire authority for the area in which the land is situated that the land, or, as the case may be, the rights or liabilities, shall not be transferred to that authority. [1009]

2.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Regulation, all land and other property which, immediately before the appointed day, is used on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service, being property vested in an authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 which does not on the said day become a fire authority shall, by virtue of this Regulation and without more, be vested in the appropriate fire authority :

Provided that nothing in this Regulation shall operate to vest in the appropriate fire authority any land or other property as respects which that authority has, before the appointed day, notified the authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 in which the land or property is vested that it should remain vested in the said last-mentioned authority.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in paragraph (1) of this Regulation, where before the appointed day it is agreed between an authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 and the authority which will on the said day become the appropriate authority in relation to any property used on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service but vested in the said authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 either—

(a) that the property cannot conveniently be severed from other property, whether or not forming part of the same building, and that, having regard to the nature of the whole premises and the uses to which they are put, it is expedient that the said property should remain vested in the authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938, or

(b) that immediately before the property was first used on behalf of His Majesty as aforesaid it was not intended by the authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 that it should permanently be appropriated for the purposes of their functions under the Act of 1938 and that by reason thereof it is expedient that the said property should remain vested as aforesaid, the said property shall not on the appointed day vest in the fire authority, but may from the said day be used by that authority for the purposes of their functions under the Act of 1947 on such terms (including terms as to payments) as may be agreed between the two said authorities.

(3) Where under paragraph (2) of this Regulation a question has arisen between an authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 and an authority which will on the appointed day become a fire authority whether it is expedient that any property should remain vested in the authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938, and the matter has not been agreed between the authorities before the appointed day, the said property shall not on the said day vest in the fire authority, but may be used by that authority as if it had been so agreed between the two authorities under the said paragraph (2) ; and, in such a case, if—

(a) it is afterwards agreed as aforesaid that the property should remain vested in the authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938, the said paragraph (2) shall apply as if it had been so agreed before the appointed day ;

(b) it is afterwards agreed as aforesaid that the property should become vested in the fire authority, the property shall accordingly be vested by virtue of this Regulation and without more in the said fire authority on the date of such agreement.

(4) In default of agreement on any matter arising under paragraph (2) or (3) of this Regulation between an authority for the purposes of the Act of 1938 and a fire authority, or, as the case may be, an authority which will on the appointed day become a fire authority, the question shall be referred to, and determined by, the Secretary of State; and in the said paragraphs references to any matter being agreed between any two such authorities, and to an agreement between any two such authorities, shall be construed respectively as including references to that matter being determined by the Secretary of State and to a determination by him. [1010]

3. Where any property other than property to which Regulation 1 of these Regulations relates is immediately before the appointed day vested on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service and is then used, appropriated or intended for use on, or in connection with,—

(a) land to be transferred to a fire authority under either of the two foregoing Regulations, (b) land the right to occupy which is to be transferred as aforesaid, or
(c) land which, but for the operation of paragraph (2) or (3) of Regulation 2 of these Regulations, would be transferred to a fire authority under paragraph (1) of the said Regulation 2, the said property, and all rights and liabilities enjoyed or incurred on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service in relation to the said property and existing immediately before the appointed day, shall, on the said day, by virtue of this Regulation and without more, be transferred to the fire authority for the area in which the said land is situated:

Provided that nothing in this Regulation shall operate to transfer any property, or any rights or liabilities in relation to property, as respects which notification has been given before the appointed day on behalf of the Secretary of State to the authority which will on the said day become the fire authority for the area in which is situated the land on which, or in connection with which, the property is used, appropriated or intended for use, that the property or, as the case may be, the rights or liabilities, shall not be transferred to that authority. [1011]

4. Any property other than property to which any of the foregoing Regulations relates which is immediately before the appointed day vested on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service and in respect of which notification has been given before the said day on behalf of the Secretary of State to an authority which will on the said day become a fire authority that on the said day it will be transferred to that authority, shall, on the said day, by virtue of this Regulation and without more, be transferred to the said authority. [1012]

5. [1016]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations provide for the transfer to the appropriate new fire authorities of land and other property used for National Fire Service purposes and of rights and liabilities incurred on behalf of His Majesty for those purposes, unless, in any case, notice to the contrary is given before the appointed day. Where property used for those purposes is vested in a former fire authority which will not become a new fire authority on that day, that authority is given a right to retain it by agreement in certain cases subject to user by the appropriate new fire authority. The Regulations further provide for the carrying on by new fire authorities of certain arrangements whereunder payments have been made on behalf of the Crown to former fire authorities, and for new fire authorities to reimburse to such former authorities the amount of payments in respect of interest and redemption charges on moneys borrowed for fire-fighting purposes.

FIRE SERVICES (DISCIPLINE) REGULATIONS, 1948

March 18, 1948

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by paragraphs (c) and (d) of subsection (1) of section seventeen of the Fire Services Act, 1947, I [i.e., the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

PART I

Discipline

1. A member of a fire brigade commits an offence against discipline (hereafter in these Regulations referred to as an " offence ") if he commits one or more of the offences set out in the Schedule hereto. [1020]

2.—(1) The chief officer, if he decides that a member of the fire brigade shall be charged with an offence, shall as soon as possible cause him to be informed in writing of the charge together with such particulars as will leave the accused under no misapprehension as to the precise nature of the allegations on which the charge is based.

(2) The accused shall also be given as soon as possible copies of any report, complaint, or other written allegation on which the charge may be founded and any reports thereon, notwithstanding that they may be confidential. [1021]

3.—(1) The accused shall be ordered to state in writing whether he admits or denies the charge and shall be allowed to give to the chief officer any explanation he may wish.

(2) The accused shall be allowed to state the names and addresses of any witness to relevant facts whom he may desire to give evidence at the hearing of the case.

(3) Any such witness who is a member of the fire brigade shall be ordered to attend at the hearing of the case and any other witness shall be given due notice that his attendance is desired and of the time and place of the hearing. [1022]

4.—(1) If the accused denies the charge, he shall, unless the chief officer is satisfied with any explanation which he has offered, be ordered to appear at the hearing of the case.

(2) The accused shall be entitled at the hearing to hear the evidence against him and have an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses and of calling witnesses, giving evidence and making representations in his defence. [1023]

5.—(1) The fire authority may direct that any class or description of case shall be heard by them, but subject to any such direction the chief officer may decide either to hear the case himself or order the case to be heard by a tribunal consisting of one or more officers not being below the rank of Divisional Officer, Grade III.

(2) If the chief officer decides to hear the case himself, he may order an officer or officers of the fire brigade to assist him to hear the case as assessors.

(3) The chief officer or the officer or officers ordered by him to hear the case are hereafter in these Regulations referred to as the disciplinary tribunal.

(4) The disciplinary tribunal may at any time before the hearing is concluded refer the case for hearing, if the disciplinary tribunal is the chief officer, to the fire authority and, if the disciplinary tribunal is not the chief officer, to the chief officer.

(5) Where any case is referred for hearing under paragraph (4) of this Regulation the hearing shall be recommenced. [1024]

6. The disciplinary tribunal or, if the case is heard by the fire authority, the fire authority shall as soon as possible after the hearing of the case cause its decision to be notified in writing to the accused. [1025]

7. If the disciplinary tribunal is not the chief officer it shall only have power to impose a punishment of stoppage of pay, reprimand or caution. [1026]

8.—(1) If the disciplinary tribunal is not the chief officer and its decision is to impose a punishment of stoppage of pay or reprimand, its decision shall have no effect unless it is confirmed by the chief officer.

(3) Any decision which requires confirmation may be confirmed with a reduction in the punishment.

(4) Where a decision is confirmed under the preceding paragraphs of this Regulation, it shall have effect from the date of the confirmation.

(5) The accused may within three days of the notification to him of a decision of the disciplinary tribunal to impose a punishment other than a caution, appeal to the fire authority by giving notice in writing to that effect to the chief officer, and, where the decision is one which under paragraph (1) or (2) of this Regulation would have required confirmation, it shall, subject to such appeal, have effect without confirmation. [1027]

9.—(1) An appeal under paragraph (5) of Regulation 8 of these Regulations shall be heard by the fire authority.

(2) Any such appeal shall be by way of re-hearing, and paragraph (2) of Regulation 4 of these Regulations shall apply as it applies to the hearing of the case.

(3) After hearing an appeal the fire authority may either allow the appeal or dismiss the appeal with or without an increase or reduction in the punishment.

(4) If the fire authority increase the punishment, they may direct that the punishment shall take effect from a date later than that on which it took effect under the decision of the disciplinary tribunal and, if they do so, may give such directions as they think fit with respect to the period between those dates. [1028]

10. The fire authority shall as soon as possible after they have heard an appeal cause their decision to be notified in writing to the accused. [1029]

11. If the accused refuses or without sufficient cause fails to attend at the time and place appointed for hearing the case or, as the case may be, for hearing an appeal or is in legal custody, the hearing of the case or the appeal may be proceeded with and concluded in his absence. [1030]

12.—(1) At the hearing of a case the accused shall be entitled to have the assistance in presenting his defence of a person selected by himself who shall be a member of the fire brigade or, if the fire authority so permit, a member of another fire brigade :

Provided that if the disciplinary tribunal is not the chief officer the person so selected by the accused shall not be of a rank equal or superior to that of any member of the tribunal.

(2) The Secretary of State shall, unless it appears to him that the case is of such a nature that it can properly be determined without taking oral evidence, and may, in any case, appoint one or more persons to hold an inquiry and report to him and shall after considering, where an inquiry has been held, the report of the person or persons who held the inquiry, either allow the appeal or dismiss the appeal with or without an increase or reduction in the punishment:

Provided that the Secretary of State may at any time remit a case for further consideration by the fire authority or, if an inquiry has been held, for further investigation by the person or persons who held the inquiry.

(3) Any inquiry held under this Regulation shall be by way of re-hearing and the procedure thereat shall, subject to the provisions of these Regulations and to any directions given by the Secretary of State, be such as the person holding the inquiry, or if there are two or more persons holding the inquiry the person presiding at the inquiry, may determine, and in particular any such inquiry may be held in private. [1033]

15. If the accused having been given not less than seven days' notice of the time and place fixed for the holding of an inquiry under the preceding Regulation does not appear at the time and place appointed or is in legal custody, the inquiry may proceed and be concluded in his absence. [1034]

16. At an inquiry held under this Part of these Regulations the accused shall be entitled to have the assistance in presenting his appeal of a person selected by himself who need not be a member of a fire brigade. [1035]

17. If the Secretary of State dismisses the appeal with an increase in the punishment, he may direct that the punishment shall take effect from a date later than that on which it took effect under the decision of the fire authority and, if he does so, may give such directions as he thinks fit with respect to the period between those dates. [1036]

10. A volunteer member of a brigade who attends at his station or at a fire or other occurrence in response to a call, or attends at his station in pursuance of any obligation he has undertaken to attend thereat at regular stated times for duties other than training, shall be entitled in respect of the tour of duty performed on each such attendance to a subsistence allowance of an amount in accordance with the subjoined Table :—

(2) In the case of a part-time member who is transferred from the National Fire Service to a brigade and, at the time of transfer, is in receipt of payments in respect of injury or disease caused by or arising out of the performance of his duty as a member of the National Fire Service the reference in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph to the performance of his duty as a member of the brigade shall include a reference to the performance of his duty as a member of the National Fire Service and in computing the period of thirteen weeks mentioned in the said sub-paragraph (1) there shall be included the period during which he was in receipt of the payments above-mentioned while a member of the National Fire Service.

12. In this Schedule the expression " retained member " in relation to a brigade means a part-time member of the brigade who has undertaken the obligations set out in paragraph 8 of this Schedule in return for the emoluments specified in paragraphs 1 to 7 of this Schedule, and the expression " volunteer member " in relation to a brigade means a part-time member of the brigade who has undertaken obligations as such a part-time member otherwise than as a retained member of the brigade. Regulation 11 SIXTH SCHEDULE

SUSPENSION

1. Where a member of a brigade is suspended on the ground of absence from duty, the period of suspension shall, if the chief officer so directs, begin with the date which appears to him to be the date on which the absence commenced.

2. The period of suspension of a member of a brigade shall continue until either it is terminated by the chief officer or terminated by discharge from the brigade or until any disciplinary proceedings against the member of the brigade concerned have been concluded, whichever first happens ;

Provided that where disciplinary proceedings have been contemplated but it has been decided that no such proceedings shall be taken, the chief officer shall forthwith terminate the suspension.

3. A member of a brigade who has been suspended shall not be entitled in respect of the period of suspension to any pay, but shall be paid—

(a) if he has been suspended on the ground of absence from duty, such suspension allowance, if any, as may from time to time be directed by the chief officer ;

(ii) where a member of a brigade is found guilty of an offence against discipline, the award in respect of the offence may contain a direction that the member shall be treated as having been suspended only for a specified part of the period of his suspension, and where a member is found guilty of a criminal offence the chief officer may give a similar direction, and where such a direction is given the member shall receive in respect of the remainder of that period of suspension the sum which he would have received in respect thereof if he had not been found guilty ;

FIRE SERVICES (COMPENSATION) REGULATIONS, 1948

March 19, 1948

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by paragraphs 3 and 14 of the Fifth Schedule to the Fire Services Act, 1947, I [i.e., the Secretary of State] hereby, with the approval of the Treasury, make the following Regulations :—

1.—(1) This Regulation applies to any person who—

(a) on the appointed day is a member of a police force or a person employed by a local authority, not being in either case a person transferred by virtue of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941, to the National Fire Service,

(b) being a person who by reason of the said Regulations suffered a loss of emoluments, is, in respect of the period ending immediately before the appointed day, receiving periodical payments under Regulation 16 of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 (which makes provision for compensation in respect of the said loss), and

(c) had before the eighteenth day of August, 1941, performed not less than eight years' service in the aggregate.

(2) (a) A person to whom this Regulation applies shall be deemed to have suffered a reduction of emoluments in respect of which he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations if on the appointed day the rate of emoluments, determined subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (b) of this paragraph, which he is entitled as a member of a police force, or, as the case may be, in respect of his employment by a local authority, to receive is lower by not less than five per cent. than the rate of emoluments, determined subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph, which he was entitled to receive immediately before the relevant date, and in such a case the difference between the two said rates determined as aforesaid is hereafter in these Regulations referred to as the " loss for award purposes ".

(b) In determining for the purposes of this Regulation the rate of emoluments which a person is entitled to receive on the appointed day there shal be left out of account so much of that rate as is equal to the amount by which the rate of emoluments which he was entitled to receive immediately before the relevant date has or would have increased by the appointed day by reason of any periodical increments under the scale of pay applicable to him at the said relevant date, and if after the said relevant date and before the appointed day there was any reduction in the rate of his emoluments not attributable to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941, the amount of that reduction shall be disregarded.

(c) In determining for the purposes of this Regulation the rate of emoluments which a person was entitled to receive immediately before the relevant date, if the rate of any part of those emoluments fluctuated from time to time the rate of that part immediately before the said date shall be deemed to be the average rate of that part during the three years immediately preceding the said date. [1062]

2.—(1) This Regulation applies to any person who—

(a) having been a member of a police force or a person employed by a local authority, not being in either case a person transferred by virtue of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941, to the National Fire Service, has before the appointed day retired from the police force, or, as the case may be, from employment under the local authority, in such circumstances that he became entitled to a pension under the provisions applicable in his case,

(b) being a person who by reason of the said Regulations suffered a loss of emoluments, is, in respect of the period ending immediately before the appointed day, receiving periodical payments under Regulation 16 of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 (which makes provision for compensation in respect of the said loss), and

(c) had before the eighteenth day of August, 1941, performed not less than eight years' service in the aggregate.

(2) In determining whether a person to whom this Regulation applies shall be deemed to have suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments in respect of which he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations, paragraph (2) of the last foregoing Regulation shall apply, so, however, that any reference to emoluments shall be construed as a reference to pensionable emoluments, any reference to the appointed day shall be construed as a reference to the day immediately preceding the day on which he retired from the police force, or, as the case may be, from employment under a local authority, and any reference to the rate of emoluments to which he is entitled on the appointed day shall be construed as a reference to the rate of pensionable emoluments to which he was entitled on the day immediately preceding his said day of retirement, and for the words " loss for award purposes " there shall be substituted the words " reduction of pensionable emoluments ". [1063]

3.—(1) This Regulation applies to any person—

(a) who is immediately before the appointed day a member of the National Fire Service,

(b) in whose case any Regulations made for the purposes set out in paragraph 7 of the Schedule to the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941 (which Regulations provide for the preservation of the rights of former members of fire brigades maintained under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, and of the London Fire Brigade as respects pensions and gratuities), have effect immediately before the appointed day,

(c) who had before the appointed day performed not less than eight years' service in the aggregate, and

(d) who is on the appointed day by virtue of Regulations made under the Fifth Schedule to the Fire Services Act, 1947, transferred to a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of that Act.

(2) (a) A person to whom this Regulation applies shall be deemed to have suffered a reduction of emoluments in respect of which he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations if the rate of emoluments which he is entitled to receive in the rank which, by virtue of Regulations made under the Fifth Schedule to the Fire Services Act, 1947, he holds on the appointed day in a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of the said Act is lower by not less than five per cent. than the rate of emoluments which he was entitled to receive immediately before the appointed day as a member of the National Fire Service calculated in accordance with sub-paragraph (b) of this paragraph, and in such a case the difference between the two said rates determined as aforesaid is hereafter in these Regulations referred to as the " loss for award purposes ".

(b) For the purposes of this Regulation the rate of emoluments which a person is entitled to receive as a member of the National Fire Service immediately before the appointed day shall be deemed to be the rate of emoluments which he is then entitled to receive under the provisions of the Third Schedule to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944, as subsequently amended, so, however, that the amount of any excess in the rate of pay which he is entitled to receive as aforesaid over twice the rate of his former local brigade pay shall be disregarded.

In this sub-paragraph " rate of former local brigade pay ", in relation to any person, means the rate of pay computed as for the purposes of the said Schedule to which he would have been entitled immediately before the appointed day if he had remained a member of the fire brigade or police force of which he was last a member before he became a member of the National Fire Service. [1064]

4.—(1) This Regulation applies to any person who—

(a) immediately before the eighteenth day of August, 1941, was employed by a fire authority for the purposes of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, or by the London County Council, upon duties connected with the fire brigade maintained by them, or

(b) having been employed as aforesaid upon such said duties, had left such employment in order to undertake war service within the meaning of the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939, and was immediately before the said day engaged on such war service, and who in either case—

(i) is immediately before the appointed day employed for the purposes of the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, otherwise than as a member of the National Fire Service,

(ii) is a person who had before the appointed day performed not less than eight years' service in the aggregate, and

(iii) becomes employed on the appointed day by a local authority.

(2) A person to whom this Regulation applies shall be deemed to have suffered a reduction of emoluments in respect of which he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations if the rate of emoluments which he is entitled to receive in the post in which he becomes employed under a local authority on the appointed day is lower by not less than five per cent. than the rate of emoluments which he was entitled to receive immediately before the said day in respect of his employment for the purposes of the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, and in such a case the difference between the two said rates is hereafter in these Regulations referred to as the " loss for award purposes ". [1065]

5.—(1) A claim for compensation under these Regulations shall be made in writing signed by the person making the claim and shall state full particulars of the grounds on which the claim is made, and shall be delivered to the administering authority not later than three months after the appointed day.

(2) Where a claim for compensation under these Regulations is delivered to the administering authority within the period required by the last foregoing paragraph, it shall not be regarded as out of time for the purposes of these Regulations, notwithstanding that it does not contain sufficient particulars, if within such time, not less than fourteen days after the expiry of the said period, as the administering authority may allow, the claimant furnishes such further particulars as are reasonably required by that authority. [1066]

6.—(1) On receipt of a claim for compensation from a person who claims that, being a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, he has suffered a reduction of emoluments or that, being a person to whom Regulation 2 of these Regulations applies, he has suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments, in respect of which in either case he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations, the administering authority shall, within a period of three months after the receipt of the claim, decide whether the claimant is a person to whom one of the said Regulations applies and whether he has suffered a reduction of emoluments or, as the case may be, of pensionable emoluments, in respect of which he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations, and if they are satisfied that the claimant is not such a person or has not suffered such a reduction as aforesaid they shall reject the claim and forthwith notify the claimant in writing accordingly.

(2) Where the administering authority decide that any such claimant as aforesaid is a person entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations, they shall forthwith make an award of compensation to him, and, in the case of a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, shall also decide, in accordance with paragraph (3) of this Regulation, whether he suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of the Regulations, and, if so, the amount of such reduction.

(3) For the purposes of deciding whether a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies has suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations and, if so, the amount of that reduction, the following provisions of this paragraph shall have effect, that is to say :—

(a) in the case of a person to whom the said Regulation 1 applies, paragraph (2) of the said Regulation 1 shall apply as if—

(i) for the words " a reduction of emoluments in respect of which he is entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations " there were substituted the words " a reduction of pensionable emoluments ",

(ii) for the word " emoluments ", wherever it occurs, there were substituted the words " pensionable emoluments ",

(iii) the words " by not less than five per cent." were omitted, and

(iv) for the words " is hereafter in these Regulations " to the end of sub-paragraph (a), there were substituted the words " shall be taken as the reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations " ;

(b) in the case of a person to whom the said Regulation 3 applies, the said person shall be deemed to have suffered such a reduction as aforesaid if the rate of emoluments (excluding therefrom any emoluments of which account would not be taken in reckoning any pension or gratuity under the provisions applicable in his case on the appointed day) which he is entitled to receive in the rank which, by virtue of Regulations made under the Fifth Schedule to the Fire Services Act, 1947, he holds on the appointed day in a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of the said Act, is lower than the rate of his pensionable emoluments immediately before the appointed day as a member of the National Fire Service, and in such a case the difference between the two said rates shall be taken as the reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations ;

(c) in the case of a person to whom the said Regulation 4 applies, the said person shall be deemed to have suffered such a reduction as aforesaid if the rate of emoluments which he is entitled to receive in the post in which he becomes employed under a local authority on the appointed day is lower than the rate of emoluments which he was entitled to receive immediately before the said day in respect of his employment for the purposes of the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, and in such a case the difference between the two said rates shall be taken as the reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations.

For the purposes of sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph the expression " emoluments ", in relation to any person, does not include any emoluments of which account would not be taken in reckoning any pension or gratuity under the provisions applicable in the case of that person on, or, as the case may be, immediately before, the appointed day. [1067]

7.—(1) Any compensation awarded to any person under these Regulations shall, subject to the provisions of Regulation 13 thereof, be given by way of periodical payments, and the administering authority shall at the same time that they make the award assess, in accordance with paragraph (3), or, as the case may be, paragraph (4) of this Regulation, the annual rate at which any such payments shall, in respect of the periods or period specified in paragraph (2) thereof, be made to that person, and shall forthwith notify him in writing accordingly.

(2) (a) In the case of a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, payment by way of compensation for the loss for award purposes shall be made in respect of his remaining service period, and, subject to the provisions of Regulation 12 of these Regulations, payment by way of compensation for any reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations shall be made in respect of the period commencing with the termination of his remaining service period and ending with his death.

(b) In the case of a person to whom Regulation 2 of these Regulations applies, payment by way of compensation for the reduction of pensionable emoluments shall be made in respect of the period commencing with the appointed day and ending with his death.

(3) (a) In the case of a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, the annual rate at which the periodical payments by way of compensation for the loss for award purposes shall be made shall be assessed by the administering authority in accordance with the provisions of Part I of the Schedule to these Regulations.

(b) In the case of any such person as aforesaid, the annual rate at which the periodical payments by way of compensation for any reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations shall be made shall be assessed by the said authority in accordance with the provisions of Part II of the said Schedule.

(4) In the case of a person to whom Regulation 2 of these Regulations applies, the annual rate at which the periodical payments by way of compensation for the reduction of pensionable emoluments shall be made shall be assessed by the administering authority in accordance with the provisions of Part II of the Schedule to these Regulations. [1068]

8. If a person who has claimed to be entitled to an award of compensation under these Regulations is aggrieved—

(a) by the decision of the administering authority not to make an award of compensation to him or by their failure to come to a decision on his claim within three months after the date on which it was received by them,

(b) in the case of a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, by the decision of the said authority that he has not suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations, or

(c) by the annual rate at which any periodical payments to be made to him have been assessed by the said authority,

he may within three months after the said failure or after the date on which he is notified of any such decision or assessment, as the case may be, appeal to the appropriate tribunal, and that tribunal shall consider the matter in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations and shall—

(i) in a case referred to in paragraph (a) of this Regulation, either, if they determine that an award of compensation should be made to that person, allow the appeal, and, in the case of a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, determine whether he suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments of which account is to be taken for the purposes of these Regulations, and, if so, the amount of that reduction, and in the case of any person determine at what annual rate any periodical payments to be made to him should be assessed, or dismiss the appeal,

(ii) in a case referred to in paragraph (b) of this Regulation, either, if they determine that that person has suffered a reduction of pensionable emoluments as aforesaid, allow the appeal and determine at what annual rate any periodical payments to be made to him by way of compensation for the said reduction should be assessed, or dismiss the appeal,

(iii) in a case referred to in paragraph (c) of this Regulation, determine at what rate the periodical payments, if any, to be made to that person should be assessed, and the administering authority shall, in any case where the said tribunal have allowed the appeal or varied any assessment, give effect to the determination of the tribunal as if their original decision and assessment had been in accordance with the said determination. [1069]

9.—(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (4) of this Regulation, where an award of compensation has been made under these Regulations to a person to whom Regulation 1, 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, the administering authority may, at any time before the retirement of that person, from time to time review the assessment of the annual rate of periodical payments to be made to him by way of compensation for the loss for award purposes and the assessment of the annual rate of periodical payments to be made to him by way of compensation for any reduction of pensionable emoluments.

(2) On any such review as aforesaid in the case of periodical payments to any person by way of compensation for the loss for award purposes, the administering authority shall have regard to any material change in the circumstances of the case, and, in particular, to any increase of emoluments received by that person in his employment since the time of the last assessment, and may, subject to the limits specified in Part I of the Schedule to these Regulations, increase the assessment of the rate of the said payments, or may decrease that assessment to any extent, or decide that no further periodical payment shall be made to him by way of compensation for the aforesaid loss.

(3) On any such review as aforesaid, in the case of periodical payments to any person by way of compensation for any reduction of pensionable emoluments, the administering authority shall have regard to any increase of pensionable emoluments received by that person in his employment since the time of the last assessment, and, notwithstanding the provisions of Part II of the Schedule to these Regulations, may decrease the assessment of the rate of the said payments to any extent, or decide that no periodical payments shall be made to him by way of compensation for the aforesaid reduction.

(4) The administering authority shall not review any assessment of the annual rate of periodical payments in the case of any person until at least six months after their notification to him, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (1) of Regulation 7 of these Regulations, of the said rate, or, in a case where the annual rate at which the said payments are to be assessed has been considered by a tribunal under the last foregoing Regulation, until at least six months after the date of the determination of the tribunal, and, in any case where they have reviewed any assessment, shall not hold any subsequent review of the said assessment in the case of that person until at least six months after they have, in accordance with paragraph (7) of this Regulation, notified that person of their decision on such review, or, in a case where the annual rate at which the said payment is to be assessed has been considered by a tribunal under the said paragraph (7), after the date of the determination of the tribunal.

(5) A person to whom an award of compensation has been made under these Regulations may at any time when, in accordance with this Regulation, the administering authority could review the assessment of the annual rate of any periodical payments to be made to him, if he considers that there has been any material change in the circumstances of the case, request the said authority to review the said assessment, or, in any case where they have on a review decided that no further, or no, periodical payments should be made, to make a new assessment, and the administering authority shall accordingly review the assessment, or, as the case may be, consider whether a new assessment should be made.

(6) Where an award of compensation has been made under these Regulations to a person to whom Regulation 3 of these Regulations applies, if the retirement on pension of that person occurs within the period of three years commencing with the appointed day, the administering authority may, not later than two months after the said retirement, review the assessment of the annual rate of the periodical payments to be made to him by way of compensation for any reduction of pensionable emoluments, and on any such review may have regard to the fact that, by reason of the provisions of these Regulations, the reduction of pensionable emoluments of which the assessment of the said annual rate made at the time of the award took account was computed with reference to his actual pensionable emoluments on the appointed day, whereas the pension to which he became entitled on retirement was computed with reference to an average during the three years preceding his retirement, and, notwithstanding the provisions of Part II of the Schedule to these Regulations, may decrease the aforesaid assessment to any extent, or decide that no periodical payments should be made by way of compensation for the aforesaid reduction.

(7) Where the administering authority under this Regulation review any assessment of the annual rate of periodical payments in the case of any person, they shall forthwith notify that person of their decision on such review, and if that person is aggrieved by the decision he may, within three months after the date on which he received the notification, appeal to the appropriate tribunal, and that tribunal shall consider the matter in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations and shall determine at what annual rate the periodical payments, if any, to be made to that person should be assessed, and, if they vary the assessment, the administering authority shall give effect to the determination of the tribunal as if their decision on the review had been in accordance therewith. [1070]

10.—(1) A person claiming compensation under these Regulations and a person receiving periodical payments by way of compensation thereunder, at any time during which the annual rate of such payments is subject to review by the administering authority under the last foregoing Regulation shall, if the administering authority so require, attend at a meeting of the authority, or of any committee appointed by the authority for the purpose, and answer all questions asked by any member of the authority or committee touching the matters set forth in his claim or to which the administering authority are, under these Regulations, required to have regard, and shall produce all books, papers and documents in his possession or under his control relating to the said matters.

(2) A person required in pursuance of this Regulation to attend at a meeting may be required to make a statutory declaration as to the truth of any of the answers given by him to questions asked on the occasion of such attendance touching the aforesaid matters. [1071]

11.—(1) Any notification given by an administering authority under paragraph (1) of Regulation 6, paragraph (1) of Regulation 7 or paragraph (7) of Regulation 9 of these Regulations to any person shall contain a statement directing the attention of that person to his right under Regulation 8 of these Regulations, or, as the case may be, under the said paragraph (7), to appeal to the appropriate tribunal, and to the time within which such appeal must be made, and giving him the address of the tribunal.

(2) The proceedings on any appeal under these Regulations to a tribunal shall not be deemed to be an arbitration to which anything in the Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934, has application. [1072]

1. In assessing in accordance with this Part of this Schedule the annual rate of periodical payments to be made to any person the administering authority shall have regard to all the circumstances of his case, and, in particular, in the case of a person to whom Regulation 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, to any increase of emoluments received by that person within one year before the appointed day, and to the extent to which he sought to obtain employment on the appointed day which would not involve a reduction of emoluments.

2. The annual rate of the periodical payments to be made to any person in accordance with this Part of this Schedule shall be such rate as the administering authority may, subject to the provisions of these Regulations, in their discretion assess, not exceeding the aggregate of the following, that is to say :—

(a) for every year of that person's service before the relevant date, one-sixtieth of the amount of the loss for award purposes in his case, and

(b) in the case of a person who had attained the age of forty-five years before the relevant date, for each year of his service since he attained the said age and before the relevant date, a further one-sixtieth of the amount of the said loss for award purposes, and not in any case exceeding two-thirds of the amount of the said loss for award purposes. [1078]

PART II

Assessment of the annual rate of periodical payments in respect of the period after retirement on pension or with a gratuity

1. The annual rate of the periodical payments to be made to any person in accordance with this Part of this Schedule shall be at a rate assessed as follows, that is to say, the aggregate of—

(a) the sum which bears the same proportion to the appropriate pension as the reduction of pensionable emoluments bears to the appropriate rate of pensionable emoluments, and

(b) in the case of a person who had attained the age of forty years before the relevant date, a sum equal to the amount of the additional part of the appropriate pension which would have been payable to that person if there were credited to him such additional number of years of service to be reckoned in computing the said pension as the administering authority may, in their discretion, decide, not exceeding one for each complete year by which his age at the said date exceeded the said age, and not in any case exceeding ten years, so, however, that the said annual rate shall not in any case exceed two-thirds of the said reduction of pensionable emoluments.

2. In exercising their discretion under sub-paragraph (b) of the last foregoing paragraph, the administering authority shall have regard to all the circumstances of the case, and, in particular, in the case of a person to whom Regulation 3 or 4 of these Regulations applies, to any increase of pensionable emoluments received by that person within one year before the appointed day, and to the extent to which he sought to obtain employment on the appointed day which would not involve a reduction of pensionable emoluments.

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations provide for the payment under certain conditions of compensation (a) to persons who by reason of the formation of the National Fire Service in 1941 suffered a loss of emoluments, (b) to former professional firemen who have been in the National Fire Service and, by reason of the transfer of the fire service to the new fire authorities, suffer a reduction of emoluments and (c) to certain other persons formerly employed by local authorities who have been employed for the purposes of the National Fire Service otherwise than as members thereof, and who on again becoming employed under a local authority suffer a reduction of emoluments. Provision is made for appeal to a tribunal and for review of the rate at which periodical payments have been assessed. The appropriate new fire authority receives and considers claims, makes the assessments and pays any person entitled, and the authorities responsible for bearing the cost of payments are, as to three-quarters, the Secretary of State, and as to one-quarter, the appropriate new fire authority.

(b) enters upon employment in the civil service of the Crown, and by virtue of Regulation 2 or 5 of these Regulations any period of service performed by him is treated for the purposes of the Superannuation Acts, 1834 to 1946, as if it were service in the civil service of the State within the meaning of those Acts, subsection (1) of section twenty-nine of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, and paragraph (1) of Regulation 3 of, and the First Schedule to, the Local Government Superannuation (Transfer Value) Regulations, 1939 (which provide for payment of transfer values in certain cases where employees of a local authority cease to be employed by them and become employed by another local authority), shall apply—

(i) as if that person had, immediately before he ceased to be employed in the National Fire Service, been an officer employed and paid by his former authority, and had then ceased to hold his said employment under them,

(ii) as if all the service which he is entitled to reckon as aforesaid, or, as the case may be, which is treated as aforesaid, had been contributing service under his former authority,

(iii) in a case where awards might, under the provisions and arrangements as to pensions applicable in his case, have been made to him immediately before the appointed day out of a pension fund, as if that fund were a superannuation fund within the meaning of the said Act and Regulations, and as if any deductions from his pay made under the provisions as to pensions applicable in his case had been contributions to that superannuation fund,

(iv) in a case where awards might, under the said provisions and arrangements, have been made to him as aforesaid otherwise than out of a pension fund, as if his former authority were an authority maintaining such a superannuation fund and as if any deductions made as aforesaid had been contributions to that superannuation fund,

(v) in the case of a person who enters or has entered upon employment under a local authority which are his former authority, as if the superannuation fund referred to in sub-paragraph (iii), or, as the case may be, sub-paragraph (iv) of this paragraph and the superannuation fund relating to the employment upon which he enters or has entered as aforesaid were different funds maintained by different authorities,

(vi) in the case of a person who enters upon employment in the civil service of the Crown, as if the Crown were a local authority maintaining a superannuation fund within the meaning of the said Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, and as if entering upon employment in the service of the Crown were entering upon contributing service under such an authority, and a transfer value shall be payable accordingly out of the said pension fund, or, as the case may be, by that person's former authority, to the authority maintaining the superannuation fund within the meaning of the said Act relating to the employment on which that person has entered, or, as the case may be, to the Secretary of State.

(2) Where, under Regulation 3 or 6 of these Regulations, if a person's former authority agree and make a certain payment—

(a) that person will be entitled to reckon an extra period of service as contributing service, or, where the authority under which he becomes employed are a local Act authority, as local Act scheme service, or

(b) an extra period of service will be treated as service performed by him in the civil service of the State, the amount of that payment shall be determined under paragraph (1) of this Regulation as if it were a transfer value payable in respect of a period of service which was of the same length as that extra period and which—

(i) by virtue of Regulation 1 or 4 of these Regulations that person was entitled to reckon as contributing service or as local Act scheme service as aforesaid, or, as the case may be,

(ii) by virtue of Regulation 2 or 5 of these Regulations was treated as if it were service performed by that person in the civil service of the State.

(3) Where under any of these Regulations any service is to be reckoned in an increased proportion, or, as the case may be, is to be treated as equivalent to a proportionately increased period of service, the period of that service shall, for the purposes of the said Local Government Superannuation (Transfer Value) Regulations, 1939, as applied by this Regulation, be deemed to be increased in that proportion. [1089]

11.—(1) Where any person on the appointed day enters upon employment under a local authority and is by virtue of Regulation 8 of these Regulations entitled to reckon any service as contributing service, or, in the case of a local Act authority, as local Act scheme service, there shall be payable by the Secretary of State to the authority maintaining the superannuation fund within the meaning of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, in relation to the employment on which that person has entered, a sum in respect of that person determined in accordance with the succeeding provisions of this Regulation.

(2) In determining the said sum subsection (1) of section twenty-nine of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, and paragraph (1) of Regulation 3 of, and the First Schedule to, the Local Government Superannuation (Transfer Value) Regulations, 1939 (which provide for payment of transfer values in certain cases where employees of a local authority cease to be employed by them and become employed by another local authority), shall apply as if a transfer value were being calculated thereunder and—

(a) as if the Crown were a local authority maintaining a superannuation fund within the meaning of the said Act and as if the person in respect of whom the sum is payable had, immediately before the appointed day, been an officer employed by such authority and had then ceased to hold his employment under them,

(b) as if all the service which that person is entitled to reckon as aforesaid had been contributing service under such authority, and

(c) as if in paragraph 1 of the First Schedule to the said Regulations for the definition of "remuneration" there were substituted the following definition:—

" ' remuneration ', in relation to any employee, means the pay computed at an annual rate which he was entitled to receive in his employment in the National Fire Service on the material date, so, however, that, if he was then holding a rank to which his promotion had, by virtue of paragraph (3) of Regulation 7 of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944, been expressed to be temporary only, the pay which he was entitled to receive as aforesaid shall be deemed to have been that which he would have been entitled to receive if the said promotion had not been made, and for the purposes of this definition the expression ' pay ' means pay actually receivable, and does not include the value of free quarters or of fuel or light supplied without charge, nor allowance towards rent or towards the cost of lodging, fuel or light, nor allowances to meet expenses on subsistence, travelling or the cost of uniform or boots, nor other like allowances."

(3) From the amount of the value so ascertained there shall be deducted an amount equal to the amount paid under Regulation 8 of these Regulations by the person entering upon employment, and the resulting amount is the sum which is payable by the Secretary of State as aforesaid to the authority maintaining the said superannuation fund in relation to the employment upon which that person enters. PENSIONS, GRATUITIES AND ALLOWANCES

1. Fireman's ordinary pension.—(1) Every fireman who retires on or after completing twenty-five years' pensionable service shall be entitled to receive a fireman's ordinary pension.

(2) The amount of the said pension shall be determined in accordance with the First Schedule to this Scheme.

(3) Where a chief officer or a firemaster retires before attaining the age of fifty-five years, he shall not be entitled to a pension under this Article unless his notice of retirement was given with the permission of the fire authority. [1095]

2. Fireman's short service award.—(1) Where a fireman retires on reaching the age prescribed for retirement by his conditions of service, and he is not entitled to an ordinary pension under Article 1 of this Scheme, he shall be entitled to receive a fireman's short service award.

(2) If the fireman has not, at the time when he so retires, completed ten years' pensionable service, the said award shall be a gratuity. Save as aforesaid, the award shall be a pension (hereinafter referred to as a " short service pension ").

(3) The amount of a short service award shall be determined in accordance with the Second Schedule to this Scheme. [1096]

3. Fireman's ill-health award.—(1) If at any time a fireman is incapacitated for the performance of his duty by infirmity of mind or body, and he retires on that account, he shall be entitled on so retiring to receive an ill-health award :

Provided that he shall not be entitled to receive such an award unless it appears that the incapacity is likely to be permanent.

(2) If the fireman has not, at the time when he so retires, completed ten years' pensionable service, the said award shall be a gratuity, unless the incapacity is occasioned by an injury received in the execution of the fireman's duty without his own default.

(3) Save as provided in paragraph (2) of this Article, an ill-health award shall be a pension (hereinafter referred to as an " ill-health pension ").

(4) The amount of an ill-health award shall be determined in accordance with the Second Schedule to this Scheme.

(5) Where a fireman retires in circumstances in which he is entitled to an ill-health award, Articles 1 and 2 of this Scheme shall not apply in respect of his said retirement. [1097]

4. Widow's ordinary benefit.—(1) Where any person who has completed three years' pensionable service—

(a) dies while serving as a fireman ; or

(b) dies while in receipt of a pension under this Scheme ; or

(c) retires on account of any disease or injury and subsequently (without any intervening period of service as a fireman) dies in consequence of that disease or injury, his widow shall be entitled to a widow's ordinary pension.

The amount of the said pension shall be determined in accordance with the Third Schedule to this Scheme.

(2) Where a person dies while serving as a fireman and his widow is not entitled to a pension under this Article, she shall be entitled to a widow's ordinary gratuity.

The amount of the said gratuity shall be determined in accordance with the Fourth Schedule to this Scheme.

(3) Where a widow is entitled to a pension under this Article, and the fire authority are satisfied that there are sufficient reasons for granting her a gratuity in lieu of a pension, they may in their discretion and with her consent commute the pension for a gratuity. [1098]

5. Child's ordinary allowance.—(1) Where any person—

(a) dies while serving as a fireman ; or

(b) having served as a fireman, dies while in receipt of a pension under this Scheme ; or

(c) retires on account of any disease or injury and subsequently (without any intervening period of service as a fireman) dies in consequence of that disease or injury, any child of his who has not attained the prescribed age at the date of the death shall be entitled to a child's ordinary allowance.

The amount of the said allowance shall be determined in accordance with Part I of the Fifth Schedule to this Scheme ; but the provisions of this Article and of the said Part I shall have effect subject to the provisions of Part II of that Schedule.

(2) For the purposes of this Scheme the prescribed age is the age of sixteen years ;

Provided that if on attaining the age of sixteen years the child is in receipt of full-time education, the prescribed age in his case shall be the age which he attains on whichever is the earlier of the following dates :—

(a) the date on which he first ceases to receive full-time education after attaining the age of sixteen years ;

(b) the thirty-first day of July next following the date on which he attains the age of sixteen years.

(3) Where a child is entitled to an allowance under this Article, and the fire authority are satisfied that there are sufficient reasons for the grant of a gratuity in lieu of an allowance, they may in their discretion and with the consent of the child's guardian commute the allowance for a gratuity. [1099]

6. Fireman's special pension.—(1) Where an ill-health pension is payable to any person on the ground that he has been incapacitated for the performance of his duty by infirmity of mind or body, and that pension, when increased by the amount of such additional benefit, if any, as is payable to him, is less than the minimum injury award appropriate to his case, he shall be entitled to receive from the fire authority by which the ill-health pension is payable a special pension equal to the deficiency.

The minimum injury award appropriate to any particular case shall be determined in accordance with the Sixth Schedule to this Scheme.

(2) A special pension shall not be payable under this Article unless either—

(a) the infirmity of mind or body was occasioned by an injury received by the fireman in the execution of his duties as a fireman without his own default; or

(b) the infirmity of mind or body, though not occasioned by such an injury, has been so substantially aggravated by such an injury that, if the man had not received that injury, he would not have had to retire at the time when he in fact retired.

(3) In this Article the expression "additional benefit" means:—

(a) any injury benefit or displacement pension payable under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946; and

(b) any sickness benefit payable under the National Insurance Act, 1946.

(4) For the purposes of this Article no account shall be taken of so much of a disablement pension as represents an increase payable under section fifteen of the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946.

(5) Where a person is entitled to an ill-health pension on his retirement, and his retirement is attributable to any injury or disease in respect of which he receives a disablement gratuity under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, this Article shall apply with respect to that ill-health pension as if he were entitled during the relevant period to a disablement pension under that Act of such amount as would be produced by converting the gratuity into an annuity for that period.

In this paragraph the expression "the relevant period" means the period taken into account, in accordance with section twelve of the said Act of 1946, for the purpose of making the assessment by reference to which the gratuity became payable. [1100]

General note.—New sub-paragraphs have been substituted for sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (2) and for sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph (3), supra, by the Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 396).

7. Widow's special pension.—(1) Where a fireman dies from the effects of an injury received in the execution of his duties as a fireman without his own default, or where a person, having retired as a result of such an injury as aforesaid, dies from its effects, his widow shall be entitled to a widow's special pension.

(2) The amount of a widow's special pension shall be determined in accordance with the Seventh Schedule to this Scheme.

(3) Where a widow is entitled to a pension under this Article, she shall not be entitled under this Scheme to a widow's ordinary pension or a widow's ordinary gratuity in respect of the death of the same person.

(4) Where a widow is entitled to a pension under this Article, and the fire authority are satisfied that there are sufficient reasons for granting her a gratuity in lieu of a pension, they may in their discretion and with her consent commute the pension for a gratuity. [1101]

8. Child's special allowance.—(1) Where a fireman dies from the effects of an injury received in the execution of his duties as a fireman without his own default, or where a person, having retired as a result of such an injury as aforesaid, dies from its effects, any child of his who has not attained the prescribed age at the date of the death shall be entitled to a child's special allowance.

(3) Where a child is entitled to an allowance under this Article, he shall not be entitled to a child's ordinary allowance under this Scheme in respect of the death of the same person.

(4) Where a child is entitled to an allowance under this Article, and the fire authority are satisfied that there are sufficient reasons for the grant of a gratuity in lieu of an allowance, they may in their discretion and with the consent of the child's guardian commute the allowance for a gratuity. [1102]

9. Gratuities for dependants other than widows and children.—Where a person dies while serving as a fireman, or, having served as a fireman, dies while in receipt of a pension under this Scheme, the fire authority may, if they think fit, grant a gratuity to any of his relatives who was substantially dependent on him at the time of his death, and who is not entitled to any pension, gratuity or allowance under any other provision of this Scheme. [1103]

10. Injury or disease attributable to war service.—(1) Where any person who becomes a fireman—

(a) has, before becoming a fireman, received or contracted any injury or disease while serving in His Majesty's forces or while engaged in war work; and the following provisions of this Article shall have effect in his case.

(2) If he dies in consequence of the injury or disease—

(a) while serving as a fireman; or

(b) while in receipt of a pension under this Scheme; or

(c) after having retired on account of the injury or disease,

the fire authority may—

(i) where on his death a gratuity becomes payable to his widow under any other provision of this Scheme, pay to her, in lieu of the gratuity, a pension at such rate, not exceeding the marginal rate specified in Part I of the Ninth Schedule to this Scheme, as the fire authority may determine;

(ii) where on his death a pension becomes payable to his widow under any other provision of this Scheme, and the rate at which the pension is payable is less than the marginal rate specified in the said Part I, pay the pension at such increased rate, not exceeding the marginal rate so specified, as the fire authority may determine;

(iii) where on his death an allowance becomes payable to any child of his under any other provision of this Scheme, and the rate at which the allowance is payable is less than the marginal rate specified in Part II of the Ninth Schedule to this Scheme, pay the allowance at such increased rate, not exceeding the marginal rate so specified, as the fire authority may determine:

Provided that where in the exercise of their discretion under this paragraph the fire authority decide to pay a pension to a widow in lieu of a gratuity, and the marginal rate specified in Part I of the Ninth Schedule to this Scheme is in that case less than £30 a year, the pension shall be paid at the rate of £30 a year.

(3) If he dies in consequence of the injury or disease after having retired on account of the injury or disease, and he is survived by a relative of his, not being his widow or child, and the said relative was substantially dependent on him at the time of his death, the fire authority may (without prejudice to their powers under any other provision of this Scheme) pay a gratuity to that relative.

(4) If he becomes incapacitated for the performance of his duties as a fireman in consequence of the injury or disease and retires on that account, then—

(a) where on his retirement a gratuity becomes payable to him under any other provision of this Scheme, the fire authority may pay to him, in lieu of the gratuity, a pension at such rate, not exceeding the marginal rate specified in Part III of the Ninth Schedule to this Scheme, as the fire authority may determine; and

(b) where on his retirement a pension becomes payable to him under any other provision of this Scheme, and the rate at which the pension is payable is less than the marginal rate specified in the said Part III, the fire authority may pay the pension at such increased rate, not exceeding the marginal rate so specified, as the fire authority may determine :

Provided that where in the exercise of their discretion under this paragraph the fire authority decide to pay a pension to any person in lieu of a gratuity, and the marginal rate specified in the said Part III is in his case less than one-twelfth of his pensionable pay, the pension shall be paid at the rate of one-twelfth of his pensionable pay. [1104]

11. General rules as to pensions, allowances and gratuities.—The provisions of this Scheme with respect to pensions, allowances and gratuities shall have effect subject to the general rules set out in the Tenth Schedule to this Scheme. [1105]

12. Change of brigade with consent of fire authority.—(1) Where a fireman retires from the brigade in which he is employed in order to become a fireman in another brigade, and he retires from the first-mentioned brigade with the written consent of the fire authority by whom that brigade is maintained, no pension or gratuity shall be payable to him on his retiring from that brigade.

(2) For the purposes of this Article consent to a fireman's retiring from a brigade may be given after he has left the brigade, but only if he has applied to the fire authority for such consent while still a member of the brigade. [1106]

13. Allocation of superannuation benefits.—(1) If before retiring with a fireman's ordinary pension a fireman—

(a) gives notice to the fire authority by whom the pension will be payable of his intention to surrender a portion of the pension not exceeding one-third thereof ;

(b) nominates the person in whose favour the surrender is to take effect ; and

(c) provides the fire authority with such evidence of his good health as the authority consider satisfactory, the pension shall be reduced accordingly, and after his death the fire authority shall pay to the person so nominated, if that person survives him, a pension of such amount as, according to tables from time to time prepared by the Government Actuary, is actuarially equivalent, as at the time when the fireman's ordinary pension first became payable, to that part of the pension which he has surrendered.

(2) A fireman shall not be entitled under this Article to surrender a part of his pension in favour of any person other than his wife unless the fire authority are satisfied that that person is substantially dependent on him when he gives notice of his desire to surrender. [1107]

PART II

COUNTING OF SERVICE

14. Pensionable service on and after the appointed day.—(1) Subject as hereinafter provided, the expression " pensionable service " in this Scheme means whole-time service as a fireman.

(2) There shall not be included in a person's period of pensionable service—

(a) any period during which he is absent from duty as a fireman as a result of sickness or injury which is certified by a duly qualified medical practitioner to be due to his own misconduct or vicious habits ;

(b) any period during which he is suspended from such duty as a result of misconduct.

Where a person is suspended from duty pending the investigation of a charge of misconduct against him, then, if misconduct is established, his suspension pending the investigation shall be treated for the purposes of this paragraph as suspension as a result of misconduct, but if misconduct is not established, his said suspension shall not be treated for the purposes of this paragraph as suspension as a result of misconduct.

(3) Where a fireman is absent from service without pay and the provisions of the last preceding paragraph do not apply, the fire authority may, at any time while he is a fireman in their service, resolve that the whole or any part of the period of absence shall be included in his period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme.

Subject to any such resolution, no period of absence without pay shall be counted as a period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme.

(4) Where by virtue of any such resolution as aforesaid any period falls to be counted as a period of pensionable service, the fireman shall become liable to pay to the fire authority the contributions which would have been payable by him for that period if he had been paid at the rate applicable to his case.

(5) Where a person serves as a fireman before attaining the age of twenty years, his service before attaining that age shall not be counted as pensionable service :

Provided that if a fireman who has not attained that age dies or is incapacitated for the performance of his duty in consequence of an injury received in the execution of his duty without his own default, the like pensions, gratuities and allowances shall be payable in respect of the death as would have been payable if the whole of his service as a fireman had been pensionable service. [1108]

15. Service before the appointed day.—(1) The provisions of this Article shall have effect in the case of any person who becomes a fireman on the appointed day and who, immediately before that day, was serving in a permanent capacity in the National Fire Service.

(2) If the said person was, immediately before the appointed day, subject to the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, his pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme shall include the period of service which would have counted in his case as a period of approved service for the purposes of the said Act of 1925 if he had retired immediately before the appointed day.

Where the said person has been employed by a local authority before the appointed day in service which would have been approved service for the purposes of the said Act of 1925, if a certificate had been duly given with respect thereto under section six of that Act, and the said local authority are satisfied that the said service was diligent and faithful service, the authority may certify accordingly, and any such certificate shall, for the purposes of this paragraph, have the like effect as a certificate duly given in accordance with the said section six.

(3) If the said person was, immediately before the appointed day, subject to any such arrangements as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of section twenty-seven of the principal Act, his pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme shall include the period of service which would have counted in his case for the purposes of the said arrangements if he had retired immediately before the appointed day.

Where the said person has been employed by a local or police authority before the appointed day in service which would have been pensionable service for the purposes of any such arrangements as aforesaid if a certificate had been duly given with respect to that service in accordance with any provision in that behalf contained in the arrangements, and the local or police authority are satisfied that the said service was diligent and faithful service, they may certify accordingly, and any such certificate shall, for the purposes of this paragraph, have the like effect as a certificate duly given in accordance with the said provision.

This paragraph shall not apply to a person who was, immediately before the appointed day, subject to any such arrangements as aforesaid by reason of having been a member of a police force, unless his duty as a member of that force, at the time when he was last employed therein before the appointed day, was or included the duty of serving as a fireman.

(4) If the said person is not a person to whom paragraph (2) or paragraph (3) of this Article applies, the period ending with the appointed day during which he has been continuously employed as a permanent employee in whole-time service in the National Fire Service shall be treated as a period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme, if he pays to the fire authority by whom he is employed as a fireman on the appointed day such sum as is prescribed in his case by the Eleventh Schedule to this Scheme :

Provided that for the purposes of this paragraph no account shall be taken of any period during which he has served before attaining the age of twenty years.

(5) If the said person is not a person to whom paragraph (2) or paragraph (3) of this Article applies, but he has, on or after the third day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, been employed in whole-time service in a fire brigade maintained by a local authority under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, or in the Auxiliary Fire Service, or in the National Fire Service, one-half of the period during which he has been so employed shall be treated as a period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme, if he pays to the fire authority by whom he is employed as a fireman on the appointed day such sum as is prescribed in his case by the Eleventh Schedule to this Scheme:

Provided that for the purposes of this paragraph no account shall be taken of any period during which he has served before attaining the age of twenty years or of any period during which he was permanently employed in the National Fire Service.

(6) If the said person was, immediately before the appointed day, pensionable in respect of his service in the National Fire Service by virtue of the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939, paragraphs (3), (4) and (5) of this Article shall not apply in his case, but his pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme shall include three-quarters of the period of service which would have counted in his case for the purpose of the appropriate pension arrangements if he had retired immediately before the appointed day.

In this paragraph the expression "appropriate pension arrangements" means any arrangements for the payment of pensions in respect of service in any such civil capacity as is specified in the first column of the Schedule to the said Act of 1939.

(7) The Secretary of State may, after consultation with any local authority with whom it appears to him to be desirable to consult, direct that paragraph (6) of this Article shall, in its application to any particular person specified in the direction, have effect as if the words "three-quarters of" were omitted therefrom.

(8) If the said person was, immediately before the appointed day, pensionable in respect of his service in the National Fire Service by virtue of the Teachers Superannuation (War Service) Act, 1939, or of the Education (Scotland) (War Service Superannuation) Act, 1939, paragraphs (4) and (5) of this Article shall not apply in his case, but his pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme shall include three-quarters of the period of service which would have counted in his case for the purposes of Part II of the Teachers (Superannuation) Act, 1925, or of any scheme made under section twenty-one of the said Act of 1925, or for the purposes of the Education (Scotland) (Superannuation) Acts, 1919 to 1939, or of any Act amending those Acts, or of any scheme made under those Acts or any of them, if he had retired immediately before the appointed day.

(9) The supplementary provisions contained in the Twelfth Schedule to this Scheme shall have effect with respect to the counting of service before the appointed day in the case of persons to whom this Article applies. [1109]

16. Service before the appointed day of persons in the armed forces on that day.—(1) Where any person, having been employed in employment to which this Article applies, has, before the appointed day, ceased to be employed in such employment in order to become a member of the armed forces of the Crown, then if—

(a) he is a member of those forces on the appointed day; and

(b) his service in those forces between his so ceasing as aforesaid and the appointed day has not been subject to any interruption; and

(c) he next ceases to be a member of those forces within one year from the appointed day; and

(d) within three months after next ceasing to be a member of those forces, he becomes a fireman without any intervening period of service in any other capacity, one-half of the period during which he has been employed in employment to which this Article applies shall be treated as a period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme, if he pays to the fire authority by whom he is first employed as a fireman such sum as is prescribed in his case by the Eleventh Schedule to this Scheme.

(2) The employment to which this Article applies is employment in a temporary capacity, on or after the third day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, and before the appointed day, in a fire brigade maintained by a local authority under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, or in the Auxiliary Fire Service, or in the National Fire Service:

Provided that for the purposes of this Article no account shall be taken of any period during which a person has been employed before attaining the age of twenty years. [1110]

17. Service before the appointed day of persons who have been cadets or probationers.—(1) Where any person has ceased, on or after the third day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, and before the appointed day, to be a member of a fire brigade maintained by a local authority in order to serve in His Majesty's forces, or in order to be engaged in war work, and, at the time when he so ceased he was not a professional fireman as defined by paragraph (2) of section twenty-three of the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, and had not attained the age of twenty years, and was not subject to the provisions of any pension scheme in respect of his service in the brigade, then, if he is a member of the National Fire Service immediately before the appointed day and becomes a fireman on that day, there shall be included in his period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme the whole of any period after he has attained the age of twenty years and before the appointed day during which he has served in the armed forces of the Crown or has been engaged in war work, but subject to his paying to the fire authority by which he is employed as a fireman on the appointed day a sum equal to the total amount of the rateable deductions which would have been made from his pay in respect of the last-mentioned period if, throughout that period, he had been a professional fireman as defined by the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, and had been paid as such at the rate at which ordinary firemen were, immediately before the eighteenth day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-one, paid by the local authority in whose fire brigade he last served before the appointed day.

(2) Where on the establishment of the National Fire Service any person serving as a probationer in a fire brigade maintained by a local authority ceased so to serve in order to become a member of the National Fire Service, and he was not, at the time when he so ceased, subject to the provisions of any pension scheme in respect of his service in the fire brigade maintained by the local authority, then, if he is serving in a permanent capacity in the National Fire Service immediately before the appointed day and becomes a fireman on that day, Article 15 of this Scheme shall not apply in his case, but there shall be included in his period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme the whole of the period during which he has served after attaining the age of twenty years in the National Fire Service, but subject to his paying to the fire authority by which he is employed as a fireman on the appointed day a sum equal to the total amount of the rateable deductions which would have been made from his pay in respect of the last-mentioned period if, throughout that period, he had been a professional fireman as defined by the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, and had been paid as such at the rate at which ordinary firemen were, immediately before the eighteenth day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-one, paid by the local authority in whose fire brigade he was serving immediately before that day. [1111]

18. Service before the appointed day in certain special cases.—(1) Where a person who becomes a fireman on the appointed day has, before that day, been engaged in service as a member of a police force or as a servant of the Crown, but that service cannot be counted as pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme by virtue of any other provision of this Scheme, the fire authority by whom he is employed on that day may, subject to his paying to them such sum as they may direct, permit the whole or any part of that service to be reckoned in his case as pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme :

Provided that a fire authority shall not exercise the powers conferred by this paragraph without the approval of the Secretary of State.

(2) Where in the case of any person service in a police force is reckoned as pensionable service by virtue of this Article, the authority by whom he was employed in that service may make in respect thereof to the fire authority by whom he is employed on the appointed day such payments as may be approved by the Secretary of State. [1112]

General note.—New Articles 18A and 18B have been added at this point by the Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 396).

19. Discontinuous service, and service in two or more brigades.—(1) Where a person ceases to serve as a fireman in any particular brigade, the period of pensionable service which he has then completed (including any period of service before the appointed day which counts or might count in his case as a period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme) shall not, except in so far as is expressly provided by this Scheme, be taken into account for the purpose of applying this Scheme in relation to any subsequent period during which he serves as a fireman in the same or another brigade.

(2) Where a fireman retires without a pension and subsequently (without any intervening period of service as a fireman) serves as a fireman for a further period in the brigade from which he so retired, the period of pensionable service which he was entitled to reckon for the purposes of this Scheme on so retiring shall be taken into account for the purpose of applying this Scheme in relation to the said further period, but subject to his repaying to the fire authority any sum which became payable to him at the end of the first of the two periods by way of gratuity or return of aggregate contributions.

(3) Where a fireman retires without a pension and subsequently (without any intervening period of service as a fireman) serves as a fireman for a further period in any brigade other than that from which he so retired, the period of pensionable service which he was entitled to reckon for the purposes of this Scheme on so retiring shall be taken into account for the purpose of applying this Scheme in relation to the said further period :

Provided that the foregoing provisions of this paragraph shall not have effect unless the fire authority by whom he is employed during the said further period so allow ; and the operation of the said provisions shall be conditional upon his paying to that authority any sum which became payable to him at the end of the first of the two periods by way of gratuity or return of aggregate contributions.

(4) Where, with such consent as is mentioned in Article 12 of this Scheme, a fireman retires from the brigade in which he is employed in order to become a fireman in another brigade, the period of pensionable service which he would have been entitled to reckon for the purposes of this Scheme on the occasion of his retirement from the first-mentioned brigade if he had retired from it without such consent as aforesaid shall be taken into account for the purpose of applying this Scheme in relation to his next subsequent period of pensionable service. [1113]

PART III

(b) in any other case, one shilling and twopence a week less than five per cent. of his pensionable pay.

(2) The contribution upon each instalment of pay shall fall due at the same time as that instalment, and may, without prejudice to any other method of payment, be discharged by way of a rateable deduction made by the authority from the said instalment.

(3) Where any person who has served before the appointed day in a fire brigade maintained by a local authority or in the National Fire Service—

(a) is, on the appointed day, a member of His Majesty's forces, and

(b) after next ceasing to be a member of those forces, becomes a fireman without any intervening period of service in another capacity, the provisions of paragraph (1) of this Article shall apply in his case as if for the reference therein to the appointed day there were substituted a reference to the first day on which he becomes a fireman. [1114]

21. Repayment of contributions generally.—(1) Where a fireman retires without a pension or gratuity, the fire authority shall repay to him his aggregate contributions :

Provided that where with such consent as is mentioned in Article 12 of this Scheme the fireman retires in order to become a fireman in another brigade, his aggregate contributions shall not be repaid to him on his so retiring.

(2) Where a fireman dies while serving as such, and no pension, allowance or gratuity is payable under this Scheme on his death, the fire authority shall pay

MEMBERS OF A FIRE BRIGADE WHO ARE NOT FIREMEN

23. Part-time members of a fire brigade.—(1) Where, without his own default, a part-time member of a fire brigade suffers any injury in the execution of his duties as a member of the brigade, or contracts any disease in the execution of his said duties, the provisions of this Article shall have effect in his case.

(2) If he retires in consequence of the injury or disease, the fire authority shall pay to him such pension or gratuity, if any, as, subject to subsection (3) of section twenty-six of the principal Act, may be approved by the Secretary of State.

(3) If he dies from the effects of the injury or disease, either while still a member of the brigade or after retiring therefrom, the fire authority shall pay to any relative of his who survives him such pension, allowance or gratuity, if any, as, subject to subsection (3) of section twenty-six of the principal Act, may be approved by the Secretary of State.

(2) If he retires in consequence of the injury or disease, the fire authority may pay to him such pension, if any, as the fire authority think fit:

Provided that the said pension shall not, when added to such additional benefit, if any, as is payable to him, exceed the minimum injury award which would have been appropriate to his case if—

(a) he had been a fireman at the time when he suffered the injury or contracted the disease; and
(b) the injury or disease had been suffered or contracted in the execution of his duties as a fireman without his own default; and
(c) he had at the time of his retirement been entitled to count ten years' pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme; and
(d) his pay as a fireman immediately before his retirement had been the pay appropriate to an ordinary fireman in the brigade in question, exclusive of increments.

(3) If he dies from the effects of the injury or disease, either while still a member of the brigade or after retiring therefrom, and he is survived by any relative of his to whom a pension or allowance would have been payable under this Scheme on his death if the prescribed conditions had been fulfilled, the fire authority may pay a pension, or, as the case may be, an allowance to that relative:

Provided that the pension or allowance paid to any person under this paragraph shall not, when increased by such additional benefit, if any, as is paid to that person, exceed the pension or allowance which would have been payable to that person under this Scheme if the prescribed conditions had been fulfilled.

For the purposes of this paragraph the prescribed conditions are :—

Provided that the powers and duties of a fire authority under this paragraph shall not be exercisable in the case of any person who, at the time when he retired with the ill-health pension, was entitled to reckon for the purposes of this Scheme a period of pensionable service of twenty-five years or more, and shall cease to be exercisable in the case of any person after the time when, if he had continued to serve as a fireman in the brigade, he would have been entitled to retire and receive an ordinary pension or would have reached the age prescribed for his retirement by his conditions of service.

(2) Where a person's pension is cancelled under this Article, the fire authority shall, if he presents himself for service in the brigade at any time before the expiration of one month from the cancellation of the pension, permit him to resume service in the brigade forthwith in a rank not lower than that which he held when he retired with the pension ; and if the fire authority fail to comply with the requirements of this paragraph the cancellation shall be void and shall be deemed never to have taken effect.

(3) Where on the cancellation of his ill-health pension under this Article a person resumes service as a fireman in the brigade from which he retired with the pension, the period of pensionable service taken into account for the purposes of this Scheme on his next ceasing to serve as a fireman in that brigade shall be increased by the period of pensionable service which he was entitled to reckon for the purposes of this Scheme when he retired with the ill-health pension. [1119]

26. Revision of fireman's special pension.—(1) Subject as hereinafter provided, where a special pension is payable under Article 6 of this Scheme the fire authority shall, at such reasonable intervals as they think proper, consider whether the extent of the pensioner's disablement has altered : and if after such consideration the fire authority find that the extent of the pensioner's disablement has substantially altered, the pension shall be revised accordingly.

28. Withdrawal of pensions and allowances for misconduct.—Where any person to whom a pension or allowance is payable under this Scheme—

(a) is sentenced for any offence to penal servitude or to imprisonment for a term exceeding twelve months, or the fire authority may withdraw the pension or allowance either wholly or in part and either temporarily or permanently ; and so much of any pension or allowance as is withdrawn under this Article may, to such extent as the authority think fit, be applied by the authority for the benefit of any dependant of the person to whom it would otherwise have been payable. [1122]

32. Appeal against opinion of fire authority's medical practitioner.—(1) Where for the purposes of any decision which falls to be made by a fire authority under this Scheme any person is medically examined by a medical practitioner selected by the authority, the opinion of the practitioner shall be given in writing to the authority.

(2) If within fourteen days of being informed by the fire authority of the decision the said person applies to the authority for a copy of the opinion, the authority shall supply him with a copy thereof.

(3) If he is dissatisfied with the opinion of which a copy has been so supplied to him, he may, subject to and in accordance with the provisions of the Thirteenth Schedule to this Scheme, appeal against the opinion to an independent person nominated by the Secretary of State (hereinafter referred to as a " medical referee ")

(4) A fire authority shall be bound by any decision on a medical question duly given on any such appeal. [1126]

33. Appeal against decision of fire authority.—(1) Where any person claims that he is entitled to a pension, allowance or gratuity under this Scheme, or to any

35. Payment in certain special cases.—(1) Where any sum is due on account of a pension, and any debt is due to the fire authority from the pensioner, so much of the said sum as does not exceed the debt may be applied by the authority in or towards the satisfaction of the debt.

(2) If it appears to the fire authority that a pensioner is insane or otherwise incapable of managing his affairs, the authority may in their discretion pay the pension or any part thereof to any institution or person having the care of the pensioner, and, in so far as they do not dispose of the pension in that manner, may apply it in such manner as they think fit for the benefit of the pensioner or his dependants.

(3) On the death of a pensioner to whom a sum not exceeding £100 is due on account of a pension, the fire authority may, without probate, confirmation or any other formality or proof of title, pay the said sum to the persons appearing to the authority to be beneficially entitled to the personal estate of the deceased, or, as the authority think fit, pay the said sum to one or more of those persons or distribute it among all or any of those persons in such proportions as the authority may determine.

(4) Where any sum is payable to a minor on account of a pension, the authority may, if they think fit, in lieu of paying the said sum to the minor, pay it to such other person as they may determine.

A person who receives any sum paid under this paragraph shall, subject to and in accordance with any directions of the fire authority, apply the said sum for the minor's benefit.

In the application of this paragraph to Scotland, as well as in its application to England, the expression "minor" means a person who has not attained the age of twenty-one years.

(5) Subject as hereinafter provided, in this Article the expression "pension" means a pension payable under this Scheme and the expression "pensioner" means a person to whom a pension is payable.

(6) This Article shall apply with respect to allowances and gratuities payable under this Scheme as it applies with respect to pensions, and accordingly any reference in this Article to a pension shall be construed as including a reference to any such allowance or gratuity, and any reference therein to a pensioner shall be construed as including a reference to a person to whom any such allowance or gratuity is payable.

(7) A fire authority shall obtain a good discharge by applying or paying any sum in the manner provided by this Article. [1129]

36. Assignment.—(1) Every assignment of or charge on a pension, allowance or gratuity payable under this Scheme shall be void:

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall invalidate any assignment or charge in favour of a single assignee or chargee who is a relative of the person to whom the pension, allowance or gratuity is payable, or in favour of two or more assignees or chargees all of whom are relatives of the said person.

(2) Where any pension, allowance or gratuity is payable under this Scheme to a person who is bankrupt, any sums which are paid or payable to him on account of the pension, allowance or gratuity while he is bankrupt shall not pass to his trustee in bankruptcy or to any other person acting on behalf of his creditors. [1130]

PART VIII

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTAL

Provided that if the period of his service in the said forces which terminates at that time (hereafter in this Article referred to as "the said period") is brought to an end by his death, then, whatever the cause of his death, this Scheme shall apply with respect to him as if the death were not attributable to an injury or disease received or contracted in the execution of his duties.

(2) Subject to the following provisions of this Article, if the said period is brought to an end otherwise than by his death, this Scheme shall apply with respect to him as if he had retired from the said brigade at the end of that period:

Provided that consent to his said retirement shall be deemed to have been duly given in accordance with Article 12 of this Scheme if it is given on an application made by him at any time before the expiration of one month from the end of the said period.

(3) If within one month from the end of the said period he resumes service as a fireman in the said brigade, then, subject as hereinafter provided, this Scheme shall apply with respect to him as if he had not ceased to be a member of the said brigade on being so called up as aforesaid, but had continued without interruption to serve as a fireman in that brigade until he next ceases so to serve.

(4) If at the end of the said period he is unfit for service as a fireman, but he becomes fit for such service at any time within one year from the end of the said period, then, if the fire authority by whom the said brigade is maintained so allow, paragraph (3) of this Article shall have effect with respect to him as if for the reference therein to the end of the said period there were substituted a reference to the said time.

(5) No contributions shall be payable under this Scheme in respect of any period which is treated as a period of service as a fireman by virtue only of the provisions of this Article. [1131]

38. Reduction of benefits and contributions in certain cases.—(1) Except as hereinafter provided, every fireman's ordinary pension, every short service pension and every ill-health pension shall, on the pensioner attaining the age of sixty-five years, be reduced in accordance with the Table contained in the Fourteenth Schedule to this Scheme.

(2) Paragraph (1) of this Article shall not apply in the case of a pension payable to any person who has served before the appointed day in a fire brigade maintained by a local authority or in the National Fire Service, unless, within the time and in the manner hereinafter provided, he elects to pay contributions at the lower rate; and, if he so elects—

(a) the rate at which contributions are payable by him under Article 20 of this Scheme shall be reduced by one shilling a week; and

(b) the said reduction shall take effect as from the beginning of the appointed day, and the fire authority shall refund to him such sums, if any, as may be necessary to secure that he receives the full benefit of the said reduction.

A person shall not be competent to make such an election except while he is actually serving as a fireman; and any such election must be made by giving notice in writing of the election to the fire authority within the period of two months beginning with the appointed day.

(3) Where any person who has served before the appointed day in a fire brigade maintained by a local authority or in the National Fire Service—

(a) is, on the appointed day, a member of His Majesty's forces; and

(b) after next ceasing to be a member of those forces, becomes a fireman without any intervening period of service in any other capacity, the provisions of paragraph (2) of this Article shall apply in his case as if for each reference therein to the appointed day there were substituted a reference to the first day on which he became a fireman. [1132]

General note.—Paragraph (2), supra, is to take effect as if the words "four months" were substituted for the words "two months" therein (Firemen's Pension Scheme (No. 2) Order, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 1094), post).

39. Exercise of options under principal Act.—A notice given for the purposes of subsection (2) of section twenty-seven of the principal Act must be given within the period of two months beginning with the time when the person giving the notice first becomes a fireman, and must be given to the fire authority by whom he is first employed as such. [1133]

General note.—This article is to take effect as if the words "four months" were substituted for the words "two months" therein (Firemen's Pension Scheme (No. 2) Order, 1948, supra).

40. Exclusion of workmen's compensation rights.—Where—

(a) a person dies from the effects of any injury or disease, and on his death his widow becomes entitled to a pension under this Scheme or any child of his becomes entitled to an allowance under this Scheme, or

(b) a person retires from service as a fireman in consequence of any injury or disease, and becomes entitled to a pension under this Scheme on so retiring,

no compensation shall be payable to any person under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1925 to 1945, in respect of that injury or disease or the consequences thereof. [1134]

41. Right of fire authority to receive payments in respect of previous service.—(1) Where with such consent as is mentioned in Article 12 of this Scheme a fireman retires from the brigade in which he is employed in order to become a fireman in another brigade, the fire authority with whose consent he so retired shall pay to the fire authority by whom the second-mentioned brigade is maintained such sum as may be determined in accordance with a scale approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary of State.

(2) Where in the case of any person a period of service is treated as a period of pensionable service by virtue of paragraph (4) or paragraph (5) of Article 15 of this Scheme, the Secretary of State shall pay to the fire authority by whom that person is employed on the appointed day such sum as may be determined in accordance with a scale approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary of State.

(3) Where in the case of any person a period of service is treated as a period of pensionable service by virtue of Article 16 of this Scheme, the Secretary of State shall pay to the fire authority by whom that person is first employed as a fireman such sum as may be determined in accordance with a scale approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary of State.

(4) Where a period of service is included in a person's period of pensionable service by virtue of Article 17 of this Scheme, and the authority in whose fire brigade he was last employed before the appointed day is not the authority by whom he is employed on that day, the first-mentioned authority shall pay to the second-mentioned authority such sum as the Secretary of State may direct. [1135]

General note.—The Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 390) has added after the words "this Scheme" in paragraph (2) of this Article the words "or by virtue of paragraph (2) of Article 189 of this Scheme".

42. Expenses and receipts of fire authorities.—(1) Every council of a county borough which is a fire authority for the purposes of the principal Act and which, immediately before the appointed day, maintained a fire brigade pensions fund under the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, or maintained any similar fund under a local Act, shall continue to maintain that fund and shall pay into that fund—

(a) all sums received by the authority under this Scheme;

(b) in respect of each person employed by the authority as a fireman, a sum equivalent to each contribution which that person is required to make to the authority under this Scheme;

(c) any dividends or interest on the sums for the time being forming part of the said fund by virtue of this Article; and

(d) such other sums, if any, as the authority may resolve to carry into the said fund for the purposes of this Scheme; and shall pay out of the said fund all sums payable by the authority under or for the purposes of this Scheme.

In the application of this paragraph to Scotland the reference to a county borough shall be construed as a reference to any county and to any large burgh.

(2) Every fire authority which is not required to comply with the preceding paragraph of this Article shall maintain a separate account showing all sums received by the authority under this Scheme and all sums paid by the authority under or for the purposes of this Scheme. [1136]

43. Fireman defined.—(1) In this Scheme the expression "fireman" means a whole-time member of a fire brigade maintained under the principal Act who was appointed on terms under which he is or may be required to engage in fire-fighting, except that the said expression does not include any person whose employment is temporary only.

(2) Where a person—

(a) is, immediately before the appointed day, subject to the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925; and

(b) becomes, on that day, a whole-time member of a fire brigade serving the whole or any part of the area of the local authority by whom he was last employed as a member of a fire brigade before the appointed day, he shall, for so long as he continues to be a whole-time member of that brigade, be treated as a fireman for the purposes of this Scheme notwithstanding that he is not such a person as is mentioned in paragraph (1) of this Article:

Provided that if at any time on or after the appointed day he ceases to be a whole-time member of the said brigade, no subsequent period during which he serves as a member of a fire brigade shall be treated as a period of service as a fireman by virtue only of the provisions of this paragraph.

(3) Any reference in this Scheme to a fireman shall, where appropriate, be construed as, or be construed as including, a reference to a person who has been a fireman or who has been entitled to be treated as such by virtue of paragraph (2) of this Article. [1137]

44. Aggregate contributions defined.—(1) Where a period during which a person has continuously served as a fireman in a particular fire brigade is brought to an end by his death, retirement or dismissal, his aggregate contributions for the purposes of this Scheme shall be—

(a) all sums which he has paid by way of contributions under this Scheme in respect of that period of service ; and

(b) where any sum became payable under paragraph (1) of Article 41 of this Scheme on the occasion of his entering on that period of service, so much of the said sum as represents contributions previously made under this Scheme or represents a payment in lieu of contributions made by or in respect of him.

(2) In relation to a person's first period of service as a fireman, his aggregate contributions shall include any payment in lieu of contributions made by or in respect of him.

(3) In this Article the expression " payment in lieu of contributions ", when used in relation to any person, means—

(a) a payment made by him for the purpose of securing the benefits provided by paragraph (4) or paragraph (5) of Article 15 of this Scheme, or by Article 16 or Article 17 or Article 18 of this Scheme, or by the Twelfth Schedule to this Scheme ; and

(b) so much of any sum paid to a fire authority by virtue of regulations made under paragraph (11) of the Fifth Schedule to the principal Act as that fire authority may, subject to any directions of the Secretary of State, determine to treat as a payment in lieu of contributions made in respect of him. [1138]

General note.—A new Article has been substituted for Article 44, supra, by the Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 396).

45. Total and partial disablement.—For the purposes of this Scheme the extent to which a person is disabled shall be determined by reference to the extent to which his earning capacity has been affected, and a person shall be deemed to be totally disabled if, and only if, he is incapable, by reason of infirmity of mind or body, of earning any money in any employment. [1139]

General note.—A new paragraph (2) has been added at this point by the Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 396).

46. Pensionable pay and annual pensionable pay.—(1) In this Scheme the expression " pensionable pay " means the rate which for the time being expresses the whole of a fireman's monetary remuneration as a fireman, including increments which have accrued but not including—

(a) increments which have not accrued ;

(b) allowances in respect of particular expenses ;

(c) remuneration in respect of services not forming part of his duties as a fireman.

(2) For the purpose of determining the benefits payable under this Scheme on a person's death or retirement—

(a) the expression " pensionable pay " means his pensionable pay immediately before the death or retirement or, in a case where he was not serving as a fireman when he died, his pensionable pay immediately before he last ceased to serve as a fireman ; and

(b) the expression " annual pensionable pay " means the annual value of his said pensionable pay.

(3) Where during the relevant period before his death or retirement a person's rank as a fireman has changed, paragraph (2) of this Article shall have effect in his case as if his pensionable pay immediately before the death or retirement were his average pensionable pay during that period :

Provided that where the last change of rank during the relevant period was a promotion, and the said average is less than his pensionable pay immediately before the promotion, paragraph (2) of this Article shall have effect in his case as if his pensionable pay immediately before the death or retirement were his pensionable pay immediately before the promotion.

In this paragraph the expression " the relevant period " means the period of three years ending with the death or retirement, or, if the death or retirement occurs within three years from the beginning of the appointed day, the period beginning with that day and ending with the death or retirement.

(4) Where a person was, immediately before the appointed day, a member of the National Fire Service pensionable as such by virtue of regulations made under the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, paragraph (3) of this Article shall have effect in his case as if—

(a) the period ending at the appointed day during which he has continuously served in the National Fire Service were a period of service as a fireman ;

(b) his pensionable pay during that period were the rate of pay in respect of which he was liable during that period to make contributions or suffer deductions by virtue of the said regulations ; and

(c) for the references in the said paragraph (3) to the appointed day there were substituted references to the beginning of that period. [1140]

General note.—New paragraphs have been substituted for paragraphs (1) and (4), supra, by the Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 396).

47. Posthumous children.—Where a legitimate child is born after his father's death he shall, as from his birth, be entitled to receive any allowance which would have become payable to him under this Scheme on his father's death if he had been born immediately before his father died ; and any reference in this Scheme to an allowance payable on death shall be construed as including a reference to an allowance payable by virtue of this Article. [1141]

48. Interpretation.—(1) In this Scheme, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

" appointed day " means, in relation to England, the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, and in relation to Scotland, the sixteenth day of May, nineteen hundred and forty-eight ;

(2) For the purposes of this Scheme a person's parents shall be deemed to include any person of whom he is the child, and a person's grandparents shall be deemed to include any person who is a parent of a parent of his.

(3) Any reference in this Scheme to an injury received by a fireman in the execution of his duties as a fireman without his own default shall be construed as including a reference to a disease contracted by him in the execution of his said duties without his own default.

(4) Where it appears that a person would not have died at the time when he in fact died if he had not suffered a particular injury or contracted a particular disease, he shall be deemed for the purposes of this Scheme to have died from the effects of that injury or disease.

(5) Any reference in this Scheme to a person's retirement shall, except where the reference is a reference to retirement before the appointed day, or where the reference is made in Part IV of this Scheme, or where for other reasons the context otherwise requires, be construed as a reference to his retirement from service as a fireman.

(6) References in this Scheme to any enactment shall be construed as references to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment, and any reference in this Scheme to the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, shall include a reference to that Act as extended by Regulation 60DA of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939.

THIRD SCHEDULE

WIDOWS' ORDINARY PENSIONS

The pension shall be calculated in accordance with Scheme I :

Provided that where the fireman's period of pensionable service amounts to at least ten years, the pension shall be calculated in accordance with Scheme II in any case in which that Scheme will yield to the widow a higher pension than Scheme I.

The Schemes hereinbefore referred to are as follows :—

SCHEME I

1. Where the death occurs on or after the fifth day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, and the widow is not entitled in right of her husband's insurance to widow's benefit under the National Insurance Act, 1946, or to a retirement pension under that Act, but would have been so entitled if her husband had satisfied the relevant contribution conditions, the pension shall be payable at the following rate, hereinafter referred to as " the prescribed rate " :—

(i) where the husband's rank in the fire service at the time of his death or retirement was not higher than that of sub-officer, £30 a year ;
(ii) where the husband's said rank was higher than that of sub-officer and lower than that of assistant chief officer, £40 a year ; and
(iii) in any other case, £50 a year :

Provided that this paragraph shall not apply in any case in which the widow would have been entitled in right of her husband's insurance to widow's benefit or to a retirement pension under the said Act of 1946 if her husband had not defaulted in the payment of the contributions payable by him thereunder.

In the application of this paragraph to Scotland, for any reference to a sub-officer there shall be substituted a reference to a section leader, and for any reference to an assistant chief officer there shall be substituted a reference to a firemaster.

2. Where the death occurs before the fifth day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, the pension shall be payable at the prescribed rate.

3. Save as provided in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Scheme, the pension shall be of such amount as, together with any increase thereof under the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1944 and 1947, will produce a pension at the prescribed rate.

SCHEME II

1. The pension shall be such that, when it is added to any widow's benefit or retirement pension payable to the widow under the National Insurance Act, 1946, in right of her husband's insurance the total rate of payment is equal to the prescribed percentage of her husband's pensionable pay.

2. The prescribed percentage of the husband's pensionable pay shall be calculated by reference to the length of his pensionable service in accordance with the following Table :—

5. In this Part of this Schedule, the expression " increased allowance ", when used in relation to a child's ordinary allowance, means the amount which would be payable in respect of that allowance by virtue of this Scheme and of the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1944 and 1947, if this Part of this Schedule were not in force.

6. Where the amount by which a child's ordinary allowance is required to be reduced under this Part of this Schedule is greater than the amount of that allowance, then, for so long as the reduction is operative, the allowance shall not be payable. [1149]

Provided that—

(a) nothing in this paragraph shall prevent an ill-health pension from being supplemented by a special pension in accordance with Article 6 of this Scheme, and where an ill-health pension is so supplemented the two pensions shall be treated as one for the purposes of this paragraph ; and

(b) where a surrender has been made in favour of a person under Article 13 of this Scheme, the pension to which that person is entitled by virtue of the surrender shall be disregarded for the purpose of the application of this paragraph in relation to that person.

2. Where a person marries during the period between his last ceasing to be a fireman and his death, no pension shall become payable to his widow under this Scheme on the occasion of his death.

(2) Where a person dies leaving a widow who was living apart from him at the time of his death, then—

Provided that if at any time after her remarriage the woman again becomes a widow, the fire authority may pay the whole or any part of the pension for such period after that time as they think proper.

(2) Where a gratuity becomes payable to a woman under this Scheme on the death of her husband, then, if she subsequently remarries, so much of the gratuity as has not been paid before her remarriage shall not be payable thereafter:

Article 15

TWELFTH SCHEDULE

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS AS TO COUNTING OF SERVICE BEFORE THE APPOINTED DAY

1. Where, if a person to whom paragraph (2) of Article 15 of this Scheme applies had in fact retired immediately before the appointed day, a local authority might have exercised in his case the powers conferred by subsection (2) of section twenty-two of the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925 (but subject to his making to that authority a payment of an amount not exceeding the amount specified in that behalf in the said subsection), the said paragraph (2) shall have effect in his case as if the whole of his past pensionable service had been approved service for the purposes of the said Act of 1925, but subject to his paying to the fire authority by whom he is employed on the appointed day a sum equivalent to the said amount.

In this paragraph the expression "past pensionable service" has the meaning assigned to it by the said section twenty-two.

2.—(1) Where for the purposes of Article 15 of this Scheme it is necessary to determine whether any period of service would have counted in the case of a particular person as a period of approved service for the purposes of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, or the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, if he had retired immediately before the appointed day, that question shall be determined as if the powers conferred by the provisions to which this paragraph applies had ceased to be exercisable immediately before the appointed day:

Provided that where, if the said person had in fact retired immediately before the appointed day, a local authority would, after his retirement, have had a discretion in his case to allow a particular period of service to be reckoned as a period of approved service by virtue of either of the said provisions (but subject to his making a payment to that authority of the amount specified in that provision), that period shall be included in his period of pensionable service for the purposes of this Scheme if he pays a sum equivalent to the said amount to the fire authority by whom he is employed on the appointed day.

(2) The provisions to which this paragraph applies are subsection (2) of section nine of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, and subsection (2) of section eight of the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925.

3. In determining for the purposes of paragraph (6) of Article 15 of this Scheme what period of service would have counted in the case of any particular person for the purposes of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, if he had retired immediately before the appointed day, it shall be assumed that his non-contributing service (as defined by that Act) would have counted for the purposes of that Act to the extent only of one half thereof:

Provided that the preceding provisions of this paragraph shall not have effect in the case of any person who pays to the fire authority by whom he is employed on the appointed day a sum equal to the total amount which would have been payable by him, if he had in fact retired immediately before the appointed day, as a condition of being entitled to the rights conferred by paragraph (ii) of the proviso to paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section eight of the said Act of 1937.

In the application of this paragraph to Scotland, for any reference to the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, there shall be substituted a reference to the Local Government Superannuation (Scotland) Act, 1937. [1159]

General note.—This Schedule has been modified by the Firemen's Pension Scheme Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 396).

9.—(1) Save as hereinafter provided, the expenses of each party to the appeal shall be borne by that party.

(2) Where the medical referee decides in favour of the fire authority, the authority may, unless the referee otherwise directs, require the appellant to pay towards the cost of the appeal such sum not exceeding the referee's total fees and allowances as the authority think fit.

(3) Where the medical referee decides in favour of the appellant, the fire authority shall, unless the referee otherwise directs, refund to the appellant any personal expenses actually and reasonably incurred by the appellant in respect of any such interview as is mentioned in paragraph 5 of this Schedule, and, if any duly qualified medical practitioner chosen by the appellant has attended any such interview, any fees and expenses reasonably paid by the appellant in respect of such attendance.

(4) If in connection with any payment claimed under this paragraph any question arises as to whether the decision of the medical referee is in favour of the fire authority or the appellant, that question shall be decided by the referee, or, in default of a decision by the referee, by the Secretary of State.

10. An appellant shall be deemed to have received any information, notice or document which he is entitled to receive for the purposes of this Schedule if that information, notice or document has been duly posted in a letter addressed to the appellant at his last known place of residence. [1160]

FIRE SERVICES (GRANT) REGULATIONS, 1948

S.I. 1948 No. 1690

July 20, 1948

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section twenty-five of the Fire Services Act, 1947, I [i.e., the Secretary of State] hereby, with the consent of the Treasury, make the following Regulations :—

1.—(1) Subject to the provisions of these Regulations, there shall be payable by the Secretary of State to each authority in respect of each year a grant equal to twenty-five per cent. of the net approved expenditure incurred by that authority in respect of that year.

(2) For the purposes of these Regulations no expenditure shall be treated as approved expenditure unless it was in the determination of the Secretary of State incurred in connection with the provision of fire services, and in reckoning for the said purposes the net approved expenditure incurred by an authority in respect of each year the following provisions shall have effect, that is to say :—

(a) no expenditure shall be reckoned unless it was incurred with the prior approval of the Secretary of State, or is expenditure either of a class in respect of which, or incurred in circumstances in which, the Secretary of State has dispensed with the need for obtaining such approval,

(b) if the amount of any item of expenditure is in the determination of the Secretary of State excessive, the excess of that amount over the amount determined by the Secretary of State to be reasonable shall not be reckoned, and

(c) from the gross amount of the expenditure reckoned in accordance with the preceding provisions of this paragraph there shall be deducted such amount as in the determination of the Secretary of State ought to be deducted in respect of that year having regard to the sums which were, or ought to have been, received by that authority in connection with the provision of fire services. [1169]

2. The payment of any grant to an authority in pursuance of these Regulations in respect of any year shall be dependent upon the Secretary of State being satisfied that the following conditions are fulfilled, that is to say :—

(a) that the authority have complied with any requirements imposed upon them by or under the Act,

(b) that efficient provision of fire services is made in the area of the authority,

(c) that the authority have submitted to the Secretary of State at such time and in such form as he may have required estimates of the expenditure to be incurred, and the amounts to be received, by them in that year in connection with the provision of fire services,

(d) that the authority have submitted to the Secretary of State as soon as may be after the end of that year a financial statement, in a form approved by him, relating to the expenditure and income of that authority and of any committee (including a joint committee) thereof in connection with the provision of fire services,

(e) that the authority have afforded all reasonable facilities to the district auditor appointed under the Local Government Act, 1933, for the district comprising the area of the authority for the examination of the aforesaid financial statement and of any books, records or other documents of the authority or of such committee as aforesaid relating thereto, and

(f) that the authority have supplied to the Secretary of State such information, records or other documents as the Secretary of State may have required, and if the Secretary of State is not satisfied as aforesaid, he may withhold the grant in whole or in part permanently or for such time as he may determine. [1170]

3. To an authority to which grants are payable under these Regulations there may be apportioned in respect of each year a fraction, determined in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to these Regulations, of the expenditure incurred in that year by the Secretary of State under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section twenty-three of the Act and under subsection (2) of the said section (which provisions relate to the establishment and maintenance of a central training institution), and an amount equal to the said fraction may be deducted from the grant payable under these Regulations to that authority in respect of the said year. [1171]

4.—(1) The payment of any grant to an authority in pursuance of these Regulations shall be made at such times and in such manner as the Secretary of State may determine, and, pending the final determination of the grant payable to any authority in respect of any year, payments on account of the estimated amount thereof, but not exceeding ninety per cent. of the said estimated amount, may be made from time to time.

(2) If in any case the total amount of the payments which have been made to an authority under this Regulation in respect of any year exceeds the total amount of the grant payable to that authority under these Regulations in respect of that year, the excess may, without prejudice to any other method of recovery by the Secretary of State, be deducted from any payment made under these Regulations in respect of a later year.

(3) The inclusion by the Secretary of State of the amount of any expenditure in a calculation of the amount of any payment on account shall not be deemed to constitute an approval of the Secretary of State, for the purposes of paragraph (2) of Regulation 1 of these Regulations, of the incurring of any item of that expenditure. [1172]

5.—(1) In these Regulations—

(a) "the Act" means the Fire Services Act, 1947;

(b) "authority" means an authority in England or Wales which for the time being is constituted a fire authority by the Act or any combination scheme made thereunder;

(c) "year" means the period beginning with the first day of April in each year and ending with the thirty-first day of March in the succeeding year.

(2) In these Regulations any reference to expenditure incurred by the Secretary of State under any provisions of section twenty-three of the Act shall be construed as a reference to the net expenditure incurred by him thereunder after the deduction from the gross expenditure so incurred by him of any sums received by him the receipt of which is attributable to his functions under the said provisions.

(3) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1173]

6. These Regulations may be cited as the Fire Services (Grant) Regulations, 1948, and shall come into operation on the twenty-third day of July, 1948. [1174]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order :—

(1) raises the maximum prices of home-produced blackcurrant jam and jelly, gooseberry jam, raspberry jam, raspberry and gooseberry jam, and raspberry and redcurrant jam, by the approximate equivalent of a halfpenny a pound ; and

(2) revokes an Article of the Preserves Order, 1947 which provided that, in proceedings under that Order relating to a deficiency in weight of preserves, the Court should disregard deficiencies that did not exceed half an ounce in the pound if it was satisfied that they were due to some cause that could not reasonably have been avoided.

CASES

Food and drugs—Sale to prejudice of purchaser—Drug not of nature, substance or quality ordered—Deficiency caused by manufacturing process—Common repute—Food and Drugs Act, 1938 (c. 56), ss. 3 (1), 4, 83 (3).

The respondents, who were a firm of manufacturing chemists, supplied to a purchaser a quantity of one grain and three grain pills the average deficiency in drug dosage of which was found, on analysis, to be 25 per cent. The pills were manufactured by hand, and evidence was given that during the process a certain amount of material was apt to stick to the hand of the maker or the implement used.

Held : the pills were deficient in nature and quality, and the respondents were, therefore, guilty of an offence under s. 3 (1) of the Food and Drugs Act, 1938.

Per cur. : If a manufacturer knows that, by reason of the process of manufacture, pills will, or may be, deficient in the quantity of the drug ordered, he should give notice to that effect to the purchaser.—BREED v. BRITISH DRUG HOUSES, LTD., [1947] 2 All E. R. 613 ; 112 J. P. 36 ; 63 T. L. R. 558 ; 46 L. G. R. 11. [1235]

Food and drugs—Adulteration and impoverishment—Proceedings against offenders—Public house—Watered gin—Licensee prosecuted—Defence of employee's default—Information laid against employee—Summons not served—Availability of defence—Time at which information must be laid—Food and Drugs Act, 1938 (c. 56), s. 83 (1).

The licensee of a public house was prosecuted for selling through his employee gin containing an excessive quantity of water contrary to the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, s. 3. In pursuance of s. 83 (1) of the Act he gave the prosecution not less than three clear days' notice of his intention to have his employee, being the person to whose act or default he alleged that the contravention of the provisions in question was due, brought before the court in the proceedings, and laid an information against the employee. The summons on that information was never served because the whereabouts of the employee were unknown. At the hearing of the charge against himself, the licensee proved that the contravention of s. 3 was due to the act or default of his employee and that he (the licensee) had used all due diligence to secure that the provisions in question were complied with in accordance with s. 83 (1).

Held : the defendant, having taken all steps open to him to have the employee brought before the court and having otherwise also complied with the requirements of s. 83 (1), was entitled to set up the defence afforded by that subsection, although the employee had not been brought before the court owing to the inability of the police to serve the summons and so had not been convicted.

Walkling, Ltd. v. Robinson (1930), 99 L. J. (K. B.) 171, distinguished.

Per Lord GODDARD, C.J.: The information which, under s. 83 (1), must be laid by the original defendant must be laid not less than three days before the proceedings are heard.—MALCOLM v. CHEEK, [1948] 1 K. B. 400; [1947] 2 All E. R. 881; [1948] L. J. R. 388; 112 J. P. 94; 64 T. L. R. 28; 92 Sol. Jo. 41; 46 L. G. R. 26. [1236]

Food rationing—Catering establishment—Fats and cheese—"Use" in specified rationing period—Use, not for consumption by customers, but for manufacture of articles to be stored—Fats, Cheese and Tea (Rationing) (No. 2) Order, 1946 (S. R. & O., 1946, No. 1116), arts. 8, 10 (as amended by the Fats, Cheese and Tea (Rationing) (No. 2) (Amendment No. 3) Order, 1946 (S. R. & O., 1946, No. 2025)).

A catering company suffered a sudden falling off in trade in its restaurant, and, to avoid deterioration in its stocks of fats and cheese, it used them to make various articles of food which could be stored and kept in good condition. The quantities of cheese and fats so used, together with those consumed at meals in the restaurant, exceeded the amounts which might "be used in any specified period" in the establishment under arts. 8 and 10 of the Fats, Cheese and Tea (Rationing) (No. 2) Order, 1946 (as amended by the Fats, Cheese and Tea (Rationing) (No. 2) (Amendment No. 3) Order, 1946).

Held: the word "used" in arts. 8 and 10 meant "used in any way" and not merely "consumed", and the company had, therefore, contravened the Order.—QUAINTWAYS RESTAURANT, LTD. v. BUDD, [1948] 2 K. B. 231; [1948] 1 All E. R. 782; 112 J. P. 240; 64 T. L. R. 272; 92 Sol. Jo. 258; 46 L. G. R. 222. [1237]

Food and drugs—Proceedings against third party—Dismissal of informations—Case stated at request of prosecutor—Inclusion of third party essential—Food and Drugs Act, 1938 (c. 56), s. 83 (1).

Justices—Procedure—Adjournment of case for hearing by different bench—Party prejudiced by evidence.

The respondent was charged with selling for human consumption milk to which water had been added contrary to the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, s. 24, and he brought before the court, under s. 83 (1) of the Act, a third party to whose act or default he alleged that the contravention of s. 24 had been due. At the hearing by the justices, the respondent revealed that he had been summoned on previous occasions because of milk supplied to him by the third party. Thereupon the magistrates dismissed the summons against the defendant on the ground that their minds had been prejudiced by the admission and they also dismissed the summons against the third party. On a Case Stated by the justices at the request of the prosecution against the defendant only:—

Held: (i) even if their minds had been prejudiced the justices should not have dismissed the summons, but should have adjourned the case for it to be heard by a different bench.

(ii) the court would not now send the case back to the justices because, the summons against the third party having been dismissed and he not having been made a party to the Case Stated, the defendant could not again bring the third party before the justices and would, therefore, be debarred from pursuing his defence under s. 83. The appeal would, therefore, have to be dismissed.

Per Lord GODDARD, C.J.: Where the prosecution ask for a Case to be stated against a defendant who has taken advantage of the procedure prescribed by s. 83 (1) of the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, it is essential that the third party should be joined as a party to the Case if the result of the Case may be a remission to the justices for re-hearing or with a direction to convict, because otherwise the defendant would lose his right to proceed against the third party on the re-hearing.—ELKINGTON v. KESLEY, [1948] 2 K. STATUTES

(11 & 12 Geo. 6, c. 67)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which received the Royal Assent on July 30, 1948, represents a further stage in the Government's nationalisation policy. It provides for bringing into public ownership, as from a "vesting date", all undertakings supplying gas in Great Britain other than businesses operating coke-oven plants. In addition, the Act lays down, as from that date, a revised gas supply code, and provides for co-ordinating the carbonisation activities of the new gas authorities and the National Coal Board. May 1, 1949, has been fixed as the vesting date by the Gas (Vesting Date) Order, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 392), made by the Minister of Fuel and Power under s. 17.

To understand the radical changes effected by the Act in the organisation of the gas supply industry, the previous position should be borne in mind. Gas could formerly be supplied with or without statutory authority. Unauthorised suppliers, known as non-statutory undertakers, however, while being under no statutory obligation to continue a supply or to maintain the purity or pressure of gas, laboured under certain disadvantages such as the absence of power to break up streets.

Statutory powers for the supply of gas were obtained by special Act of Parliament or by orders having the force of an Act. Originally the orders, made under the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1254), were provisional and required confirmation by an Act, but later a simplified method by means of a special order under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1278), was provided. Statutory undertakers were either local authorities, companies or persons; and their powers and obligations were substantially similar whether conferred by Act or by order, except that a special order under the Act of 1920 was not apt to incorporate an undertaking as a company and did not confer compulsory power for the acquisition of, or entry on to, land. The general scheme both of private Acts and of provisional and special orders was that the undertakers obtained power to manufacture and supply gas within a defined area, and to carry out and maintain necessary works, including mains and pipes. Statutory undertakers were under obligation to supply gas of a standard of quality, purity and pressure laid down in the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1263), and tests for purity were carried out by gas examiners appointed under that Act or the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, supra.

The Gas Act, 1948, consists of four Parts and four Schedules, and follows the lines of the Electricity Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 409), especially as regards the general structure of the new organisation which is established.

Part I of the Act, which deals with the organisation of the industry, provides for the establishment, first, of an Area Board for each of the areas into which the country is divided for the purposes of the Act, and secondly, of a central Gas Council (ss. 1, 2). There are originally to be twelve areas (see S.I. 1948 No. 2773), but the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order form new areas or amalgamate existing ones (s. 6). Each Board is to consist of between six and eight members appointed by the Minister, together with the chairman for the time being of the Gas Consultative Council (see infra) for the area (s. 5 (2)). The chief duties of Area Boards are to develop and maintain an efficient, co-ordinated and economical gas supply system for their areas and to satisfy, so far as it is economical to do so, all reasonable demands for gas within their areas, and similarly to develop and maintain the production of coke (other than metallurgical coke) and the recovery of by-products (s. 1 (1)). Wide powers for the purpose of enabling Area Boards to carry out these duties are conferred by s. 1 (2), including not only the manufacture and distribution of gas and the manufacture and sale of coke and by-products, but also the sale and maintenance of gas and coke fittings and, in certain circumstances, the manufacture of such fittings and of plant.

The Gas Council is to consist of a chairman and deputy chairman appointed by the Minister together with the chairmen of the Area Boards (s. 5 (4)). Apart from its financial duties under Part III of the Act, the principal duties of the Gas Council are to advise the Minister on questions affecting the gas industry and to assist the Area Boards (s. 2 (1)). The powers of the Council include a limited power of manufacturing, etc. plant, and gas and coke fittings (s. 2 (3)), the settlement of a programme of research (s. 3), and the co-ordination of the Area Boards' training and research programmes (s. 4).

A Gas Consultative Council is to be established for the area of every Area Board. This Council is to consist of a chairman and between twenty and thirty members appointed by the Minister, of whom at least half are to be members of local authorities in the area and the remainder representative of commerce, industry, labour and gas consumers and other persons interested in gas development. The duties of the Consultative Councils include the consideration of any matter affecting the supply of gas in the area which is brought to their notice by consumers, and the notification to the Area Board of the action which they consider should be taken. Two welcome innovations are that these Councils, unlike their counterparts in other nationalised industries, are to be established within six months of the vesting date, and must arrange for local representatives to be available in specified localities to receive representations from consumers in those localities (s. 9).

The Act confers wide powers upon the Minister, who may give directions of a general character to the Area Boards and the Gas Council (s. 7), as well as specific directions on a number of particular matters (see, for example, ss. 10 (3), 23 (1)).

The Gas Council, and each Area Board are to make reports to the Minister, which he is to lay before Parliament, together with a report by himself on the exercise of his functions during the year (s. 10).

Part I of the Act also contains provisions dealing with the compulsory purchase of land (s. 11), the promoting and opposing of Parliamentary Bills (s. 12), the non-exemption of the Board and the Council from taxation (s. 13), and their liability in actions, etc. (s. 14).

Part II of the Act deals with (i) the vesting of assets (ss. 15–24); (ii) the payment of compensation (ss. 25–32); and (iii) the control of dividends and interest and the safeguarding of assets pending transfer (ss. 33–40).

The undertakers affected by this Part of the Act are divided into four categories:—

(a) Statutory undertakers;
(b) Non-statutory undertakers;
(c) Gas holding companies; and
(d) Ancillary gas undertakers (s. 15 (2)).

Subject to the power of disclaimer under s. 22, the general rule is that the whole of the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of these undertakers are transferred on the vesting date to the appropriate Area Board (see S.I. 1949 No. 742), and the undertakers are dissolved (s. 17). The Minister may, however, in special circumstances, dispense with or postpone the application of the Act in the case of a particular ancillary gas undertaker (s. 15 (4)).

The general rule is subject to the exceptions provided by s.18. That section applies to an undertaker who :—

(i) is a local authority ; or
(ii) is a composite company, i.e., a company which supplies water as well as gas under the authority of an enactment ; or
(iii) is an ancillary gas undertaker ; or
(iv) is not a body corporate ; or
(v) is an Electricity Board.

In the case of undertakings to which s. 18 applies, the property, etc., transferred is limited to the property, etc., held or used by the undertaker wholly or mainly for the purposes of the gas undertaking or wholly or mainly in his capacity as a gas undertaker, and the body will continue to exist divested of its gas functions.

Local authorities are given, as they were by the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 16, and the Transport Act, 1947, s. 115 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 435, 1004), a right of pre-emption for ten years in respect of land acquired from them under the Act, and this right extends also to composite companies (s. 21).

Agreements or leases made or varied on or after November 19, 1947 (when the Government announced their intention of nationalising the gas industry), which were not reasonably necessary or which showed an unreasonable lack of prudence on the part of the undertaker, may be disclaimed (s. 22).

Compensation in respect of dissolved undertakings is to take the form of British Gas Stock issued to the holders of the securities of the undertaking. The amount of such stock is to be of a value equal to the value of the securities. Securities which were quoted on the Stock Exchange on certain specified dates are valued by reference to those quotations, with special provisions applying to fresh issues and conversions subsequent to those dates. Unquoted securities are to be valued by agreement between the Minister and the stockholders' representative appointed under s. 27, or in default by the Gas Arbitration Tribunal (see infra) on the basis of the value of comparable quoted securities (s. 25). The value of securities for compensation purposes may, in all cases, be increased to offset capital depreciation arising out of loss of revenue due to war causes (s. 26).

In the case of undertakings to which s. 18 applies, different compensation provisions apply. A local authority will be compensated by the Area Board reimbursing the authority's expenditure in respect of any loan raised or money advanced by them for the purpose of their gas undertaking (s. 28). In addition, a sum of £2,500,000 is to be divided between local authorities as compensation for severance (s. 29). For a composite company, the amount of compensation is the value of the gas side of the undertaking together with a further sum for severance. The value of the gas side of the undertaking is determined by reference to the value of its securities ascertained as for dissolved undertakings, and compensation takes the form of British Gas Stock (s. 30). Compensation to ancillary gas undertakers and non-corporate undertakers is to be calculated on the basis of an assumed sale in the open market by a willing seller to a willing buyer, and is to be paid in cash (s. 31).

The Act contains provisions designed to safeguard the assets of undertakings (other than ancillary gas undertakings) during the interim period prior to the vesting date. These include restrictions on dividends, interest and other payments (s. 33), and provision for re-opening transactions resulting in the dissipation of assets (s. 36). In the case of local authorities, sums transferred after February 10, 1948, from the gas undertaking account to another account may be recovered by the Area Board, unless the transfer was approved by the Minister or was an adjustment properly made in respect of a matter involving both accounts (s. 37).

Part III of the Act contains the financial provisions. Each Area Board is required to secure that its revenues are at least sufficient to meet its outgoings " taking one year with another ", and when a Board or the Gas Council engage in the manufacture of plant or fittings, separate accounts thereof are to be kept (s. 41).

Both Area Boards and the Gas Council may borrow temporarily, but power to borrow on a long term basis by the issue of British Gas Stock is conferred only on the Gas Council (s. 42). The ultimate responsibility, however, for obligations in respect of such stock, whether issued for compensation purposes or to provide capital for the Area Boards, is placed on the Boards, who are required to make payments to the Council to enable them to meet those obligations (s. 44). The Council is to maintain a central guarantee fund for the purpose of meeting these and other financial obligations of the Boards and the Council in the event of possible future default (s. 46).

The Area Boards and, so long as it engages in the manufacture of plant and fittings, the Gas Council, are to maintain general reserve funds (s. 47).

Other financial provisions provide for contributions by Area Boards to the Gas Council's expenses (s. 48), and deal with accounts and auditing (s. 50).

The last Part of the Act, namely Part IV, deals with a number of miscellaneous matters.

Schemes are to be made for co-ordinating the carbonisation activities of the National Coal Board and the Area Boards (s. 51), and restrictions are placed on the supply of gas after the vesting date by persons other than Area Boards (s. 52).

Other matters dealt with in this Part of the Act include gas charges and tariffs (s. 53), meter testing (s. 54) and the standards of quality to be complied with by Area Boards (s. 55). S. 56 (1) introduces a new gas supply code, which replaces all previous public enactments dealing with gas supply though it is largely derived therefrom. This code is set out in Sched. III.

Provision is made as to the conditions of employment in the industry (s. 57), pension rights (s. 58, and the Gas (Pension Scheme) Regulations, 1949; S.I. 1949 No. 744), and compensation for officers of transferred undertakings (s. 60).

A Gas Arbitration Tribunal is to be established for determining any question or dispute required to be determined by arbitration under the Act (ss. 63–66).

Part IV of the Act also deals with a number of general matters such as penalties (s. 68), prosecutions and offences by corporations (s. 69), notices (s. 70), regulations and orders (s. 71) and inquiries (s. 73). [1239]

[1240] [30th July 1948.]

PART I

AREA GAS BOARDS AND GAS COUNCIL

1. Establishment and general functions of Area Boards.—(1) There shall be established Boards, to be known by the names mentioned in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act and in this Act referred to as " Area Boards ", for the areas which are described in general terms in the second column of that Schedule and are to be defined by orders made under this Part of this Act, and it shall be the duty of every Area Board as from the vesting date

(a) to develop and maintain an efficient, co-ordinated and economical system of gas supply for their area and to satisfy, so far as it is economical to do so, all reasonable demands for gas within their area;

(b) to develop and maintain the efficient, co-ordinated and economical production of coke, other than metallurgical coke, by them;

(c) to develop and maintain efficient methods of recovering by-products obtained in the process of manufacturing gas. [1241]

(2) Every Area Board shall have power to carry on all such activities as it may appear to the Board to be requisite, advantageous or convenient for them to carry on for or in connection with the discharge of their duties under the preceding subsection or with a view to making the best use of any assets vested in them by or under this Act, and in particular, but without prejudice to the generality of the preceding provision,—

(a) to manufacture gas, to acquire gas in bulk from any person including another Area Board, and to supply gas in bulk to another Area Board;

(b) to distribute gas in their area;

(c) to manufacture, treat, render saleable, supply or sell—

(i) coke and other solid fuels obtained by carbonization;

(ii) any by-products obtained in the process of manufacturing gas, coke or any such other solid fuels as aforesaid; and

(iii) any products made or derived from gas, coke or any such other solid fuel as aforesaid or from any by-product obtained as aforesaid;

(d) to sell, hire or otherwise supply gas fittings and coke fittings and to instal, repair, maintain or remove gas fittings and coke fittings and plant required by the Board or any other Area Board;

(e) after consultation with the Gas Council established under the next following section, to manufacture plant required by the Board or any other Area Board and to manufacture gas fittings and coke fittings, except for export:

Provided that an Area Board shall not exercise their powers under paragraph (e) hereof unless they are satisfied that the available facilities for obtaining at reasonable prices plant required by them or any other Area Board or gas fittings or coke fittings are or may become inadequate. [1242]

(3) Any Area Board may, by agreement with any other Area Board, give a supply of gas to persons in the area of that other Area Board, and the powers conferred by the last preceding subsection shall apply in relation to the giving of such a supply, and if any Area Board are unable to obtain the agreement of another Area Board under this subsection, they may apply to the Gas Council for an authorisation to supply gas to consumers in the area of that other Area Board and the Gas Council may give an authorisation to supply gas to consumers in such part of the area of that other Area Board and upon such terms and conditions as may be specified in the authorisation. [1243]

(4) Every Area Board shall have power to do any thing and to enter into any transaction (whether or not involving the expenditure, the borrowing in accordance with the provisions of this Act or the lending of money, the acquisition of any property or rights or the disposal of any property or rights) which in their opinion is calculated to facilitate the exercise or performance of any functions conferred or imposed on them by any enactment other than this subsection, or is incidental or conducive thereto. [1244]

(5) In carrying out any such measures of reorganization and works of development as involve substantial outlay on capital account, every Area Board shall act in accordance with a general programme settled by them from time to time with the approval of the Minister, and the Minister shall consult with the Gas Council before approving any such programme. [1245]

(6) In planning and carrying out any such programme as aforesaid an Area Board shall consult with the National Coal Board, if that Board is engaged in the area of the Area Board in activities relating to carbonization, and with other persons operating coke-oven plants in the area of the Area Board. [1246]

(7) In exercising and performing their functions every Area Board shall promote the welfare, health and safety of persons in the employment of the Board. [1247]

(8) Subject to and in accordance with any directions given by the Minister under section seven of this Act, every Area Board shall reduce, so far as practicable, the price of gas and coke and avoid undue preference in the supply of gas and coke. [1248]

(9) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that the preceding provisions of this section, so far as they confer powers on Area Boards, relate only to the capacity of Area Boards as statutory corporations, and nothing in those provisions shall be construed as authorising the disregard by any such Board of any enactment or rule of law. [1249]

Area Boards.—For the constitution of these Boards, which form the administrative foundation of the nationalised gas industry, see s. 5 (2), (3), post.

Areas to be defined.—As to the definition and variation of areas, see s. 6, post, and the Gas (Areas of Area Boards) Order, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 2773), made thereunder.

Vesting date.—May 1, 1949; see S.I. 1949 No. 302, made under s. 17, post.

Gas supply.—This includes both production and distribution. The duty of Area Boards in respect of coke is confined to production as it is no part of the intention of the Act to reorganise the distributive side of the coke industry; hence the use of the restricted term "production" in sub-s. (1) (b), supra. Note, however, that Area Boards have power to supply coke under sub-s. (2) (c), supra. As to the obligation to supply gas, see Sched. III, para 8, post.

Supply of gas in bulk to another area.—This provision is comparable with s. 5 of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1295), which is repealed as from the vesting date by s. 76 (1) and Sched. IV, post.

Borrowing.—As to the borrowing powers of Area Boards, see s. 42, post. Area Boards under the provision of sub-s. (4), supra, may continue existing loans to employees to build houses, or lend to a private manufacturer of fitments who has been asked by an Area Board to develop an idea for which he has not the capital.

Enactments.—Area Boards may possess functions, not only under this Act but also under local Acts as applied to them by s. 56, post, under provisional orders confirmed by any Act, and under regulations and orders made under an Act; see the definition of "enactment" in s. 74 (1), post.

Reorganisation involving capital outlay.—Ministerial approval is here necessary to supplement the Minister's control of borrowing on capital account under s. 39 (2), post. Such control is common form in all nationalisation Acts and involves approval of a broad programme including a general financial estimate. Cf. the Transport Act, 1947, s. 4 (2) (40 Halsbury's Statutes 932) and the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 5 (2) (40 Halsbury's Statutes 421).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

National Coal Board.—The National Coal Board was established by the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 1 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 256). As to joint schemes for carbonisation, see s. 51, post.

Reduction of price.—To be reasonable a reduction in the price of gas or coke must conform with the requirements of s. 41 (1), post, as to meeting outgoings from revenue.

Undue preference.—See also s. 53 (7), post. For an example of a permitted preference, see the Housing Act, 1936, s. 101 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 639).

Other functions of Area Boards.—Widely as this section is drawn, it does not comprise all the powers of Area Boards; see also s. 3, post (research); s. 4, post (training and education) and s. 51, post (carbonisation activities).

Definitions.—For definitions of "coke fittings", "functions", "gas fittings", "metallurgical coke" and "plant", see s. 74 (1), post.

2. Establishment and general functions of Gas Council.—(1) There shall be established a Council, to be known as the Gas Council, and it shall be the duty of that Council—

(a) to advise the Minister on questions affecting the gas industry and matters relating thereto; and

(b) to promote and assist the efficient exercise and performance by Area Boards of their functions. [1250]

(2) The Gas Council shall have power, if so authorised by all the Area Boards or a group of Area Boards, to perform services for, or act on behalf of, the Boards concerned in relation to matters of common interest to those Boards. [1251]

(3) The Gas Council shall have power—

(a) to manufacture plant required by Area Boards, to sell or supply such plant to Area Boards, and to instal, repair, maintain or remove such plant;

(b) to manufacture gas fittings and coke fittings except for export, and to sell or supply such fittings. [1252]

(4) Every Area Board shall afford to the Gas Council facilities for obtaining information with respect to the property and activities of the Area Board, and furnish the Gas Council with returns, accounts and other information with respect thereto, and afford to the Gas Council facilities for the verification of information furnished, in such manner and at such times as the Gas Council may require. [1253]

(5) The Gas Council shall have power to do any thing and to enter into any transaction (whether or not involving the expenditure, the borrowing in accordance with the provisions of this Act or the lending of money, the acquisition of any property or rights or the disposal of any property or rights) which in their opinion is calculated to facilitate the exercise or performance of any functions conferred or imposed on them by any enactment other than this subsection or is incidental or conducive thereto. [1254]

(6) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that the preceding provisions of this section, so far as they confer powers on the Gas Council, relate only to the capacity of the Gas Council as a statutory corporation, and nothing in those provisions shall be construed as authorising the disregard by that Council of any enactment or rule of law. [1255]

Gas Council.—For the constitution of the Gas Council, see s. 5 (4), post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

Promote and assist functions of Area Boards.—As to Area Boards and their functions, see s. 1, ante. Apart from specific cases, as under s. 3, post (research), s. 4 (2), post (submission of programmes for training, etc.), s. 44 (1), post (borrowing for capital expenditure on reorganisation or development), s. 46 (6), post (directions as to management or policy in the case of default) and s. 57 (2) (conditions of employment), the Gas Council exercises no control over the activities of Area Boards.

Manufacture plant, etc.—Compare sub-s. (3), supra, with s. 1 (2) (e), ante. As to revenue from the manufacture of plant, etc., see s. 41 (3), post.

Returns and information.—As to the obligation of an Area Board to send a copy of its annual report to the Gas Council, see s. 10 (1), post.

Borrowing money.—As to the borrowing powers of the Gas Council, see s. 42, post.

Sub-s. (6).—Similar provision to that made by sub-s. (6), supra, as respects the Gas Council is made by s. 1 (9), ante, as respects Area Boards.

Definitions.—For definitions of "functions", "gas fittings", "coke fittings", "enactment" and "plant", see s. 74 (1), post.

Any such remuneration, allowances and pensions as aforesaid shall be paid by the Area Board concerned or, as the case may be, the Gas Council. [1266]

Organisation of workers.—Note that sub-s. (2), supra, requires persons experienced in the organisation of workers generally, and not necessarily of workers in the gas industry. Although workers in the gas industry, and their trade union representatives, may be appointed as members of Area Boards, there is no compulsion on the Minister to appoint any such person to all or any of the Boards.

(2) The Minister may by order vary the areas for which Area Boards are established under this Act, and such variation may involve not only the variation of the boundaries of existing areas but also the formation of a new area from any part of an existing area or parts of existing areas or the amalgamation of an existing area with any other such area or part thereof.

(3) If any question arises as to the exact boundary of any area, as defined by any order made under this section, it shall be determined by the Minister, after giving to the Area Boards concerned an opportunity to make representations on that question. [1272]

(4) An order made under subsection (2) of this section the effect of which is to increase or reduce the total number of such areas as aforesaid, or to constitute a new area for which a new Area Board is required to be established under the next following subsection, shall not be made unless a draft thereof has been laid before Parliament and has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [1273]

(5) An order made under subsection (2) of this section shall state whether the areas affected by the order are to be regarded as the areas of existing Area Boards, or whether any such area is to be regarded as a new area for which a new Area Board is required to be established, and in the latter case a new Board shall be established in accordance with the preceding provisions of this Act and those provisions shall apply to that Board accordingly, and it shall be known by such name as may be specified in the order. (a) for the transfer of property, rights, liabilities and obligations from one Area Board to another;

(b) for the modification of agreements for the purpose of giving effect to the transfer of rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder from one Area Board to another and, in a case where part only of the rights, liabilities and obligations under any agreement are transferred, for substituting for that agreement separate agreements in the requisite terms, and for any apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon;

(c) for the purpose of transferring part of the land comprised in any lease vested in any such Board to another such Board, for the severance of that lease, and for apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon ;

Assets not connected with the exercise of their powers.—The purpose of sub-s. (2), supra, is to enable the Minister to direct Area Boards to divest themselves of water company powers, property, etc., which may accrue to them when composite companies opt to have the whole of their assets taken over under s. 18 (1), post. Although this power is not mandatory, the clear intention is that there should be a divesting.

(2) A Gas Consultative Council shall consist of a chairman appointed by the Minister and not less than twenty nor more than thirty other members appointed by the Minister of whom—

(a) not less than half nor more than three-quarters shall be appointed from a panel of persons nominated from amongst members of local authorities in the area by such associations as appear to the Minister to represent those authorities; and

(b) the remainder shall be appointed, after consultation with such bodies as the Minister thinks fit, to represent commerce, industry, labour and the general interests of consumers of gas and other persons or organizations interested in the development of gas in the area.

In making the appointments mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection, the Minister shall have particular regard to any nominations made to him by the bodies aforesaid of persons who are recommended by them as having both adequate knowledge of the requirements of the interests to be represented and also the ability to exercise a wide and impartial judgment on the matters to be dealt with by the Council generally. [1282]

(3) A person shall be disqualified for being appointed or being the chairman of a Gas Consultative Council so long as he is a member of the Commons House of Parliament, but a member of a Gas Consultative Council other than the chairman shall not by reason of his appointment as such a member be disqualified for being elected to, or for sitting or voting as a member of, the Commons House of Parliament. [1283]

(4) The Gas Consultative Council for each area shall be charged with the duties—

(a) of considering any matter affecting the supply of gas in the area, including the variation of tariffs and the provision of new or improved services and facilities within the area, being a matter which is the subject of a representation made to them by consumers or other persons requiring supplies of gas in that area, or which appears to them to be a matter to which consideration ought to be given apart from any such representation, and where action appears to them to be requisite as to any such matter, of notifying their conclusions to the Area Board; and

(b) of considering and reporting to the Area Board on any such matter which may be referred to them by that Board. [1284]

(5) Each of the Gas Consultative Councils shall be informed by the Area Board of that Board's general plans and arrangements for exercising and performing their functions under this Act in relation to the supply of gas in their area and may make representations thereon to that Board. [1285]

(6) The Area Board shall consider any conclusions, reports and representations notified or made to them by the Gas Consultative Council for their area under the two last preceding subsections and the Council may, after consultation with the Area Board, make representations to the Minister on matters arising thereout. [1286]

(7) Where representations have been so made to the Minister and it appears to him after consultation with the Gas Council that there may be a defect in that Area Board's general plans and arrangements for exercising and performing their functions under this Act in relation to the supply of gas in their area, the Minister shall refer the representations for inquiry and report by a person appointed by him after consultation with the Lord Chancellor or, in the case of the Scottish Gas Board, after consultation with the Secretary of State, and if the Minister, after considering the report of the said person, is satisfied that there is a defect in the Area Board's general plans and arrangements aforesaid, he shall give to the Area Board such directions as he thinks fit for remedying the defect and the Area Board shall give effect to any such directions, and the Minister shall send a copy of any such directions to the Gas Consultative Council. [1287]

(8) Every Gas Consultative Council shall prepare and submit to the Minister a scheme for the appointment by them of committees or individuals to be local representatives of the Council in such localities as may be specified in the scheme, and it shall be the duty of such committees and individuals to consider the particular circumstances and requirements of those localities with respect to the supply of gas and to make representations to the Council thereon, and to be available for receiving on behalf of the Council representations from consumers in those localities; and, if the scheme is approved by the Minister, the Gas Consultative Council shall put it into effect.

A member of a Gas Consultative Council shall be eligible for appointment under such a scheme, either as a member of a committee or as an individual, but membership of the Council shall not be a necessary qualification for such an appointment. [1288]

(9) A Gas Consultative Council may, subject to the approval of the Minister as to numbers, appoint such officers as appear to the Council to be requisite for the proper exercise and performance of their functions (including functions of any committee or individual appointed under the last preceding subsection), and the Area Board shall pay—

(a) to the members of the Council or of any such committee or to any such individual such allowances in respect of any loss of remunerative time and such travelling allowances and allowances in respect of their out-of-pocket expenses; and

(b) to the officers of the Council such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances,

as the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury determine, and shall pay such expenses incurred by the Council or any such committee or individual as the Minister may with such approval determine. [1289]

(10) A Gas Consultative Council shall be furnished by the Area Board concerned with such office accommodation as appears to the Board to be requisite for the proper exercise and performance of their functions (including the functions of any such committee or individual as aforesaid) or as may be directed by the Minister. [1290]

(11) Where, in consequence of the variation of the areas of Area Boards under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act, it is necessary to establish new Gas Consultative Councils under this section, the Minister may by order provide for dissolving and winding up the affairs of any Gas

Consultative Council who cease to exercise or perform functions by reason of the variation. [1291]

(12) Provision may be made by regulations in relation to Gas Consultative Councils for any matters for which provision may be made by regulations under section five of this Act in relation to Area Boards and the Gas Council, and for the appointment of a deputy chairman of any Consultative Council, and, subject to the provisions of any such regulations, a Consultative Council shall have power to regulate their own procedure. [1292]

(2) Every such report of any Area Board or of the Gas Council for any year required by this section shall set out any direction given by the Minister to the Board or Council during that year unless the Minister has notified the Board or Council of his opinion that it is against the interests of national security to do so. [1294]

(3) The Minister may give directions as to the form of the reports to be made under the preceding provisions of this section, and the Area Boards and the Gas Council shall comply with any such directions. [1295]

(4) A Gas Consultative Council shall, as respects each financial year of the Area Board for their area, make to the Board a report on the exercise and performance by the Consultative Council of their functions during that year, and the said report shall be made to the Board as soon as possible, and in any case not later than three months after the end of the said financial year, and the Board shall include that report in the report made by them under this section. [1296]

(5) The Minister shall lay before each House of Parliament a copy of the report made for each financial year by each Area Board and the Gas Council, and shall at the same time lay before each House of Parliament a report with respect to the exercise of his functions during that year under this Act except as regards matters which in his opinion it is against the interests of national security to disclose. 11. Compulsory purchase of land.—(1) The Minister may authorise any Area Board to purchase compulsorily any land which they require for the exercise and performance of their functions, and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (except section two thereof), shall apply, in relation to any such compulsory purchase, as if the Board were a local authority within the meaning of that Act and as if this Act had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act. [1298]

(2) In this section the expression "land" includes easements and other rights over land, and an Area Board may be authorised under this section to purchase compulsorily a right to place a gas pipe across land, whether above or below ground, and to repair, maintain and remove the pipe, without purchasing any other interest in the land:

Provided that an Area Board shall not be authorised under this section to purchase compulsorily a right to place a gas pipe above ground unless the Minister is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to place it below ground.

In relation to the compulsory purchase of any such right to place a gas pipe across land, the said Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (except section two thereof), and the enactments incorporated therewith shall have effect as if references (whatever the terms used) to the land comprised in the compulsory purchase order were construed, where the context so requires, as references to the land across which the pipe is to be placed, and references to the obtaining or taking possession of the land so comprised were construed as references to the exercise of the said right. PART II

ACQUISITION OF GAS UNDERTAKINGS

Vesting of assets

15. Undertakers to whom Part II of Act applies.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this and the next following section, this Part of this Act applies to—

(a) every person who carries on a gas undertaking authorised by any enactment;

(b) every person who carries on a gas undertaking not authorised by any enactment but providing supplies of gas the whole or main part of which was, during the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, consumed by persons other than the undertaker, any subsidiary or holding company of the undertaker, and any subsidiary of a holding company of the undertaker; and

(c) every company, not being a private company, which—

(i) had, at the date of the last audited balance sheet of the company before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, one or more subsidiaries, being statutory undertakers or non-statutory undertakers (as hereinafter defined); and

(ii) at the said date held securities of, or rights in respect of loans made to, the said subsidiaries, the value of which as shown in that balance sheet, amounted to not less than seventy-five per cent. of the total amount of all the assets of the holding company as so shown;

and references to an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies shall be construed as referring to such a person or company as aforesaid:

Provided that this Part of this Act shall not apply to the National Coal Board or the British Transport Commission. [1305]

(2) In this Act—

(a) any such person as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of the preceding subsection is referred to as a " statutory undertaker " ;

(b) any such person as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of that subsection, being a person whose gas undertaking is the whole or main part of his business, is referred to as a " non-statutory undertaker " ;

(c) any such company as is mentioned in paragraph (c) of that subsubsection, not being a statutory or a non-statutory undertaker, is referred to as a " gas holding company " ; and

(d) any such person as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of that subsection, not being a non-statutory undertaker or a gas holding company, is referred to as an " ancilliary gas undertaker ". [1306]

(3) Any company, not being a statutory or non-statutory undertaker or a gas holding company, but holding securities of, or rights in respect of loans made to, any statutory undertaker or non-statutory undertaker which amount to a substantial proportion of the assets of the company, may serve on the Minister not later than four months after the passing of this Act a notice stating that the company wishes to be treated as a gas holding company, and the Minister may, on the service of such a notice, if he thinks fit, by order direct that this Act shall have effect, and be deemed to have always had effect, as if the company were a gas holding company, and this Act shall have effect accordingly. [1307]

(4) Any ancillary gas undertaker may serve on the Minister not later than four months after the passing of this Act a notice stating that, owing to the special character of the business of the undertaker, this Part of this Act ought not to apply to him or the application thereof ought to be postponed and the Minister may, on the service of such a notice, if he thinks fit, by order direct that this Part of this Act shall not apply, and shall be deemed never to have applied, to that undertaker or that the vesting date shall, in relation to that undertaker, be postponed for such period as the Minister may direct, and this Act shall have effect accordingly. [1308]

(5) For the purposes of paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section where the value of any such securities or rights as are therein mentioned is not separately shown in the balance sheet therein mentioned, by reason that they are grouped with other assets of the company and the balance sheet shows the value of the groups as a whole, the value placed on the said securities or rights in the books of the company and used in arriving at the value of the group of assets as so shown shall have effect as if it had been shown separately in the balance sheet. [1309]

16. Determination of questions as to application of Part II of Act.—(1) The Minister shall, within the prescribed period, serve on every person who in his opinion is an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies other than a statutory undertaker a notice stating that that person is in his opinion such an undertaker and also stating in which of the categories mentioned in subsection (2) of the last preceding section that person in the Minister's opinion is included, and—

(a) unless that person contends by a counter notice served on the Minister, within two months after the service of the Minister's notice, that in his opinion this Part of this Act does not apply to him and the counter notice is not withdrawn, this Part of this Act shall be deemed to apply to him; and

(b) unless that person contends by a counter notice served as aforesaid (and not withdrawn) that in his opinion he is included in a different category of undertaker, he shall (subject to any contention that this Part of this Act does not apply to him) be deemed to be included in the category stated in the notice of the Minister. [1310]

(2) Where any person (other than a statutory undertaker) on whom the Minister has not served a notice under the last preceding subsection within the period prescribed therefor is of the opinion that he is an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, he may within two months after the expiration of the period aforesaid, serve a notice on the Minister in the prescribed form stating that in his opinion this Part of this Act applies to him and also stating in which of the said categories in his opinion he is included, and—

(b) unless the Minister contends by a counter notice served as aforesaid (and not withdrawn) that the said person is included in a different category of undertaker, he shall (subject to any contention that this Part of this Act does not apply to him) be deemed to be included in the category stated in the notice served by the said person. [1311]

(3) The serving of a notice under subsection (4) of the last preceding section shall not be taken as prejudicing the right of the person serving the notice to contend, by means of a counter notice served under this section, that this Part of this Act does not apply to him. [1312]

(4) Where, in the case of any person other than a statutory undertaker, no notice has been served by the Minister or by that person in accordance with the preceding provisions of this section, this Part of this Act shall be deemed not to apply to that person. [1313]

(5) Where a counter notice is served in accordance with the preceding provisions of this section and is not withdrawn, any question raised by the counter notice whether this Part of this Act applies to the person by or on whom the counter notice was served or as to the category of undertaker in which the said person is included shall, in default of agreement between him and the Minister, be determined by arbitration under this Act. [1314]

17. Vesting of assets.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, all property, rights, liabilities and obligations which, immediately before such date as may be appointed by order of the Minister (in this Act referred to as "the vesting date"), were property, rights, liabilities and obligations of an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, shall on the vesting date vest by virtue of this Act and without further assurance in such Area Board as may be determined by order of the Minister :

Provided that in the case of a gas holding company the Minister may by order provide that the said property, rights, liabilities and obligations of the company, or such part thereof as may be specified in the order, shall, pending the transfer thereof under the following provisions of this Part of this Act to one or more Area Boards, vest in the Gas Council and not in an Area Board. [1316]

(2) The vesting date shall not be less than three months after the establishment of the Gas Council and all the Area Boards and the definition by order made under Part I of this Act of all the areas for which those Boards are established, and shall not be earlier than the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-nine. [1317]

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, every agreement to which any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies was a party immediately before the vesting date, whether in writing or not, and whether or not of such a nature that rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder could be assigned by the undertaker, shall, unless its terms or subject matter make it impossible that it should have effect as modified in manner provided by this subsection, have effect as from the vesting date as if—

(a) the appropriate Board had been a party to the agreement ;

(b) for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the undertaker there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to the appropriate Board ;

(c) in the case of an undertaker being a company, for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the directors or any director of the company there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to such person as the appropriate Board may direct ;

(d) for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to any officer of the undertaker not being a party to the agreement and beneficially interested therein there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to such person as the appropriate Board may appoint or, in default of appointment, to the officer of the Board who corresponds as nearly as may be to the first mentioned officer ;

(e) in the case of an agreement for the rendering of personal services to the undertaker, the services to which the agreement relates were, on and after the vesting date, any services under the appropriate Board, to be selected by that Board, which are reasonably equivalent services ; and

(f) save as provided by the three last preceding paragraphs, for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the undertaking of the undertaker or any part of that undertaking or to the limits of supply of the undertaker or any part thereof there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to so much of the business carried on by the appropriate Board as corresponds to the undertaking or part of the undertaking of the undertaker or, as the case may be, a reference to the area comprised in the said limits immediately before the vesting date or part thereof. [1318]

(4) Every agreement, whether in writing or not, and every document (not being an agreement or a document to which the last preceding subsection applies or an enactment) which refers whether specifically or generally to any such undertaker shall be construed in accordance with the provisions of the last preceding subsection, so far as applicable. [1319]

(5) Without prejudice to the generality of the preceding provisions of this section, where any right, liability or obligation vests by virtue of this Act, the appropriate Board and all other persons shall, as from the vesting date, have the same rights, powers and remedies (and in particular the same rights as to the taking or resisting of legal proceedings or the making or resisting of applications to any authority) for ascertaining, perfecting or enforcing that right, liability or obligation as they would have had if it had at all times been a right, liability or obligation of the Board, and any legal proceedings or applications to any authority pending on the vesting date by or against the undertaker, in so far as they relate to any property, right, liability or obligation vested by virtue of this Act or to any agreement or document which has effect in accordance with subsection (3) or subsection (4) of this section or to any enactment applied by or under this Act, shall be continued by or against the appropriate Board to the exclusion of the undertaker. [1320]

(6) Notwithstanding anything in this section—

(a) there shall not, by reason of the vesting of property, rights, liabilities or obligations of any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies in any Area Board or in the Gas Council, be transferred to the Board or the Council any right, liability or obligation of the undertaker in respect of any securities issued by the undertaker;

(b) where any agreement provides for the borrowing of money by any such undertaker or the raising of money by the issue of securities of any such undertaker and the money has not been borrowed or raised before the vesting date, no right, liability or obligation under the agreement shall be transferred to any Area Board or to the Gas Council; and

(c) no right, liability or obligation under any agreement for the rendering by any person of services to any such undertaker as a director (other than a managing director or a director whose functions are substantially those of an employee) shall be transferred to any such Board or to the Gas Council, except any liability in respect of fees earned or expenses incurred before the vesting date. [1321]

(7) Regulations may provide for the registration of the title of any Area Board or of the Gas Council to assets vesting in them by virtue of this Act, being assets of a kind subject to provision for the registration of title thereto, and for any matters for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of securing the effective transfer of any assets vesting in any such Board or in the Gas Council by virtue of this Act. [1322]

(8) In this section the expression "the appropriate Board" means—

(a) in relation to any property, rights, liabilities and obligations which vest by virtue of this Act in an Area Board or any agreement or other document which relates to any such property, rights, liabilities or obligations, that Board; and

(b) in relation to any property, rights, liabilities and obligations which vest by virtue of this Act in the Gas Council or any agreement or other document which relates to any such property, rights, liabilities or obligations, that Council. [1323]

18. Provisions as to undertakers whose gas undertakings only are taken over.—(1) In a case where an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies—

(a) is a local authority; or

(b) is a company (in this Act referred to as a "composite company") which supplies water as well as gas under the authority of an enactment; or

(c) is an ancillary gas undertaker; or

(d) is not a body corporate; or

(e) is an Electricity Board;

the provisions of the last preceding section shall only apply to property held or used by the undertaker wholly or mainly for the purposes of his gas undertaking or wholly or mainly in his capacity as a gas undertaker, and to rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred, and agreements made, by the undertaker wholly or mainly for those purposes or in that capacity, and to documents, legal proceedings and applications relating to the purposes of the gas undertaking or to the undertaker in his capacity as a gas undertaker, and references in that section to the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, or to any agreement to which any such undertaker was a party, or to documents referring to any such undertaker or to legal proceedings or applications by or against any such undertaker, shall be construed accordingly, and subsection (9) of the last preceding section shall not apply to any such undertaker;

Provided that this section shall not apply to any undertaker being a composite company, if that undertaker serves on the Minister, not later than four months after the passing of this Act, a notice stating that the undertaker does not wish this section to apply to him, and references in this Act to a composite company shall not be construed as referring to any undertaker who has served such a notice. [1325]

(2) Regulations shall provide—

(a) for the determination of the question whether any property is or was held or used by the undertaker wholly or mainly for the purposes of his gas undertaking, or wholly or mainly in his capacity as a gas undertaker, or whether any rights, liabilities, or obligations were acquired or incurred, or any agreement was made, by the undertaker wholly or mainly for the said purposes or in that capacity, or whether any documents relate to the purposes of the gas undertaking or to the undertaker in his capacity as a gas undertaker ;

(b) for excluding from or including in the property, rights, liabilities and obligations which vest in an Area Board by virtue of this Act and the agreements which have effect in accordance with subsection (3) of the last preceding section such property, rights, liabilities and obligations held, used, acquired or incurred, and such agreements made, by any undertaker to whom this section applies partly for the purposes of his gas undertaking and partly for other purposes, or partly in his capacity as a gas undertaker and partly in any other capacity, on such terms (which may include the payment of money), as may be determined in accordance with the regulations ;

(c) for requiring any Area Board, as respects property which vests in them by virtue of this Act, being property held or used by any undertaker to whom this section applies partly for the purposes of his gas undertaking and partly for other purposes, or partly in his capacity as a gas undertaker and partly in any other capacity, to grant to the undertaker such interests in the property or rights over or attaching to the property or in respect of the user thereof, on such terms (which may include the payment of money) as may be determined in accordance with the regulations, or for requiring the similar grant of interests or rights by the undertaker to the Area Board in a case where such property does not vest in the Board ;

(d) for conferring on any Area Board in whom land of any undertaker to whom this section applies is vested easements and other rights over or attaching to other land of the undertaker, being easements and rights which are required to enable land which is so vested to be used for the purposes of the Board, on such terms (which may include the payment of money) as may be determined in accordance with the regulations ;

(e) for the severance of leases comprising land of which part only vests in an Area Board by virtue of this Act, and for apportionments and indemnities consequent on such severance ;

(f) for substituting for any agreement entered into by any undertaker to whom this section applies partly for the purposes of his gas undertaking and partly for other purposes or partly in his capacity as a gas undertaker and partly in any other capacity separate agreements in the requisite terms, and for any apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon ;

(g) for the apportionment of, and the making of financial adjustments with respect to, any liabilities incurred by any undertaker to whom this section applies partly for the purposes of his gas undertaking and partly for other purposes, or partly in his capacity as a gas undertaker and partly in any other capacity, and for any necessary variation of mortgages and encumbrances relating to such liabilities ; and

(h) for any other matters supplementary to or consequential on the matters aforesaid for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient.

For the purposes of this subsection, any property which is held or used by any undertaker to whom this section applies temporarily for the purposes of his gas undertaking and normally for other purposes, or normally for the purposes of his gas undertaking and temporarily for other purposes, shall be deemed to be property held or used by the undertaker partly for the purposes of his gas undertaking and partly for other purposes. [1326]

(3) Where at any time before the expiration of three months beginning with the vesting date any undertaker to whom this section applies has served on the Area Board concerned, or the Area Board has served on the undertaker, a notice in the prescribed form stating that a question has arisen under this section or under any regulations made thereunder as to—

(a) whether any property is or was held or used by the undertaker wholly or mainly for the purposes of his gas undertaking or in his capacity as a gas undertaker and accordingly vests in the Area Board by virtue of this Act;

(b) whether any property of the undertaker ought to be excluded from or included in the property which so vests; or

(c) whether interests in any property of the undertaker, or rights over or attaching to such property or in respect of the user thereof, ought to be granted by the undertaker to the Area Board or by the Board to the undertaker;

and the question has not been determined before the vesting date, the property concerned shall not, pending such determination, vest in the Area Board by virtue of this Act and, if the notice is given after the vesting date, shall be deemed not to have so vested, but the property shall, so far as it is so to vest having regard to the determination, vest on such date as may be determined, and pending the determination of the said question and, if any property is to vest or any interests or rights are to be granted in accordance therewith, pending the vesting or granting thereof, the Area Board shall be entitled and shall be deemed to have been entitled as from the vesting date to use the property for the like purposes and to the like extent as it was used, immediately before that date, by the undertaker for the purposes of his gas undertaking, on such terms (which may include the payment of money) as may be determined in accordance with the regulations. [1327]

(4) Nothing in the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act shall have effect so as to vest in any Area Board or provide for the apportionment to any Area Board of any liabilities or obligations of any local authority in respect of any loan raised by the authority, or any property forming part of a sinking fund established for the redemption of any such loan. [1328]

(5) No part of the cash and investments of a composite company shall vest in an Area Board under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act, but regulations shall, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to the final payment of dividends and interest, provide for the apportionment, as between the Board and the company, of the whole of the cash and investments of the company, together with any income accruing thereon pending such apportionment, in such shares as may be determined in accordance with the regulations.

Any references in the following provisions of this Act to property which vests by virtue of this Act shall include a reference to property apportioned to an Area Board under this section. [1329]

(6) No cash or investments of an ancillary gas undertaker or an undertaker who is not a body corporate shall vest in an Area Board under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act. [1330]

(7) Any property of any undertaker to whom this section applies which vests in an Area Board, being property subject to a mortgage or encumbrance created for securing the payment of any debt which does not vest in the Board by virtue of this Act and is not apportioned as between the Board and the undertaker, shall vest free of the mortgage or encumbrance. [1331]

(8) Regulations made under this section shall provide that any questions to be determined in accordance with the regulations shall be determined by agreement between the Area Board and the undertaker concerned, or in default of agreement shall—

(a) in a case where the undertaker concerned is a local authority, be determined by the Minister of Health; and

(b) in any other case, be determined by arbitration under this Act. [1332]

(9) In relation to undertakers to whom this section applies or any class of such undertakers, references in the following provisions of this Part of this Act to an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies (not being references which expressly exclude undertakers to whom this section applies or that class of those undertakers) shall be construed as referring to those undertakers in their capacity as gas undertakers and in that capacity only. Adjustment of matters outstanding as between accounts of gas undertaking and other accounts of local authority.—(1) Where a local authority have before the vesting date made arrangements for the making of financial adjustments, as between the accounts of the gas undertaking of the local authority and any other account of the local authority, in respect of any transaction or matter affecting both their functions as a gas undertaker and other functions of the authority, and in pursuance of those arrangements any amounts would, but for this Act, have fallen on or after the vesting date properly to be debited or credited in the accounts of the gas undertaking of the local authority and credited, or, as the case may be, debited, in some other account of the local authority, the Area Board in whom property, rights, liabilities and obligations of the local authority vest by virtue of this Act shall, subject as hereinafter provided, pay those amounts to the local authority or be entitled to receive those amounts from the authority, as the case may be, at the times at which, but for this Act, those amounts would have fallen to be debited or credited in the accounts of the gas undertaking of the local authority :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply in relation to any apportionment of establishment charges between the accounts of the gas undertaking and other accounts of the local authority. [1334]

(2) The said Area Board and the local authority may agree or the Minister of Health may, on the application of either party in default of such agreement, determine that, having regard to the circumstances in which any such arrangements were made and the circumstances arising under this Act, the last preceding subsection shall not apply to those arrangements or shall apply thereto with such modifications as to the payments to be made by the Board or the local authority as may be so agreed or determined, and the said subsection shall have effect subject to any such agreement or determination.

Any other question arising under the last preceding subsection as to the payments to be made thereunder shall, in default of agreement, be determined by the Minister of Health. [1335]

(3) Any payment made by the said Area Board or the local authority under the preceding provisions of this section which would, but for this Act, have been debited or credited as a capital payment shall be deemed to be a capital payment, and any other such payment shall be deemed to be an annual payment. [1336]

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to any arrangements made with respect to any loan raised or advance made for the purposes of the gas undertaking of the local authority. [1337]

20. Payments in respect of reserves of composite companies.—(1) Where, in the case of a composite company, a reserve is shown in the last audited balance sheet of the company before the vesting date, and either—

(a) the reserve or a part thereof is derived from profits made by such part of the company's undertaking as is not included in the gas undertaking or from other assets held for the purposes of that part of the company's undertaking but is represented immediately before the vesting date by assets (other than cash or investments) which will vest by virtue of this Act in an Area Board ; or

(b) the reserve or a part thereof is derived from profits made by the gas undertaking of the company or from other assets held for the purposes of the gas undertaking but is represented immediately before the said date by assets (other than cash or investments) which will not vest as aforesaid, the Area Board shall, in the first mentioned case, pay to the company, and, in the second mentioned case, be entitled to receive from the company, a sum equal to the amount of the reserve or part thereof. [1338]

(2) Any question arising under the preceding subsection shall, in default of agreement, be determined by arbitration under this Act. [1339]

(3) This section shall apply in relation to any provision (within the meaning of paragraph 1 of Part IV of the Eighth Schedule to the Companies Act, 1948) shown in the said balance sheet and in relation to any undistributed profits so shown as it applies in relation to a reserve so shown. [1340]

(4) Any payment made by an Area Board or composite company under this section shall be deemed to be a capital payment. [1341]

General note.—This section is designed to adjust the position where an Area Board comes into possession of an asset purchased from a reserve built up out of the profits of the water side of the undertaking and, conversely, where the company retains an asset purchased from reserves accumulated from gas profits.

21. Right of pre-emption for local authorities and composite companies in respect of land vested in an Area Board.—(1) Where any land of a local authority or composite company vests by virtue of this Act in an Area Board, the authority or company shall, for a period of ten years from the date of the vesting of the land, have the right of pre-emption conferred by the subsequent provisions of this section. [1342]

(2) If the Area Board in whom the land vests by virtue of this Act, or any other Area Board to whom it is subsequently transferred, desire within the said period of ten years, to dispose to any person other than an Area Board, whether absolutely or for a term of years, of any of that land as being land not required by the Board for the discharge of their functions under this Act, they shall before disposing of it give to the local authority or composite company at least three months' notice, stating whether they desire to dispose of it absolutely and, if not, stating the term of years for which they desire to dispose of it. [1343]

(3) Where the local authority or composite company receive a notice under subsection (2) of this section and notify the Board, before the expiration of the period of three months from the date of the Board's notice, that they desire to acquire the land either absolutely or for the term of years specified in the Board's notice, as the case may be, they shall have the right and be under an obligation to acquire that land on such terms as may be agreed between the Board and the authority or company or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by arbitration to be fair and reasonable having regard to all the circumstances of the case. [1344]

(4) The right of pre-emption conferred upon the local authority or composite company by this section shall be deemed to be an estate contract within the meaning of section ten of the Land Charges Act, 1925, and that Act and the Land Registration Act, 1925, shall have effect accordingly. [1345]

22. Disclaimer of agreements and leases.—(1) Where there are vested in any Area Board or in the Gas Council the rights, liabilities and obligations of any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, being rights, liabilities and obligations under an agreement made or varied on or after the nineteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-five, and the Board or Council are of opinion that the making or the variation of that agreement was not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the activities of the said undertaker or that the agreement was made or varied with an unreasonable lack of prudence on the part of the said undertaker, the Board or Council may, by notice in writing given to the other parties to the agreement before the expiration of three months from the vesting date, disclaim the agreement:

Provided that any of the said parties may, within the prescribed period from the date on which the notice is served, refer to arbitration under this Act the question whether or not the agreement ought to be disclaimed. [1346]

(2) On such arbitration, the arbitration tribunal, if satisfied that the agreement or variation was not reasonably necessary as aforesaid or was made with unreasonable lack of prudence, shall confirm the notice and if not so satisfied shall revoke it:

Provided that, if the arbitration tribunal are satisfied that the agreement or variation thereof was made in the ordinary course of business and was in no way connected with any provision made by this Act, or with any anticipation of the making of any such provision, the tribunal shall revoke the notice. [1347]

(3) Where a notice is so given by an Area Board or by the Gas Council with respect to any agreement and is not revoked by the arbitration tribunal—

(a) subsection (3) of section seventeen of this Act shall be deemed never to have applied to the agreement;

(b) the agreement shall be deemed to have been frustrated on the vesting date and the parties thereto for that reason to have been discharged from the further performance thereof; and

(c) the like consequences shall follow as between the Board or Council and any party to the agreement who, before the date on which the notice of disclaimer becomes final, has in pursuance of the agreement, supplied goods or rendered services to the Board or Council which they have accepted, or to whom, before the said date, the Board or Council have, in pursuance of the agreement, supplied goods or rendered services which he has accepted, as would have followed if those goods or services had been supplied or rendered at the request of the Board or Council or of that party, as the case may be, apart from the agreement, and any payments by or to the Board or Council before the said date shall be adjusted accordingly.

For the purposes of this subsection a person who permits another to use or enjoy any property or rights shall be deemed to render a service to him. [1348]

(4) Subsections (1) and (2) of this section, but not subsection (3), shall apply to leases, and where a notice of disclaimer is given by an Area Board or by the Gas Council under subsection (1) with respect to any lease and is not revoked by the arbitration tribunal, the lease shall be deemed to be surrendered on the date on which the notice of disclaimer becomes final. [1349]

(5) Where any lease is disclaimed under this section the arbitration tribunal may, on the application of the Board or Council who gave the notice or the other party to the lease, make such modifications (if any) of the provisions of the lease relating to repairing obligations or any other provisions taking effect on or within a limited time before the determination of the lease as they think just. [1350]

(6) Where any agreement (other than a lease) is disclaimed under this section, then, for the purposes of the Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act, 1943, the Area Board or the Gas Council, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have been a party to the agreement in lieu of the undertaker from whom rights, liabilities or obligations thereunder were or would, but for the frustration, have been transferred. [1351]

(7) For the purposes of this section a notice of disclaimer which is not revoked shall be deemed to become final on the following date, that is to say,—

(a) if no reference to arbitration is made under subsection (1) of this section, the date on which the period for making such a reference expires;

(b) in any other case, the date on which the notice is confirmed by the arbitration tribunal. [1352]

(8) This section shall not apply to any agreement or lease made or varied with the previous consent of the Minister of Health given for the purpose of any enactment other than this section nor shall it apply to any agreement or lease the making or variation of which has been approved in writing by the Minister, either generally or specially and whether before or after the date of the making or variation of the agreement or lease. [1353]

[1354]

(2) The first-mentioned Area Board shall have power in accordance with any arrangements made or directions given under this section to continue the said supply of gas, but such arrangements and directions shall only have effect pending the transfer under the next following section to the Area Board in whose area the gas is so supplied, of the property, rights, liabilities and obligations used for the purposes of or arising in connection with such supply. (2) The Minister may provide by order for the transfer to any Area Board of any property, rights, liabilities or obligations vested by virtue of this Act in another such Board. [1357]

(3) Any order made under this section may make provision—

(a) for the modification of agreements so far as necessary for giving effect to any transfer of rights, liabilities and obligations made by the order and, in a case where part only of the rights, liabilities and obligations under any agreement are transferred, for substituting for the agreement separate agreements in the requisite terms, and for any apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon;

(b) for the purpose of transferring part of the land comprised in any lease vested in any Area Board, for the severance of that lease, and for apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon;

(c) for such other financial adjustments between the parties to any such transfer as may be required in consequence of the transfer, and for any other matters supplementary to or consequential on the matters aforesaid for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient, including the continuation of proceedings. Compensation to holders of securities

25. Compensation to holders of securities.—(1) Every holder of securities of any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, not being an undertaker to whom section eighteen of this Act applies, shall be entitled to be compensated by the issue to him by the Gas Council, in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule to this Act, of British Gas Stock of such amount as in the opinion of the Treasury is at the vesting date of a value equal to the value of the said securities held by him, regard being had (in estimating the value of the stock so issued) to the market value of government securities at or about the vesting date:

Provided that—

(a) if the whole of the beneficial interest in any such securities was, immediately before the vesting date, vested in any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, other than a composite company, an ancillary gas undertaker or an undertaker who is not a body corporate, no compensation shall be payable in respect of those securities and the securities shall be extinguished on the vesting date; and

(b) if the holder of any such securities was such an undertaker as aforesaid, but the whole of the beneficial interest was not so vested, the stock issued as aforesaid in respect of those securities shall be held by the appropriate Board, and the said Schedule shall have effect as if the said Board were the holders of those securities. [1360]

(2) Where securities of any class were quoted in the Stock Exchange Official Daily List on all six of the following dates, that is to say, the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth and twentieth days of October, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and were also quoted in the said list or in the Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List on any of the following dates, that is to say, the fifteenth day of February, the fifteenth day of March, the sixteenth day of April, the fifteenth day of May, the fifteenth day of June and the sixteenth day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-five, the value of securities of that class for the purposes of this section shall, subject to the provisions of this section and the next following section, be deemed to be either—

(a) the average of the mean of the quotations for securities of that class appearing in the said Stock Exchange Official Daily List on the said dates in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, or

(b) the average of the mean of the quotations for securities of that class appearing in the said Stock Exchange Official Daily List or the said Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List on the said dates in the year nineteen hundred and forty-five on which a quotation therefor so appeared, whichever is the higher, such addition, if any, being made to the higher average as is necessary to make it a complete multiple of one penny:

Provided that a quotation appearing in any of the said lists shall be disregarded for the purposes of this section unless business is recorded in that list as having been done at any time during the six months immediately before the date of that list. [1361]

(3) Where, in the case of any class of securities to which the last preceding subsection applies, there has been at any time after the last relevant quotation date a fresh issue of securities of that class, the value of every security of that class for the purposes of this section shall, instead of being determined under the last preceding subsection, be deemed to be the average of the values of all the securities of that class calculated on the basis that—

(a) the value of each of the securities comprised in that issue is the price at which it was issued, and

(b) the value of the remaining securities is the value which those securities had or would have had for the purposes of this section immediately before the issue took place. [1362]

(4) Where, at any time after the last relevant quotation date any securities to which subsection (2) or subsection (3) of this section applies have been converted into securities of a different nominal value—

(a) the value of those securities as so converted shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a value bearing to the value which the securities had or would have had for the purposes of this section immediately before the conversion took place the same proportion as the nominal value of the securities as converted bears to the nominal value of the securities immediately before the conversion took place; and

(b) the last preceding subsection shall apply to any fresh issue of securities which have been converted as aforesaid, but if a part only of a class of securities has been converted as aforesaid, the converted securities shall, for the purposes of the last preceding subsection, be treated as securities of a different class from that of the unconverted securities. [1363]

(5) Subject to the next following subsection, where a new class of securities has been issued at any time after the twentieth day of October, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, the value of securities of that class for the purposes of this section shall be deemed to be the price at which they were issued, and the last two preceding subsections shall apply to any fresh issue or conversion of securities of that class. [1364]

(6) Subsections (2), (3) and (5) of this section shall not apply to any securities issued at any time after the thirty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and forty-five, on terms and conditions approved by the Minister and for the purpose of raising money for purposes so approved, and the value of any such securities for the purposes of this section shall be deemed to be the price at which they were issued, and subsection (4) of this section shall apply to any conversion of those securities. [1365]

(7) If securities to which either of the two last preceding subsections applies have been disposed of by public auction or tender, the price of issue of those securities shall for the purposes of this section be deemed—

(a) if the holder of the securities is the person who originally acquired them or his successor in title other than a purchaser for value, to be the price which he originally paid for them;

(b) in any other case, to be the average gross price obtained by the undertaker for securities of that class so disposed of. [1366]

(8) If all the securities of any issue were originally disposed of to a person who did not become the registered holder of those securities, the price of issue of each of those securities shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be either—

(a) the price paid for that security by the first registered holder thereof; or

(b) the price received by the company for the security plus an amount equal to two and a half per cent. of that price;

whichever is the lower. [1367]

(9) If any question arises under any of the last seven preceding subsections as to the value of any securities, it shall be settled by agreement between the Minister and the stockholders' representative appointed under the following provisions of this Part of this Act, or, in default of such agreement, determined by arbitration under this Act. [1368]

(10) For the purposes of this section, the value of any securities, not being securities to which subsection (2), (3), (4), (5) or (6) of this section applies, shall be such value as may be agreed between the Minister and the said stockholders' representative or, in default of such agreement, as may be determined by arbitration under this Act, and the arbitration tribunal, in determining the value of those securities, shall have regard to all relevant factors including, as far as may be, the value of securities to which subsection (2) of this section applies (as determined under that subsection), being securities which, as respects all matters affecting their value, are most nearly comparable to the first mentioned securities, and if, in relation to any class of securities to which this subsection applies, such a fresh issue or conversion of securities as is mentioned in subsection (3) or subsection (4) of this section has occurred, the arbitration tribunal shall also have regard, as far as may be, to the manner in which the value of securities is to be determined in cases to which the said subsection (3) or subsection (4) applies. [1369]

(11) In this section—

the expression "the Stock Exchange Official Daily List" means the publication known as the Stock Exchange Daily List of Officially Quoted Securities which is published by and under the authority of the Council of the Stock Exchange, London;

the expression "the Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List" means the publication known as the Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List of Securities not Officially Quoted which was published by and under the authority of the Council of the Stock Exchange, London;

the expression "quotation" has the same meaning as in the Stock Exchange Official Daily List or the Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List, as the case may be, and, accordingly, does not include the statements of the business that was done;

the expression "the mean of quotations" means the average of the two figures shown in the Stock Exchange Official Daily List or the Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List, as the case may be, on the date in question in respect of the security in question under the heading "Quotations" or "Nominal Quotations";

the expression "the last relevant quotation date", in relation to any securities to which subsection (2), (3) or (4) applies, means the last of the dates mentioned in the said subsection (2) on which a quotation for securities of that class appeared in either of the said lists, being a quotation by reference to which the value of securities of that class is determined for the purposes of this section. [1370]

(12) For the purposes of this section and the following provisions of this Part of this Act, securities to which the same rights attach shall be deemed to constitute a class of securities. [1371]

Sub-s. (6).—This subsection implements an undertaking given by the Minister to the Cheltenham Gas Company in respect to an issue approved by him before January 1, 1946, but not fully taken up until after that date. It will, of course, also cover any other case of an incompletely taken-up issue.

26. Increase of value of securities of companies suffering loss of revenue from war causes.—(1) If it appears to the Minister, on representations made by the stockholders' representative for any company, within the prescribed period, that

(a) the total sales of gas by the company in the year nineteen hundred and forty-three or in either of the two succeeding years, as shown in the annual returns furnished to the Board of Trade or, as the case may be, the Minister under section fifteen of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920 or section eleven of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, excluding sales to any other person carrying on a gas undertaking, were, by reason of any war damage (within the meaning of section two of the War Damage Act, 1943) suffered by the company or by reason of any transfer of population from any part of the area supplied by the company caused by circumstances arising out of the war, substantially lower than in the year nineteen hundred and thirty-eight; and

(b) as a result, the quotations in the Stock Exchange Official Daily List or in the Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List (as defined in the last preceding section) on the dates referred to in subsection (2) of the last preceding section for any class of securities of the company other than debentures, debenture stock and mortgages, were lower than they would otherwise have been, the Minister shall direct that the values of those securities for the purposes of the last preceding section shall be increased by such amount as may be agreed between him and the stockholders' representative to be necessary to offset the said depreciation in the said quotations. [1372]

(2) If the Minister refuses, after representations have been made to him by a stockholders' representative, to give a direction under the preceding subsection, or if the Minister and a stockholders' representative are unable to agree on the amount of the increase to be made in the value of any securities, the stockholders' representative may refer the matter to the arbitration tribunal and the tribunal shall—

(a) if, in a case where the Minister has refused to give a direction, they are satisfied with respect to the matters referred to in the preceding subsection, direct such increase as they think necessary to offset the depreciation aforesaid; or

(b) in a case where the only question is as to the amount of the increase, fix that amount. [1373]

(3) On a reference under this section, the arbitration tribunal may, if they think it just to do so, having regard to the principles on which costs are awarded in the High Court, direct that, in the case of any securities to which the reference relates, the total compensation payable in respect thereof shall be reduced by an amount determined by the tribunal, not exceeding the costs incurred by all parties to the arbitration proceedings, and the amount of the reduction of the total compensation aforesaid shall be apportioned among such of the said securities in respect of which compensation is payable, and in such manner, as the tribunal may determine. [1374]

(4) Where the value of any securities falls to be determined under subsection (10) of the last preceding section and, if those securities had been quoted in the said Stock Exchange Official Daily List or in the said Stock Exchange Daily Supplementary List on the dates referred to in subsection (2) of that section, the value thereof would have been increased under this section, then, in determining their value under the said subsection (10), a corresponding increase shall be made in the value thereof. [1375]

(5) This section shall apply to a holding company, being an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, with the modification that for the references in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) to the company there shall be substituted references to a subsidiary of the company, and where a reference is made under subsection (2) of this section in the case of a holding company and a subsidiary thereof, the proceedings shall be heard together. [1376]

(a) the aggregate value of all the securities of the company shall be ascertained in accordance with sections twenty-five and twenty-six of this Act, subject to the modification that for any references in those sections to the stockholders' representative there shall be substituted references to the company;

(b) there shall be ascertained the proportion which the average net revenue earned by the gas undertaking of the company in respect of the last three complete financial years before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, bears to the average net revenue earned in respect of those years by the company's undertaking as a whole;

(c) the amount of the compensation shall be the aggregate of the following amounts—

(i) an amount bearing to the aggregate value of the said securities the same proportion as the said average net revenue of the gas undertaking bears to the said average net revenue of the company's undertaking as a whole, and

(ii) an amount, by way of compensation in respect of the severance of the gas undertaking from the remainder of the company's undertaking, consisting of a sum of three pounds and ten shillings for each complete one thousand of the therms which, in accordance with the annual return made by the company under section fifteen of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, were sold by the company during the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven. [1391]

(5) Interest on any stock so issued after the vesting date shall begin to accrue as from the vesting date, and the Gas Council shall, on such dates as the Minister may direct, make to the company payments of interest not exceeding the amount which, in the opinion of the Gas Council, will be found to have accrued on the British Gas Stock ultimately issued in satisfaction of the compensation.

If the amounts paid to any company by the Gas Council under this subsection are equal to or greater than the amount of interest which is found to have accrued on the said stock for the period beginning with the vesting date and ending immediately before the date of the issue of the stock, the interest so found to have accrued shall be treated as discharged, and if the amount paid as aforesaid is less than the amount found to have accrued as aforesaid, the amount so found to have accrued shall be treated as discharged to the extent of the amount so paid, and the balance shall be added to and treated as part of the interest (being interest accruing on and after the issue of the stock) which first falls to be paid after the issue of that stock. [1392]

(a) for conferring a right on the holder of any debentures or debenture stock of a composite company, or on the company, by notice given within the prescribed period to the other party, to require the transfer to the holder of such amount of the British Gas Stock issued to the company under this section as is attributable to the value of the said securities held by him, and for the cancellation of those securities to a proportionate extent;

Control of dividends and interest and safeguarding of assets pending transfer

33. Control of dividends, interest and other payments.—(1) Where any company, being an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies but not an ancillary gas undertaker, have paid pursuant to a resolution passed after the twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, interest or a dividend on any of their securities in respect of the last complete financial year before the said day or any subsequent period, being payments which, regard being had to any interest or interim dividend paid before the said day in respect of that year or period, are in excess of the payments of interest or dividend permitted under this section, all persons who were directors of the company at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed authorising or recommending the payments shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the appropriate Board an amount equal to the total amount of the excess:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to any payment approved by the Minister, whether before or after the making of the payment, being a payment made in pursuance of a recommendation of the directors of the company made on or before the said twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight. [1399]

(2) The payments of interest or dividend permitted under this section are as follows:—

(a) in the case of securities in respect of which rates of interest are fixed, payments at those rates;
(b) in the case of preference stock, payments at the preferential rates; or
(c) in the case of any other class of securities, payments of dividend at a rate not exceeding four per cent. per annum or the rate, calculated as a rate per annum, paid on that class of securities in respect of the last complete financial year in respect of which a final dividend was paid before the said twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, whichever is the higher :

Provided that—

(i) where any local enactment applicable to any such company provides for regulating dividends payable by the company by reference to a basic price or standard price and the relationship thereto of the prices charged, or the highest price charged, by the company for gas supplied by the company, paragraph (c) hereof shall not apply to that company and, in the case of any securities of a class mentioned in that paragraph, the payments of dividend that the company is entitled to make apart from this Act shall be deemed to be the payments of dividend permitted under this section, and if the company has made, at any time after the said day and before the nineteenth day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, any payments of dividend which were less than the payments aforesaid, the amount of the deficiency may, notwithstanding any local enactment, be declared and paid by way of dividend at any time before the vesting date ;

(ii) where any local enactment applicable to any such company, other than such an enactment as aforesaid, restricts the dividends payable by the company in respect of the last complete financial year before the said day or any subsequent period to amounts less than the payments permitted under paragraph (c) hereof, those amounts shall be deemed to be the payments of dividend permitted under this section in respect of that year or period in the case of any securities of the company of a class mentioned in that paragraph ;

(iii) the payments permitted under this section shall only be made out of the net revenue of the company for the period in respect of which the payment is made, or out of any funds applicable in accordance with the normal practice for the purpose of maintaining interest payments and equalising rates of dividend, and any payment shall, so far as it is made otherwise than out of that revenue, or out of those funds, not be permitted under this section ;

(iv) where a fresh issue has been made after the said day of securities of a class mentioned in paragraph (c) hereof, being a class on which the annual rate of dividend paid in respect of the said last complete financial year exceeded four per cent. per annum, the payments of dividend permitted under this section on the securities so issued shall not, except with the approval of the Minister, exceed a rate of four per cent. per annum ; and

(v) in the case of any securities of a class mentioned in paragraph (c) hereof, being a class on which a final dividend was never paid before the said day, the Minister may approve a rate exceeding four per cent. as the rate at which payments of dividend are permitted under this section. [1400]

(3) Where any such company as aforesaid have, without the approval of the Minister, paid after the twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, a dividend in respect of any period prior to the last complete financial year before the said day, all persons who were directors of the company at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed authorising or recommending the payments shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the appropriate Board an amount equal to the total amounts of the payments :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to payments of dividend on cumulative preference stock, being payments which are required to be made in priority to the payment of any dividend on ordinary capital and are made out of the net revenue of the company for the said last complete financial year or any subsequent period. [1401]

(4) Where, at any time after the twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, any such company as aforesaid have, without the approval of the Minister,—

(a) made any payments to their members for the purpose of reducing the share capital of the company otherwise than by redemption of any redeemable preference stock;

(b) made any other payments to their members out of capital moneys; or

(c) distributed assets other than money to their members, all persons who were directors of the company at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed authorising or recommending the payments or distribution shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the appropriate Board an amount equal to the total amount of the payments or, as the case may be, the total value of the assets distributed:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to any such payment or distribution to any such member otherwise than in his capacity as a member. [1402]

(5) Where, at any time after the said day, any such company as aforesaid have redeemed any securities which the company were not under an obligation to redeem before the vesting date, or made payments in respect of the redemption of any securities which exceed the minimum payments required to satisfy the rights existing on the said day of the holders of the securities, all persons who were directors of the company at the time when the resolution of the directors authorising or recommending the redemption or the payments in respect thereof was passed shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the appropriate Board—

(a) in the case of securities which the company were not obliged to redeem, the amount (if any) by which the sums paid in respect of the redemption of those securities exceed the compensation which would have been payable under this Part of this Act (but for the redemption) to the holders of those securities; or

(b) in the case of securities which the company were obliged to redeem but for which the payments made exceeded the said minimum payments, an amount equal to the total amount of the excess. [1403]

(6) For the purposes of this section—

(a) any payment by a company to its members in their capacity as members out of the net revenue of the company shall be deemed to be a payment of dividend; and

(b) any transaction the effect of which is that assets of a company are transferred to any person otherwise than in the capacity of a member of the company, and the consideration for such transfer is given to the members of the company or any class thereof, shall be deemed to be a distribution of those assets to the members of the company or that class thereof. [1404]

(7) Any claim under this section by the appropriate Board against the directors of any such company as aforesaid shall be made before the expiration of a period of twelve months beginning with the vesting date, and if so made and not settled by agreement, shall be determined by arbitration under this Act, and, if the arbitration tribunal decide the claim in favour of the appropriate Board, the tribunal shall make such orders against all or any of the said directors in respect of their liability on the claim as the tribunal think just, having regard to all the circumstances. [1405]

(8) References in this section to any payments of interest or dividend made or permitted to be made by any company shall be construed as references to the gross amounts of those payments, that is to say, to the amounts thereof before any deduction is made therefrom in respect of income tax, and, if any such payment has been made by a company without deduction of income tax, the amount paid shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to be a net amount paid after deduction of income tax, and the gross amount of that payment for the purposes of this section shall be calculated accordingly :

Provided that, in determining the amount recoverable under this section from the directors of any company in respect of payments of interest or dividend made by that company, there shall be deducted from the amount which would, but for this proviso, be so recoverable a sum equal to the income tax chargeable on that amount at the standard rate for the year in which the payments became due. [1406]

(9) This section shall, in relation to any composite company, have effect subject to the following modifications :—

(a) subsections (1), (3), (4) and (5) shall only apply to payments and distributions made, and redemptions carried out, before the vesting date ;

(b) any liabilities arising under this section shall be liabilities of the company and not of the directors ; and

(c) any such liability shall be reduced by applying thereto the proportion ascertained under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section thirty of this Act. [1407]

General note.—This section corresponds to s. 26 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 447).

January 23, 1948.—This is the date on which the text of the Bill was published.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

Basic or standard prices.—The reference in the first proviso to sub-s. (2), supra, is to "basic price" and "sliding scale" companies. In a "sliding scale" company, an increase in dividend was permitted proportionate to the amount, less than a certain price known as the standard price, which was charged to consumers for gas. The "basic price" company adopted a variation of the sliding scale. First, a calculation was made at the end of each financial period of what the consumers would have paid if all the gas supplied, otherwise than in bulk, had been supplied at the basic price. From this was deducted the actual amount charged to the consumers, and the difference was known as the consumers' share. Then, so far as after paying the preference and ordinary basic dividend, the net profits permitted, the directors might pay a sum not exceeding one-third of the consumers' share equally in payment of increased dividends and for the benefit of the employees of the company.

34. Final payment of dividends and interest.—(1) As soon as possible after the vesting date, there shall, in the case of any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies other than an undertaker to whom section eighteen of this Act applies, be ascertained and certified by an auditor appointed by the President of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales after consultation with the appropriate Board and the stockholders' representative—

(a) the net revenue of the undertaker for the final financial period ;

(b) the total gross amounts paid by the undertaker by way of interest or interim dividend on any securities in respect of the final financial period ; and

(c) the amount (if any) by which the said net revenue exceeds the said total amounts ; and the appropriate Board shall pay to the stockholders' representative the amount referred to in paragraph (c) hereof.

There shall be paid to the auditor out of moneys provided by Parliament such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances as the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine, and the amount of the remuneration and allowances shall be repaid to the Minister by the appropriate Board on demand. [1408]

(2) The appropriate Board, if they think fit, may, before the auditor's certificate is given, make payments to the stockholders' representative on account. [1409]

(3) The stockholders' representative shall apply the sums paid to him under the preceding provisions of this section (so far as they will go) for the following purposes and in the following order of priority :—

(a) in making interest payments on any debentures or debenture stock of the undertaker, which have accrued up to the vesting date and have not been paid, at the rates permitted under the last preceding section ;

(b) in making such a distribution as is mentioned in the next following subsection to the holders of other securities, if any, of the undertaker ; and

(c) in repaying the balance, if any, to the appropriate Board. [1410]

(4) The distribution falling to be made under paragraph (b) of the last preceding subsection shall be a distribution under which the holders of the securities there referred to become entitled to the same gross amounts as they would have become entitled to if—

(a) the statutory or other provisions relating to the undertaker had permitted payments of interest or dividend in respect of the final financial period ;

(b) the undertaker had had available for distribution the sums paid to the stockholders' representative under this section less the amount applied in making the payments mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last preceding subsection ; and

(c) the undertaker had applied the amount so available for distribution, or so much thereof as was required for the purpose, in making payments of interest or dividend for the final financial period, at the rates permitted under the last preceding section, to the holders of the securities in question, in the proper order of priority, and according to their respective rights, due regard being had to any interest or interim dividend already paid in respect of the final financial period and all necessary adjustments being made where the said period is not a period for which interest or dividend would be payable under the statutory or other provisions relating to those securities :

Provided that the amounts to which the holders would have become entitled by way of interest or dividend for the final financial period in the event contemplated by paragraph (c) of this subsection shall be computed as if the amounts deducted in respect of income tax from the payments mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last preceding subsection and from any payments made under paragraph (b) of that subsection in respect of any securities were not available for paying any other interest or dividend. [1411]

(5) Where the sums paid to the stockholders' representative under the preceding provisions of this section are insufficient to enable him—

(a) to make the interest payments referred to in paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section at the maximum rates permitted under the last preceding section ; and

(b) to distribute to the holders of the securities referred to in paragraph (b) of that subsection gross amounts equal to payments of interest or dividend on those securities at the maximum rates so permitted, and the undertaker possessed immediately before the vesting date funds applicable in accordance with the normal practice for the purpose of maintaining payments of interest and equalising rates of dividend, the appropriate Board shall pay to the stockholders' representative an additional amount equal to the total amount of the said funds so possessed or to the total amount of the said deficiency, whichever is the less, and the stockholders' representative shall apply that amount in like manner as the other sums paid to him under this section. [1412]

(6) The persons who receive any payment made by a stockholders' representative under the preceding provisions of this section, shall, subject to the provisions of the next following subsection, hold the payment in the same right and on the same trusts and subject to the same powers, privileges, charges and liabilities as those in, on, or subject to which any payment of interest or dividend in respect of the securities in question would have been held by them. [1413]

(7) Where any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, other than an ancillary gas undertaker or an undertaker who is not a body corporate, was the holder of, or had any interest in, any securities of an undertaker in respect of whose securities payments are made under this section, the appropriate Board (in relation to the first-mentioned undertaker) shall have the like right to receive and hold, or benefit from, a payment under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of subsection (3) of this section as they would have had if they had been the holder of, or had had that interest in, those securities :

Provided that, except where the undertaker by whom the securities or interest therein were or was held is an undertaker to whom section eighteen of this Act applies, the gross amounts of any such payments or of the benefit therefrom shall be included in the net revenue of the undertaker for the final financial period for the purposes of this section. [1414]

(8) Where, before the vesting date, there became due from any undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, other than an undertaker to whom section eighteen of this Act applies, any payment by way of interest or dividend or any payment by way of a redemption of any security, and, by reason only that it was not possible to discover the person entitled thereto, or that the title to the payment had not been established, or that a cheque or warrant issued for the purpose of effecting the payment had not been encashed, that payment was not made before the vesting date, the liability in respect of that payment shall pass to the appropriate Board. [1415]

(9) Where the stockholders' representative is for any reason unable to effect payment of any sum falling to be paid by him under this section, or where a receipt cannot effectively be given for any such sum, the stockholders' representative may pay that sum to the appropriate Board and, on the said sum being so paid, the liability of the stockholders' representative for the payment of that sum shall pass to the appropriate Board. [1416]

(10) The following provisions shall have effect in the case of a composite company, that is to say :—

(a) there shall be ascertained and certified as soon as possible after the vesting date by an auditor appointed by the Minister, after consultation with the appropriate Board, the net revenue of the company for the final financial period ;

(b) there shall be ascertained and certified by the said auditor as soon as possible after the vesting date the amount required to enable the company to make payments of interest or dividend in respect of the final financial period on all their securities at the full rates permitted under the last preceding section, assuming that the statutory or other provisions relating to the company permitted payments of interest or dividend in respect of that period and due regard being had to any interest or interim dividend already paid in respect of that period; and

(c) the said net revenue shall not, except to the extent (if any) to which it exceeds the amount ascertained and certified under paragraph (b) hereof, be subject to apportionment as between the company and the appropriate Board concerned under the provisions of section eighteen of this Act relating to the apportionment of the cash and investments of composite companies.

There shall be paid to the auditor out of moneys provided by Parliament such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances as the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury determine, and the amount of the remuneration and allowances shall be repaid to the Minister by the appropriate Board on demand. [1417]

(11) In this section the expression "final financial period" means such part of the financial year of the undertaker during which the vesting date occurs as precedes that date:

Provided that, where any undertaker has not made the payments of interest or dividends permitted under section thirty-three of this Act in respect of the last complete financial year before the vesting date, or has not made those payments in respect of either that year or the immediately preceding financial year, being a year ending after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, the said expression means that year or, as the case may be, those years together with such part of the financial year during which the vesting date occurs as precedes the vesting date. [1418]

35. Income tax provisions.—(1) This section shall be construed as one with the Income Tax Acts. [1419]

(2) The gross amounts of any payments made by a stockholders' representative under the last preceding section shall be deemed to be income for all the purposes of the Income Tax Acts, and the stockholders' representative making the payments shall deduct income tax therefrom at the standard rate for the year in which the payments become due and any amounts so deducted shall, notwithstanding anything in the Income Tax Acts, be paid over to the appropriate Board for their own use and benefit. [1420]

(3) If—

(a) the payments of any interest of money, annuity or other annual payment charged with tax under Schedule D made by an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies, other than an undertaker to whom section eighteen of this Act applies, in the year or years of assessment falling wholly or partly within the final financial period as defined by the last preceding section; plus

(b) any payments made by the stockholders' representative to the holders of securities of the undertaker under the last preceding section being securities bearing interest, together exceed—

(i) the total income of the undertaker for the said year or years ; plus

(ii) the total of the assessments made for the said year or years under Rule 21 of the General Rules in respect of payments by the undertaker, the said Rule 21 shall have effect as if a payment of a gross amount equal to the excess had been made by the appropriate Board, as if that payment were a payment of interest of money charged with tax under Schedule D not payable out of profits or gains brought into charge to tax and as if the appropriate Board had deducted tax at the appropriate rates in making that payment :

Provided that, in calculating whether there is such an excess as aforesaid or the extent thereof, any payment which has been reimbursed to the undertaker by any person or is charged to capital shall be disregarded, but the said Rule 21 shall have the like effect in relation to the whole of any such payment as it has effect, or would have effect, under this subsection in relation to such an excess as aforesaid.

In this subsection, the expression " the appropriate rates " means the rates which were applied in making deductions of income tax from the payments referred to in paragraph (b) of this subsection, the lowest rate being taken first and applied to an amount of the excess equal to the amount to which it was applied as aforesaid, and then so with the next lowest rate, and so on. [1421]

(4) Any reference in this section or in the last preceding section to the gross amount of any payment shall be construed as a reference to the amount of that payment before any deduction is made therefrom in respect of income tax. [1422]

36. Re-opening of transactions resulting in dissipation of assets.—(1) This section shall apply in any case where on or after the twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, any company, being an undertaker to whom this Part of this Act applies and not being an ancillary gas undertaker, have—

(a) made any payment to any person without consideration or for an inadequate consideration ;

(b) sold or disposed of any of its property or rights without consideration or for an inadequate consideration ;

(c) acquired any property or rights for an excessive consideration ;

(d) entered into or varied any agreement so as to require an excessive consideration to be paid or given by the company ; or

(e) entered into any other transaction of such an onerous nature as to cause a loss to or impose a liability on the company substantially exceeding any benefit accruing to the company, and the payment, sale, disposal, acquisition, agreement or variation thereof, or other transaction was not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the company or was made with an unreasonable lack of prudence on the part of the company :

Provided that this section shall not apply—

(i) to any payment or other transaction to which section thirty-three of this Act applies ;

(ii) to any payment or other transaction made or entered into for any charitable purpose ;

(iii) to any payment or other transaction made or entered into in connection with the determination of any question, dispute or matter falling to be determined under any provision of this Part of this Act or any regulations made thereunder ; or

(2) The appropriate Board may, at any time before the expiration of a period of twelve months beginning with the vesting date, make an application to the arbitration tribunal in respect of any transaction to which in the opinion of the Board this section applies, and all parties to the transaction, and all persons who were directors of the company at the date when the transaction was entered into shall, unless the tribunal otherwise direct, be made parties to the application. [1424]

(3) Where the arbitration tribunal are satisfied that the transaction in respect of which an application is made is a transaction to which this section applies, then, unless they are also satisfied that the transaction was in the ordinary course of business and was in no way connected with any provision made by this Act or with any anticipation of the making of any such provision, the tribunal shall determine the extent of the net loss or liability caused to or imposed on the company by the transaction, and shall make such orders against all or any of the parties to the application (other than the appropriate Board) as the tribunal think just, having regard to the extent to which the parties were respectively responsible for the transaction or benefited from it, for the payment by them to the appropriate Board of sums sufficient to enable the net loss or liability, or such part thereof as the tribunal think just, to be made good or met. [1425]

(4) Where the appropriate Board have disclaimed an agreement or lease by a notice under this Part of this Act, being an agreement or lease entered into or varied on or after the twenty-third day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, the Board may make an application to the arbitration tribunal under this section in respect of any loss or liability caused to or imposed on the company before the vesting date and, in the case of a lease, any loss or liability caused to or imposed on the Board between the vesting date and the disclaimer of the lease, in consequence of the onerous nature of the agreement or lease. [1426]

(5) Where any application is made to the arbitration tribunal under this section in respect of any transaction, or a reference is made to that tribunal with respect to any notice given under this Part of this Act disclaiming an agreement or lease, the tribunal shall have exclusive jurisdiction—

(a) to determine claims arising in respect of the transaction or under the lease or agreement ; and

(b) if the notice disclaiming any such agreement is confirmed by the tribunal, to determine any claims arising with respect to the agreement under the Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act, 1943. [1427]

[1433]

(4) Any claim under this section by the appropriate Board against the directors of any such company shall be made before the expiration of a period of twelve months beginning with the vesting date and shall be determined by arbitration under this Act, and all persons who were directors of the company at the time when the alleged contravention or failure occurred shall, unless the arbitration tribunal otherwise direct, be made parties to the proceedings, and, if the arbitration tribunal decide the claim in favour of the appropriate Board, the tribunal shall make such orders against all or any of the said directors in respect of their liability under this section as the tribunal think just, having regard to all the circumstances. [1434]

(5) In this section the expression " foreign investments " means any assets the transfer of which is governed otherwise than by the law of any part of Great Britain. [1435]

PART III

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

41. Revenues of Area Boards and Gas Council to be sufficient to meet outgoings.—(1) It shall be the duty of each Area Board so to exercise and perform their functions under this Act as to secure that the revenues of the Board are not less than sufficient to meet their outgoings properly chargeable to revenue account, taking one year with another; and, if and so long as they exercise their powers to manufacture plant, gas fittings or coke fittings, they shall so exercise those powers as to secure that the revenues arising from such exercise are not less than sufficient to meet their outgoings in respect thereof properly chargeable to revenue account, taking one year with another. [1444]

(2) Each Area Board shall, at such times as the Gas Council may direct, furnish to the Gas Council for their information periodical estimates of the Board's revenue and expenditure. [1445]

(3) The Gas Council, if and so long as they exercise their powers to manufacture plant, gas fittings or coke fittings, shall so exercise those powers as to secure that the revenues arising from such exercise are not less than sufficient to meet their outgoings in respect thereof properly chargeable to revenue account, taking one year with another. [1446]

General note.—This section corresponds to s. 36 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 461).

Area Board.—As to Area Boards generally, see ss. 1 and 5, ante.

Chargeable to revenue account.—For the sums so chargeable, see s. 46, post.

Taking one year with another.—Area Boards are independent accounting units, and as such should adjust their affairs to make revenue and outgoings balance. The position of units within the Areas is left entirely to the Areas themselves. A deficit or profit in one year is to be carried forward to another, but over a period of years the accounts must balance.

Gas Council.—As to the Gas Council generally, see ss. 2 and 5, ante.

Power to manufacture plant, etc.—As to the power of Area Boards and the Gas Council to manufacture plant, etc., see ss. 1 (2) (e) and 2 (3), ante, respectively.

42. Borrowing powers of Area Boards and Gas Council.—(1) Each Area Board and the Gas Council may, with the consent of the Minister and with the approval of the Treasury or in accordance with the terms of any general authority issued by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, borrow temporarily, by way of overdraft or otherwise, such sums as the Board or Council, as the case may be, may require for meeting their obligations or discharging their functions under this Act. [1447]

(2) The Gas Council may, with the consent of the Minister and the approval of the Treasury, borrow money by the issue of British Gas Stock, for all or any of the following purposes, that is to say—

(a) the redemption of any British Gas Stock;

(b) the provision of money for meeting any expenditure incurred by any Area Board or by the Gas Council in connection with any works the cost of which is properly chargeable to capital account;

(c) the provision of any working capital required by any Area Board or by the Gas Council;

(2) If the National Coal Board and any such Area Board fail to reach agreement on a scheme to be submitted to the Minister under the preceding subsection, the Minister may direct the two Boards to submit separate schemes, and he may approve one or other of those separate schemes, with or without modification, or may, after considering the said schemes, himself make a scheme providing for the matters aforesaid. [1480]

(3) The Minister may, if and in so far as it appears to him to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of giving effect to any agreed scheme submitted to him under subsection (1) of this section or any scheme approved or made by him under the last preceding subsection, make provision by order for imposing duties or conferring powers on the two Boards or on either of them or for any other matters for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient for the purpose aforesaid :

Provided that an order made under this subsection shall not provide for the transfer of any property or rights, unless the transfer is agreed to by both Boards. [1481]

(4) The two Boards concerned may at any time submit to the Minister an agreed scheme for amending any scheme having effect under this section and, if it appears to the Minister that any scheme having such effect requires amendment and that the two Boards are unable to reach agreement with respect to the amendment thereof, he may direct them to submit separate amending schemes, and he may approve one or other of those separate schemes, with or without modification, or may, after considering the said schemes, himself make an amending scheme ; and the last preceding subsection shall apply for the purpose of giving effect to any amending scheme agreed, approved or made under this subsection. [1482]

(5) Before giving their agreement to any scheme to be submitted to the Minister under subsection (1) or subsection (4) of this section the Area Board concerned shall consult with the Gas Council. [1483]

(6) Where it appears to the Minister with respect to any property used for the purposes of any activity to which a scheme under this section applies, that it is expedient in the national interest that the property should be transferred from one of the Boards concerned to the other and that the agreement of both Boards to that transfer cannot be obtained, he may cause an inquiry to be held into the matter by a competent and impartial person or committee of persons, and after considering the report of that person or committee, which shall be published by the Minister, he may by order provide—

(a) for the transfer from one Board to the other of the property in question and of such rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred in connection with the use of that property as may be specified in the order or determined thereunder;

(b) for the payment of compensation by the Board to whom the property is transferred to the other Board;

(b) a person providing, for use in a flat or part of a building let by him, gas supplied to him shall not in so doing be deemed to be supplying gas. [1492]

(8) This section shall not affect the supply of gas by any person otherwise than through pipes. [1493]

Vesting date.—May 1, 1949; see S.I. 1949 No. 392, made under s. 17, ante.

Area Board.—As to Area Boards generally, see ss. 1 and 5, ante.

Notice.—As to the service of notices, see s. 70, post.

Premises.—This is not defined in this Act, but the position of landlords and hotel keepers who let flats or rooms containing a meter by which tenants or visitors pay for gas used is safeguarded by sub-s. (7) (b). As to charges for resale of gas supplied by an Area Board, see Sched. III, para. 17, post.

Pipes, plant or gas fittings.—Where an Area Board requires surplus gas to be sold to it, the Board must pay for the pipes, etc., transferred to it. Where a supplier unloads his surplus on an Area Board, the value of pipes, etc., would be part of the settlement under sub-s. (2). In either case an appeal lies under sub-s. (6).

Otherwise than through pipes.—This means gas supplied in cylinders or gas bottles. The fact that such gas is fed to the consuming apparatus through tubes or pipes does not render it gas supplied through pipes.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "company", "gas fittings", "holding company", "plant" and "subsidiary", see s. 74 (1), post.

Gas charges, meters, and other provisions relating to gas supply

53. Methods of charge and tariffs.—(1) Subject to the following provisions of this section, every Area Board shall charge for the gas supplied by them according to the number of therms supplied, such number to be calculated in the prescribed manner on the basis of the declared calorific value of the gas. [1494]

(2) Where, immediately before the vesting date, charges for gas supplied from any gasworks belonging to any undertaker to whom Part II of this Act applies were being made by some method other than according to the number of therms supplied, the Area Board may, for a period not exceeding five years from the vesting date, continue to charge for gas supplied from those gasworks by that other method, and the Minister may, if it appears to him that it would be impracticable or uneconomical to require the Area Board to adopt the method of charge specified in the preceding subsection in relation to gas supplied from any such gasworks, authorise the Board to continue to use the said other method of charge after the expiration of the said five years. [1495]

(3) Regulations shall—

(a) make provision as to the time when and the manner in which the calorific value of gas supplied by Area Boards is to be declared and is to be brought to the notice of consumers and as to the time when any such declaration is to take effect; and

(b) provide for the adjustment of charges for gas in cases where an alteration in the declared calorific value occurs in the course of a period for which such charges are made:

Provided that any declaration of the calorific value of gas supplied from any gasworks of an undertaker to whom Part II of this Act applies, being a declaration in force immediately before the vesting date, shall continue in force in relation to gas supplied from those gasworks until it is replaced by a declaration made under the said regulations. [1496]

(4) Subject to the following provisions of this subsection, the prices to be charged by an Area Board for the supply of gas by them shall be in accordance with such tariffs as may be fixed from time to time by them, and those tariffs shall be so framed as to show the methods by which and the principles on which the charges are to be made as well as the prices which are to be charged, and shall be published in such manner as in the opinion of the Area Board will secure adequate publicity for them:

Provided that—

(a) the tariffs in force immediately before the vesting date in respect of gas supplied from any gasworks of an undertaker to whom Part II of this Act applies shall remain in force in respect of gas supplied by an Area Board from those gasworks, until varied or replaced by tariffs fixed in accordance with this section; and

(b) nothing in this subsection shall affect any special agreement for the supply of gas in force immediately before the vesting date. [1497]

(5) A tariff fixed by an Area Board under the last preceding subsection may include a standing charge in addition to the charge for the actual gas supplied and may also include a rent or other charge in respect of any gas meter or gas fittings provided by the Board on the premises of the consumer. [1498]

(6) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding provisions of this section, an Area Board may enter into a special agreement with any consumer for the supply of gas to him on such terms as may be specified in the agreement:

Provided that an Area Board shall not enter into such agreements except in cases where the tariffs in force are not appropriate owing to special circumstances. [1499]

(7) An Area Board, in fixing tariffs and making agreements under this section, shall not show undue preference to any person or class of persons and shall not exercise any undue discrimination against any person or class of persons. [1500]

General note.—This section corresponds to s. 37 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 461).

Area Board.—As to Area Boards generally, see ss. 1 and 5, ante.

Vesting date.—May 1, 1949; see S.I. 1949 No. 392, made under s. 17, ante.

Undertaker to whom Part II applies.—See s. 15, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

Calorific value of the gas.—Prior to the passing of this Act, only statutory undertakers and undertakers supplying more than a certain quantity of gas could charge on a thermal basis under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 3 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1282), the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, s. 6 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1295), and the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 9 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 310); these Acts are repealed by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post. Other undertakers supplied gas in accordance with its volumetric capacity.

Regulations.—See the Gas (Declaration of Calorific Value) Regulations, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 788). As to regulations generally, see s. 71, post.

Special agreement.—The Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 7 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 309) (repealed by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post), permitted special contracts for the supply of gas, including in particular a two-part tariff for domestic consumers, to be entered into in variation of the fixed tariff published by the undertaker.

Undue preference.—See also s. 1 (8), ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "calorific value", "gas fittings", "gasworks" and "therm", see s. 74 (1), post.

54. Meter testing and stamping.—(1) As from the vesting date, no meter shall be used for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of gas supplied to any person unless it is stamped by a meter examiner appointed under this section, and no such meter examiner shall stamp a meter unless he is satisfied that it is of such pattern and construction and is marked in such manner as is approved by the Minister and that the meter conforms to such standards as may be prescribed. [1501]

(2) The Minister shall appoint competent and impartial persons as meter examiners for the purposes of this section, and it shall be the duty of such an examiner, on being required to do so by any person and on payment of the prescribed fee, to examine any meter used or intended to be used for ascertaining the quantity of gas supplied to any person, and to stamp that meter if the examiner is satisfied of the matters aforesaid, and the meter examiners shall comply with any directions given by the Minister as to the exercise and performance of their functions. [1502]

(3) There shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament to meter examiners such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or fees) and such allowances as may be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, and such pensions may be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament to or in respect of any such meter examiner as may be so determined. [1503]

(4) All fees payable in respect of the examination of meters by meter examiners shall be paid to the Minister. [1504]

(5) Regulations may make provision—

(a) for re-examining meters already stamped, and for cancelling the stamp on any meters which no longer conform with the prescribed standards;

(b) for requiring meters to be periodically overhauled;

(c) for the revocation of any approval given by the Minister to any particular pattern or construction of meter and for requiring existing meters of that pattern or construction to be replaced within such period as may be prescribed;

(d) for determining the fees to be paid for examining, stamping and re-examining meters, and the persons by whom they are to be paid; and

(e) for any matters supplementary or incidental to the matters aforesaid and to the provisions of this section for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient. [1505]

(6) If any person supplies gas through a meter which has not been stamped under this section, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds and, if the default in respect of which any person is convicted under this subsection is continued after the conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable in respect thereof on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds for each day during which the default is so continued. [1506]

(7) Any meter which has before the vesting date been duly stamped under the enactments then in force shall be deemed to have been stamped under this section. [1507]

(8) All apparatus and equipment used immediately before the vesting date by the council of any county, borough or burgh or by any justices for the purpose of examining and stamping meters used for ascertaining the quantity of gas supplied, including any apparatus or equipment affixed to a building, shall on the vesting date vest by virtue of this Act in the Minister, and there shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament such compensation in respect of that vesting as may be agreed or, in default of agreement, settled by arbitration under this Act. [1508]

(9) The Minister shall be entitled to occupy and use, as from the vesting date, any premises used immediately before the vesting date, by any such council or justices wholly or mainly for the purpose aforesaid, for such period, on the payment of such rent and on such other terms and conditions as may be agreed between the Minister and the council or justices, as the case may be, or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by arbitration under this Act to be fair and reasonable in all the circumstances, and, on ceasing to occupy and use any such premises, the Minister shall be entitled to remove any apparatus or equipment vesting in him by virtue of this Act which is affixed to the premises, making good any damage caused by such removal or paying such compensation therefor as may be agreed or determined as aforesaid. [1509]

Vesting date.—May 1, 1949; see S.I. 1949 No. 392, made under s. 17, ante.

Meter.—Every consumer may be required by the Area Board supplying him with gas (except gas for public lamps) to take his supply through a meter (see Sched. III, para. 13, post).

Meter examiner.—Formerly, inspectors of meters were appointed by the justices in quarter sessions under the Sale of Gas Act, 1859 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1230), which is repealed by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post. These powers of the justices were transferred to the London County Council, by virtue of the Metropolis Gas Act, 1861 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1253), (which is virtually repealed by s. 56 (2), post), and by the Local Government Act, 1888, s. 40 (8) (10 Halsbury's Statutes 718), so far as concerns the Metropolis, and to county councils elsewhere by the Local Government Act, 1888, s. 3 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 688).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

Regulations.—See the Gas (Meter) Regulations, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 790). As to regulations generally, see s. 71, post.

Periodic overhaul and replacement.—Regulations made under this section do not override the provisions of Sched. III, paras. 13, 14, post, so as to impose any cost of overhaul or replacement on the consumer. Meters belonging to an Area Board and hired to the consumer are maintained by the Board, while a consumer's own meter must be overhauled or replaced at his expense.

Summary conviction.—As to summary liability see the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 51 (1) (11 Halsbury's Statutes 350). The prosecution of an offender under this section does not need the authorisation of the Director of Public Prosecutions or of the Minister under s. 69, post.

Stamped under the enactments in force.—The public Acts relating to the stamping of meters (i.e. the Sale of Gas Act, 1859 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1230) and the Gas Regulation Act, 1920 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1278)) are repealed by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post.

Arbitration under this Act.—See s. 63, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "enactment", "functions", "pension" and "prescribed", see s. 74 (1), post.

55. Standards of gas quality to be complied with by Area Boards.—(1) The Minister shall, after consultation with the Gas Council, prescribe standards of pressure, purity and uniformity of calorific value to be complied with by Area Boards in supplying gas, and may, after consultation with the Gas Council, prescribe other standards with respect to the properties, condition and composition of gas supplied by Area Boards, and the regulations may, in the case of such supplies provided for industrial purposes only as may be specified in the regulations and subject to such conditions as may be so specified, provide for granting exemption from the obligation to comply with any such standards. [1510]

(2) The Minister shall appoint competent and impartial persons to carry out tests of the gas supplied by Area Boards for the purpose of ascertaining whether it is of the declared calorific value and conforms with the standards prescribed under this section, and the persons so appointed shall comply with any directions given by the Minister as to the exercise and performance of their functions. [1511]

(3) There shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament to the persons so appointed such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or fees) and such allowances as may be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, and such pensions may be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament to or in respect of any of those persons as may be so determined, and any sums paid by the Minister under this subsection shall be repaid to him by the Gas Council. [1512]

(4) Regulations may provide—

(a) for determining the places at which such tests as aforesaid are to be carried out;

(b) for requiring premises, apparatus and equipment to be provided and maintained by Area Boards for the purpose of carrying out such tests;

(c) for persons representing Area Boards to be present during the carrying out of such tests;

(d) for the manner in which the results of such tests are to be made available to the public;

(e) for conferring powers of entry on property of Area Boards for the purpose of deciding where tests are to be carried out and otherwise for the purposes of this section;

(f) for refunding to consumers or otherwise disposing of any excess revenue obtained by an Area Board by reason of their failure to maintain the calorific value declared in respect of any gas supplied by them; and

(g) for any other matters supplementary or consequential on the matters aforesaid for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient. [1513]

(5) All moneys standing on the vesting date to the credit of the gas fund established under section seven of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, shall be paid into the Exchequer. [1514]

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).

Gas Council.—As to the Gas Council generally, see ss. 2 and 5, ante.

Area Boards.—As to Area Boards generally, see ss. 1 and 5, ante.

Regulations.—See the Gas (Testing) Regulations, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 789) and the Gas (Quality) Regulations, 1949 (S.I. 1949 No. 792). As to regulations generally, see s. 71, post.

Persons to test gas.—The persons appointed under sub-s. (2), supra, replace the gas examiners appointed by the Board of Trade under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 4 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1282), which is repealed as from the vesting date by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post.

The gas fund.—This fund was established by contributions made by gas undertakers to whom that section applied or was by order made applicable (but excluding non-statutory undertakers who became liable to purity and pressure tests by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 302) by the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 7 (3) (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1285). Both these Acts are repealed as from the vesting date by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "calorific value", "functions" and "prescribe", see s. 74 (1), post.

56. Application of gas supply code and enactments to Area Boards.—(1) As from the vesting date, the Third Schedule to this Act (which contains a code of provisions relating to gas supply) shall apply to Area Boards :

Provided that, if it appears to the Minister, as respects any obligation imposed by the said Schedule, that it is not reasonably practicable to require an Area Board to fulfil that obligation in relation to any part of the area of the Board as respects which the obligation was not imposed on the undertaker supplying gas in that part before the vesting date, he may by order provide for relieving the Area Board from that obligation, in relation to that part of their area, for such period not extending beyond five years from the vesting date as may be specified in the order, on such conditions as may be so specified. [1515]

(2) All local enactments in force at the vesting date and applicable to any statutory undertakers, except enactments applicable to any Electricity Boards, local authorities or composite companies otherwise than in relation to their gas undertakings, shall as from the vesting date have effect—

(a) as if for references to the undertaker there were substituted references to the Area Board in whom property, rights, liabilities and obligations of the undertaker vest by virtue of this Act ;

(b) as if for any references (however worded and whether expressed or implied) to the gas undertaking or any part thereof or to the limits of supply of the undertaker or any part thereof there were substituted a reference to so much of the business carried on by the Area Board as corresponds to that undertaking or part thereof or, as the case may be, a reference to the area comprised in the said limits of supply immediately before the vesting date or part thereof ;

and shall also have effect, as from such date as may be prescribed, which may be prior to the making of the regulations but not to the vesting date, with such other adaptations and modifications (if any) as may be prescribed, being adaptations and modifications required in consequence of the provisions of this Act :

Provided that any such local enactment which provides for the regulation of charges made by the undertaker and any other such local enactment which is inconsistent with or rendered redundant by the provisions of this Act shall cease to have effect, as from the vesting date, so, however, that this proviso shall not be taken as affecting any local enactment which contains special provisions for the protection of any person or class of persons and is not rendered redundant by the provisions of this Act. [1516]

(3) References in any enactment other than a local enactment to persons carrying on gas undertakings (whatever expression may be used to describe such persons) and to the gas undertakings of such persons shall, as from the vesting date, be construed as references to Area Boards and to the business carried on by those Boards. [1517]

(4) For the purpose of securing, so far as is reasonably practicable, a uniform statutory code applicable throughout the area of each Area Board, the Minister may by order provide for the repeal or amendment of any such local enactment as has effect under subsection (2) of this section or for its extension to the whole or a greater part of the area concerned, and for such matters consequential on or incidental to any such repeal, amendment or extension for which the Minister considers it necessary or expedient to provide.

An order under this subsection shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [1518]

(5) If property and rights used by the British Transport Commission for the purposes of any gas undertaking carried on by them are transferred to an Area Board, the Minister may by order provide for the application to the Board of any local enactment applicable to the Commission, so far as appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient in consequence of the said transfer. [1519]

(6) Where an order made under this Act provides for the transfer of property, rights, liabilities and obligations from one Area Board to another, that order or a subsequent order may provide for the application to the last named Board of any local enactment applicable to the first named Board, so far as appears to the Minister necessary or expedient in consequence of the said transfer. [1520]

Vesting date.—May 1, 1949; see S.I. 1949 No. 392, made under s. 17, ante.
Gas supply code.—All public Acts regulating the supply of gas are repealed by s. 76 and Sched. IV, post. Their provisions, as made applicable to Area Boards as the sole public suppliers of gas, are replaced by Sched. III, post.
Area Boards.—As to Area Boards generally, see ss. 1 and 5, ante.
The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 74 (1), post).
Orders and regulations.—As to orders and regulations generally, see s. 71, post. No orders or regulations under this section had been made up to the date of going to press.
Property, etc., vesting in Area Boards.—See s. 17 (1), ante.
